THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

POSTAGE STAMPS

Waste and Corruption

"If we waste our money on stamps," said a man the other day, "we are wasting about the most valuable thing on the face of the earth."

"Uncle Sam is much more than a million dollars in pocket money as a result of carelessness in stamps. The government is anything but such a careless ways gains."

"How many stamps do you have in a drawer of your desk or in your pocketbook and how many again until you come across one and torn, while rummaging months later? Then they go into the wastebasket."

"Lots of people are careless in putting stamps on envelopes and wrappers. The result is that the stamp has been wasted at the other end of the line and is paid."

"A great many more folks put three stamps to a postage which only one. They are too indolent to take the trouble to have the package weighed and out how much postage it requires."

"If too little postage is put on a letter, Uncle Sam simply pays the other end until the postage has been paid. But if too much on Uncle Sam simply pockets the excess to which he is not entitled."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.
Lesson XIII.—Second Quarter,
For June 28, 1908.
THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.
Text of the Lesson, Eph. v. 2-20.—Monday Verses, 15-16.—Golden Text, Eph.
v. 16.—Commentary Prepared by Rev.
Q. M. Rogers.
[Copyright, 1908, by American Bible Association.]
Self is a great master and a master with which we have to deal and which in many is never fully subdued. It may be drunken or sober, moral or immoral, religious or irreligious, righteous or unrighteous, but if it is self it is not only not of God, but it is against God.
It is incorrigibly corrupt and must be delivered to death. It is darkness and therefore opposed to light, and whoever says otherwise is talking vain words which tend toward the wrath of God (verse 6). This self life or old man, or carnal mind or natural man must be put off, kept under, denied, reckoned dead that the new man,
Christ in us, may have full control.
There is a glory which wins us, a love which constraineth us and so occupies the heart and the affections that if we rightly see Jesus in His life and death and resurrection and ascension and coming kingdom we are made gladly willing—yes, earnestly desirous to have done with the unfruitful works of darkness and walk as children of light (verses 8-12). The Lord does not seek to drive us to this, but to draw us by "His great love, wherewith He loved us, even when we were dead in sins" (Eph. ii. 4, 5). In the opening chapters of this epistle He tells us of the riches, the unsearchable riches of His grace and glory, the redemption which is ours through His blood, the eternal purpose into which we have come in the Christ to come, and then He beseeches us because of all this to walk worthy of this calling, to walk in love and in the light circumspectly, kind to and forgiving one another, looking onward to the time when the church shall be a glorious church without spot or wrinkle or any such thing.
Therefore He would have us arise from the sleep of death which seems to have overcome so many and redeem the time or buy up the opportunities which are slipping by so fast (verses 13-16).
That word in verse 14 takes us back to Isa. lx, 1-3, and on to the time when Israel as a nation shall welcome her Messiah and then so shine that the nations shall come to her light and kings to the brightness of her rising. If believers now would let the beauty of the Lord be seen upon them and let His spirit fill them, the whole being yielded to the Lord, then those who know not the Lord might be drawn to Him and the church hastened to completion.
The complaint of Paul by the Spirit in Phil. ii. 21, "All seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's," is sadly true today of the professing church as a whole, but He is not discourage (Isa. xlii, 4), and there is no reason for His followers to be. In spite of all the power of the great adversary He will complete His church and bring His kingdom.
Where does the lesson on so called intemperance come in in this study?
In verses 11 and 18 we read, "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness" and "Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess." The woes and abominations of the drunkard are more fully set forth in some other lessons we have had, such as Isa. v and xxviii, but we must not forget that drunkenness is only one phase of the self life and there is a drunkenness wholly apart from wine or strong drink (Isa. xxix, 9). A man might be a ruler in the church or a preacher, temperate in all things, an upright, honorable man in the eyes of his fellows, and yet on his way to the same hell as the drunkard, for even such as Nicodemus must be born from above if he would see the kingdom of God. The greatest question is not one of temperance or intemperance, but what have I done with Jesus Christ? God has at infinite cost, even the sacrifice of His own Son to bear the sins of the world, provided eternal redemption for all mankind, and the great and only important question for every sinner (for all have sinned) is, Have I accepted the Son of God as my Saviour—am I under that precious blood which alone can save me from eternal death? Then to all such come the exhortations of this epistle, for these epistles were written to the saints (chapter i. 1)— that is, to saved sinners.
Sinners are saved not merely to deliver them from hell and get them to heaven, but that others may be saved through them, and therefore, among other exhortations, this one, not to be filled with wine, but to be filled with the Spirit. Wine tends to self exaltation, but if filled with the Spirit we loathe and abhor self and exalt the Lord alone, whose love is better than wine (Song. i. 2, 4). Instead of the song of the drunkard it will then be spiritual songs and melody in the heart to the Lord (verse 19). It will be the new song of the new creature in Christ, full of thanksgiving for the great redemption and for the all things included in it (verse 20 and Rom. viii, 32). We will then see in all things pleasant or unpleasant something to be thankful for, the good and acceptable and perfect will of God, the perfect submission which was seen in Christ manifest also in us by the same Spirit. The devil hates a life like that and will put up the strongest possible fight against it; hence see chapter vi, 10-12. God is able to make us at all times and without fail, and He will if we let Him.

The Sunday school convention at Shiloh church the third Sunday was a grand success. The subjects were ably discussed by those to whom they were assigned.
The convention passed a resolution that from now on they would hold their meeting on Saturday instead of Sunday, and we hope all the churches will join hands and hold their all day services on Saturday in place of Sunday, for these reasons: 1. The all-day service on Sunday is detrimental to the total Sunday school. I know of one school that has missed three Sundays in succession on account of singings and I am sure they hurt them everywhere. 2. When they are held on the regular preaching day, the people can't go to church
Saturday for fixing for Sunday. 3.
The sisters do three or four hours of the hardest work Sunday morning that they do in the week. 4.
The great majority of the people go to these gatherings just for pastime, you can hold them very well until dinner is over and then if it doesn't rain you can't get enough in the house to hold service.

Farmers progressing with their work fairly well, and peace and plenty should abound with all.
Even so it would if we put our trust in the Lord. But we should remember that even our Lord and Savior had to bear false accusation, even to such degree as to cause a life sacrifice, and if our Savior in all His righteousness had to, in His days on earth, encounter persecutions, how can we escape them? But the same Lord and Savior said I am with you always,

And what greater promise could

'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.
We have no right to judge a man—
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company.
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who has not?
The old as well as young
We may, perhaps, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.
I'll tell you of a better plan.
And find it works full well:
To try my own defects to cure.
Ere I of others tell.
And though I sometimes hope to be No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.
Then let us all, when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word will do
To those we little know;
And know that yet the greatest harm
Must come to us alone.
Don't speak of other's faults until
We have done of our own.
ANON.
Simple When You Know How.
An innocent cockney while in the country asked a farmer how they managed to grow streaky bacon.
"Oh, it is simple enough," said the honest agriculturist. "One week we starve the pig or feed him very little.
That makes a layer of lean meat. Next week we give him all he can possibly eat, even working overtime, and that makes a row of fat. So by alternate starving and feeding we get the beautiful streaky bacon."
"Dear me," said the cockney, "and how do you make the ham?"
"Oh, we manage that by putting a ring in the pig's nose," was the reply.

The Supreme Court has held that the tenant on a piece of land can not, without the permission of the landlord, allow any one to hunt on the property.

Nothing like being early in the field, and while the election of a governor will not take place for over two years yet, we already have two announced candidates—the latest being Hon. H. S. D. Mallory, of Selma, chairman of the State Democratic committee, a man known and honored throughout the length and breadth of Alabama.

Lieut. Governor Henry B. Gray has been a candidate for some time past.

The death of Col. A. A. Wiley leaves a vacancy in Congress, and the Second district of Alabama appears to be full of candidates who are willing to sacrifice their ordinary business to serve the dear people for $7,500 per annum.

R. Tyler Goodwyn of Montgomery has announced for the vacancy. He is well known and popular in the district and will make a good run.

Col. Charles R. Bricken and State Examiner of Public Accounts H. Y. Brooke, both of Crenshaw, are expected to become candidates, and Hon. Thomas J. Hall, who was defeated in the late campaign by Col. Wiley, will probably try it again. There are others mentioned.

The appointment of Gen. Luke E. Wright, of Tennessee, a Democrat and an old Confederate soldier, as Secretary of War in a Republican cabinet, is a tribute to the man, and a pleasing surprise to the Southern people. In 1900 he was appointed a member of the Philippine commission; in 1903 he succeeded Taft as president of the commission, and in 1904 was appointed civil governor of the islands. Later he was governor-general and in 1906 he was appointed ambassador to Japan. Now he again succeeds Taft as Secretary of War.

GROVER CLEVELAND DIES

Grover Cleveland, twenty-second President of the United States, was called to his final reward after a trying period of bad health, at 8:40 o'clock, Wednesday morning.

While Mr. Cleveland had been seriously ill for some time the announcement of his death came like a thunderbolt to those who had been watching his illness.

Those who were at the bedside when the end came were Mrs. Cleveland and the three physicians.

The funeral will be held on Friday, June 26, at Westland, Mr. Cleveland's residence at Princeton, and will be strictly private.

THE NEW RULINGS OF THE POSTMASTER GENERAL.

From the address of Hon. A. L. Lawrence, third assistant Postmaster General, delivered before the convention of newspaper publishers of Missouri, we take the following extracts, from which it will be seen that publishers of weekly papers must get their subscription lists up to date, and in future can only send their papers one year on credit.

We publish this as interesting to all subscribers, and more especially to those who are about one year in arrears.

"The truth from the legal standpoint is that when the term for which the subscription was paid expires the contract between the publisher and the subscriber ends, and the latter ceases then and there to be a subscriber in the real sense. If he expressly renews his subscription by paying or giving a definite promise to pay the stipulated price he becomes again a subscriber and is entitled to be included as a part of a legitimate list; but if he does not so renew his subscription, strictly, the publisher has no legal right to include him in the list of subscribers of the publication for a single day after the term for which the subscription was paid has passed. The mere fact that a person continues to receive and accept copies of the publication after the term for which he subscribed has passed does not constitute a renewal of his subscription. He merely becomes liable for the price of the individual copies so received.

"As a matter of law, an expired subscription is no subscription at all and the postmaster general is under no legal obligation whatever to recognize them as subscriptions or to regard as legitimate a list composed wholly or partly of such alleged subscriptions. It is found, however, that for the purpose of the act of 1879 and its administration, it is sufficient to limit the time during which the names of persons whose subscriptions have expired may be carried as part of a legitimate list of subscribers; and the postmaster general has accordingly established the rule that in respect of publications of a specified class the publisher may carry expired subscriptions for a stated period, and that in respect of publications of a certain other class the publisher shall have the like privilege for a certain other stated period, and so on with regard to eight classes of publications, running from dailies to quarterlies, both inclusive.

"This regulation is fair, reasonable and even liberal to the publishers and the public, and it is difficult to see how any court could take exception to it as an exercise of power not resting in the postmaster general, as an attempt to legislate upon the subject. It represents discrimination against no publication, dealing alike with all in like situations or circumstances and plainly endeavoring to do justice to all alike. That it is valid and clearly within his authority to establish would seem to be beyond all question.

"The regulations were made to be enforced, not to be ignored. I have faith in the legitimate publisher and believe that he will come to the aid of the department and help stamp out the evils that exist. I believe that he will do his part in this movement, and that it will be a success. In fact, I regard it as already a success. The department has felt all the time that it should give to every publisher who shows good faith all the time reasonably necessary to bring his business practices into harmony with the new regulations. That is being done, but I say to you as publishers that it is your duty to get right if you are not right."

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

CHERRY PECTORAL.

WHAT IS IT?

There is at least something "new under the sun." But what is it? By what name shall it be known and called? Recently a "meeting" was held in the court house under various and sundry "calls." One signed by Jackson as chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, another by Sam W. Collins, chairman of the Republican Executive Committee, and still another by Shaw, chairman of the Populist Executive Committee, and as a result a primary was ordered for the nomination of county officers and their candidates announce "subject to the action of the 'Peoples Primary.'" Well, well, well, "ye gods and little fishes."

The heathen has an idol of one body with three heads, before whom he bows down, but the dear voter of Chilton is offered a monstrosity of three bodies, no head and no tail, before whom he may bow down and pay his homage. What is this thing? A political absurdity. The impersonation of that yearning for office, that inordinate craving for a seat at the "pie counter," that greedy, squealing desire to get their noses into the public trough which some men have, influencing them to leave all party principle, pride and every thing else take up with the three-bodied, headless and tailless "political woods colt" just described. Its true name is "We, Us & Co.," and the creature of the "bosses" who have been fooling the people and running things in the county for these many years. The people are tired of this "We, Us & Co." and the plain, common sense voters will smash this idol in the November election and "don't you forget it."

A STRAIGHT TALK.

Editor Banner—The "Union" of last week contained a lot of rattle trap from one who signed his name "Tax Payer." He still speaks of the dispensary as the "demon" but he is no wise intimates that the money derived from the "demon," half of which went into the public school fund and his children or his neighbor's children got their share of the benefit thereof, should or would be turned back into the school fund of Clanton. He goes further to say that the County Commissioners "had nothing to do with the school funds, etc." Now, if the said County Commissioners had nothing to do with the school funds, why did they send to Birmingham and get an expert accountant to come to Clanton and check up the books and accounts of the dispenser, and why did one of the County Commissioners go into the dispensary and hang around in there while the process of checking up was going on? If he and the balance of the Commissioners had nothing to do with the school funds, why were they so ready to spend the people's money in this performance to see that honest Newt Kicker didn't steal any of this "demon" money?

This erudite and well informed "Tax Payer" wants to know why the writer in the Banner fails to tell the people "who made the law that is burdening the people with taxes." The writer does not know of any law that is "burdening the people with taxes." The writer does know that all the law providing for and regulating taxes so far as the State is concerned, was written by Democrats, and they are all right and do not burden or oppress anybody, but the manner in which the law is ignored and abused by county officials in Chilton County, is a burden to the people. This sophomore "Tax Payer" says that our taxes are high, that "VanDerveer is a Democrat and working under democratic law," and this is all the truth that "Tax Payer's" effusion contains. He says VanDerveer gets three-fourths of the raises in the beginning and then gets 10 per cent of what is left.

The writer does not know who this loquacious "Tax Payer" is, but one thing the writer does know, and that is, that this "Tax Payer" is either the President of the Universal Annonias Club or he is a fit and proper candidate for board and lodging at a certain dwelling place in Tuscaloosa, for such unfortunate as "Tax Payer" said dwelling place "is made and provided." The fact is that VanDerveer has no more power to raise the taxes than "Tax Payer" has. He can only recommend the raise to the court of County Commissioners and it is with them to say whether the proposed raise shall be made or not, and if they, the Commissioners, allow the proposed raise, then, and only then does VanDerveer get 10 per cent on the amount of the raise. It is the Commissioners who raise the taxes and nobody else, for nobody else can raise them. Talking about "Democratic made laws," and "Tax Payer" knows so much about law, etc., suppose he goes to the court house and finds upon the minutes of the Commissioners court, an order allowing the Sheriff $197.00 out of the county treasury, as expenses incurred in hiring a sot drunkard "detective" to come here from another county to hunt up a few wild cat liquor cases to be carried before the Probate Judge for trial, and then let him tell the people where the Commissioners got the law for allowing any such claim.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen, of Wayne, W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. Upchurch Drug Co.

WALL PAPER

(Being good painting, in room and out)

BY EDNA FRATUE.

Over a dozen years ago,

A home for about one built you know;

Some pictures glad but others proud,

Behind the veil to see who'd list.

Some feared that others would make gain

By taking care of beauty's train,

No competition made its mark,

And paid its course by talk to dark.

They were not bad as you must know,

Brought up in church; still these they go;

For the school they had their room;

That they would fall in great esteem.

The school run on for years you see,

And tried to teach the young to see;

But one neighbor had seen a good

Which in real ground had grown good.

This is the tale I'd have you hear,

FORTY KILLED IN FIGHT

Town of Las Vacas, Mex., Was Attacked by Bandits

WERE REPULSED BY TROOPS

Severe Fighting Has Occurred in Mexico, Just Over the Texas Border in which There Was Considerable Loss of Life.

El Paso, Tex., June 27.—In an encounter between revolutionists and troops of the Mexican government at the town of Las Vacas, in Coahuila, Mexico, near the border across from Del Rio, Tex., early Friday, between forty and fifty men were killed and the commandant of the Mexican troops was badly injured, according to advices received here. The story of the battle as received here follows:

The quarters of the Mexican officers and barracks were fired upon by the attacking band and the fighting centered upon the federal custom house. Forty troops were finally assembled. In the disorder following the initial attack upon the barracks and the discovery that the quarters of the soldiers were burning, the revolutionists captured about sixty horses belonging to the Mexican cavalry.

At the custom house the troops made a determined stand and the fighting lasted all morning without intermission. It is said that 5,000 shots were exchanged.

The revolutionists cut all telephone and telegraph wires leading to Las Vacas, and thus prevented the beleaguered town from sending for reinforcements. After heavy firing until about noon, the attacking party was repulsed and communication was established out of Las Vacas.

San Antonio, Tex., June 27.—According to a dispatch to the Express from Del Rio, two attacks were made on the town of Las Vacas, Mex., across the border from Del Rio, by bandits, but anticipating such an attack, the troops were in readiness and the raiders were repulsed. Desultory firing continued all day, however, and several hundred shots were fired across the river at persons on the American side. One man, Nestor Lopez, of Del Rio, is known to have been killed, and Captain Herrez, in command of the Mexican troops, and Basile Ramirez, a United States citizen, was wounded. As to further casualties, nothing can be ascertained. Reinforcements have been dispatched from C. P. Diaz, the military base for that section of the republic, which is less than a day's journey from Las Vacas. At C. P. Diaz no disorder exists and the authorities do not anticipate a recurrence of the outbreak. They attach no political significance to the attack and regard the matter as wholly the work of bandits. Neither do they connect it with the attack on the town of Vesca on Thursday.

Las Vacas is a small town in the state of Coahuila, a few miles up the Rio Grande from Jimenez, the scene of the principal events of the revolt of September, 1906. It has no railway connections and is in rather desolate section of the country.

THAW BOES UP AGAIN.

White Slave Has Obtained New Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—Harry Thaw has obtained a new writ of habeas corpus, returnable before supreme court Justice Mills at White Plains at 10:30 a. m. Monday morning, when counsel for Thaw will endeavor to secure a jury trial to pass upon his mental condition.

The writ was served on Under Sheriff Townsend in anticipation of Judge Morschauer's signing an order recommending Thaw to Matteawan.

The writ has the effect of holding Thaw until Monday, when the sheriff will be required to produce him before Judge Mills at White Plains.

A Fatal Honeymoon.

Augusta, Ga., June 27.—After a honeymoon that lasted only one week, Dr. J. B. Smith, who married Miss Eliza Carwell, of Hephzibah, was killed by falling into a well while working on the curbing in the course of making a number of repairs upon his premises. Mrs. Smith is well known in Augusta and throughout Richmond county, and the sympathy of her hundreds of friends is extended to her in her bereavement.

Five Are Killed in Wreck.

Chadron, Neb., June 27.—Five persons were killed in a wreck on the Chicago and Nebraska Western road. A double header passenger train, eastbound, struck a washout caused by a cloudburst near Chadron. The dead are Willis Graham, engineer; O. C. Meyers, fireman; Fred Ebner, brakeman; two unidentified men who were stealing a ride.

Piece of Glass Caused Death.

Montgomery, Ala., June 27.—The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Rutledge is dead at Brundidge under peculiar circumstances. While washing some tiny dishes she got a small piece of glass in her mouth. It lodged in her throat and caused inflammation of a fatal nature.

SOUTH FLOODING AREA

Revival from Inactivity Following Late Floods.

Baltimore, Md., June 26.—A revival from the inactivity following the seasonal depression of the winter trade has been entering upon a summer that promises to record considerable advance in building and industrial enterprise. For instance, while there seems to be no disposition in the Birmingham, Ala., district to blow in fresh furnaces except as pressing necessity may demand, there are now in the district twenty operating furnaces against sixteen only thirty days ago. In that quarter is looked for daily an announcement of details of a $100,000 water-pipe plant, an option has been secured and others are being examined for a steel structural works, and an old rolling mill and pipe works, 17 miles from Birmingham, will be converted into a hoop and cotton tie mill.

Ground has been broken for a $100,000 plant to make frogs and switches and other railroad sundries at Birmingham.

Augusta, Ga., expects to get busy shortly upon the construction of a city hall to cost probably $300,000 before it has been completed.

In Texas and Louisiana the past week has witnessed the greatest interest in a visit of government engineers investigating the route of the proposed waterway touching all the main water courses in the two states, between the Mississippi and the Rio Grande, and not entirely disconnected with that project is the drainage work under way in turning vast areas of wet prairie land into fertile cultivatable acres.

CUT IN WAGES DEFERRED.

Southern Railroad May Not Find It Necessary to Reduce Wages.

Washington, June 25.—It is understood here that the Southern Railway company will not reduce the wages of its employees in the operating department, as has been contemplated. Last March the company announced its intention of reducing wages at that time and numerous conferences were held between the officials and representatives of the employees, the result of which was to defer action until July first.

Commissioner of Labor Nell and Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission, acted as intermediaries at these conferences. It was agreed at that time that if business conditions along the line of the railroad had not improved at the end of three months, a new wage scale would be taken up for consideration. Several conferences between the same parties have been held within the past few days and as a result the probationary period has been extended to three months. It is said that business in the south is reviving, and that at the end of the three months the Southern will not find it necessary to make any wage reductions.

FATAL CHICAGO FIRE.

Five Known Dead and a Score Are Injured.

Chicago, June 25.—Five are known to be dead and more than a score of persons were injured, several of them seriously, as the result of an explosion followed by fire in a five-story building, the upper floors of which were used as a boarding house.

The explosion occurred in the plant of the Pabst Chemical company on the ground floor.

The dead are all members of the same family, and include the mother and four children. They were found by the firemen in the rear of the third floor.

The employees of the chemical company escaped, but several were injured by flying debris and glass.

CAPTAIN HARPER KILLED.

Fatal Difficulty Between Prominent Men at Lebanon, Tenn.

Nashville, Tenn., June 25.—A Lebanon, Tenn., dispatch to the Banner says that Captain Ellis Harper was shot and instantly killed at that place Thursday morning by William Sutt.

DEATH WAS CALLED GROVER CLEVELAND

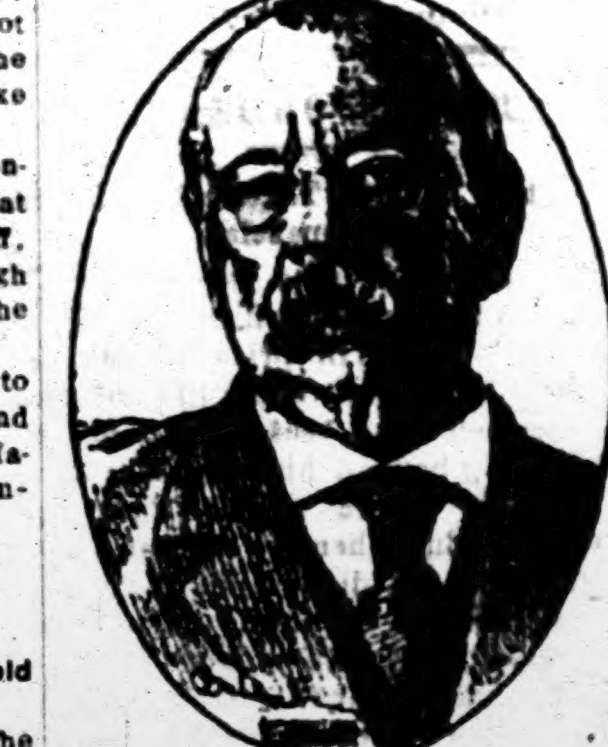

The Former President Dies at His Home, Princeton, N. J.

WAS DUE TO HEART FAILURE

Three Times Nominated and Twice Elected President of the United States—Decomposed Had Been Unwell for Some Time, But Still His Death Came as a Shock to the Nation—A Sketch of His Life and Political Career.

Princeton, N. J., June 24.—Grover Cleveland, former president of the United States, died suddenly at his home at Westland here at 5:40 a. m. Wednesday.

Death was due to heart failure, complicated with other diseases. The passing away of Mr. Cleveland was not immediately announced, but was delayed until an official statement had been prepared by the physicians who had been attending him in the various periods of his illness.

The following statement signed by Drs. Joseph D. Bryant, George R. Lockwood and J. M. Carnochan, was given out:

"Mr. Cleveland for many years had suffered from repeated attacks of gastro-intestinal origin. Also he had long-standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys. Heart failure, complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and oedema were the immediate cause of his death."

Those at the bedside when the end came were Mrs. Cleveland and the three physicians. The only other persons in the house at the time were a number of servants.

While Mr. Cleveland had been seriously ill from time to time the announcement of his death came like a thunderbolt to those who had been watching his illness.

The Clevelands came here from Lakewood, where the former president lay sick for many weeks, on June 1 and intended to go to their summer home as soon as Mr. Cleveland had gained sufficient strength to travel.

Mr. Cleveland was seventy-one years old on March 18 last. During the past winter Mr. Cleveland kept close to his home in Princeton until the approach of his birthday when he went to Lakewood with his family. He was a trustee of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of this city and up to the time of his going to Lakewood had attended to correspondence in connection with his duties for that society.

After he went to Lakewood, however, he discontinued that work and it soon developed that Mr. Cleveland was suffering from an attack of digestive trouble, which he had experienced many times before.

The surviving cabinet officers of President Cleveland are Secretary of State Richard Olney; Secretaries of the Treasury John G. Carlisle and Charles S. Fairchild; Secretaries of the Interior D. R. Francis, Hoke Smith and W. F. Vilas; Attorney General Judson Harmon; Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson, of Detroit.

Princeton, N. J., June 26.—Without eulogy, sermon or song, but with the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church, Grover Cleveland was buried Friday afternoon in Princeton cemetery beside the ivy-covered grave of his daughter Ruth. Although President Roosevelt was in attendance, as well as Governor Fort, of New Jersey; Governor Hughes, of New York; Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and other distinguished personages, they did not attend in an official capacity, but as friends of the late ex-president.

The last honors paid the dead statesman were strictly private, both at "Westland," the Cleveland residence, and at the cemetery, in compliance with the wishes not only of Mrs. Cleveland, but those of Mr. Cleveland as well.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson I.—Third Quarter, For July 5, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. viii, 10-22. Memory Verses 10, 20—Golden Text, Prov. viii, 15—Commentary Prepared by Rev. Dr. M. J. Edwards.

In turning back to the Old Testament for six months to learn of the same Israel and the same Lord of whom we have been reading in the gospel by John and very similar treatment of the Lord by Israel, for in all ages man is the same in his sin and the Lord is the same in His unchanging love and long suffering. Israel could say truly, and they will yet say again as never before, "The Lord is our God, the Lord is our King, the Lord is our Lord; He will have us" (Isa. xlii, 20). By His own great power He brought them out of the iron furnace of Egypt at the appointed time according to His word to Abraham. He bore with them and cared for them forty years in the wilderness and in due time placed them in the land of Canaan. Then He gave them judges for about 450 years until Samuel the prophet. Afterward they desired a king (Acts xiii, 17-21), that they might be like other nations (verses 7, 19, 20), and thus they rejected the Lord as their King and forsook Him, preferring not to be the Lord's own peculiar people. He had never dealt with any nation as He had with Israel. He bare them on eagle's wings and brought them unto Himself that they might be His people (II Sam. vii, 23, 24; Ex. xli, 4, 5), yet they wanted of Him and rebelled against Him and rejected Him. How like to the record in John 1, 11, and xix, 15, "He came unto His own, and His own received Him not;" "The chief priests answered, We have no king but Caesar." The carnal mind ever since sin entered the world has been at enmity against God, always manifest in greater or less degree. Israel's sin at this time is reproduced in the great majority of professing Christians today. They are unwilling to be wholehearted for God, preferring conformity to this world, even though it means eternal and irreparable loss. Samuel felt evidently that the elders of Israel should thus set him aside, or at least act on that line, but he did the wise thing, as was his wont—he told the Lord all about it. The Lord comforted him as Jesus did His disciples long afterward when He said: "The servant is not greater than his Lord. If they have persecuted Me, they will also persecute you" (John xv, 20). The Lord assured Samuel that He (Jehovah) was the rejected one and not Samuel. He authorized Samuel to tell Israel that He would give them a king, but he gave them fair warning, commissioning him to tell them what kind of a man he would be. So Samuel told all the words of the Lord unto the people (verse 10), just as he had told the words of the people unto the Lord.

In the former case he acted as prophet, the Lord's spokesman, and in the latter as priest representing the people before God. The people were warned that the king they desired would surely oppress them and that they would be sorry they had asked for him (II Sam. x, 1-19). They were told that he would take about all that belonged to them. Notice six times in these verses just referred to, "He will take, he will take." Their sons and daughters and fields and grain and servants and flocks he would appropriate to himself. This they were plainly told, and yet they insisted that they would have a king as to be like other nations. So it was written long afterward, "I gave thee a king in mine anger and took him away in My wrath" (II Sam. xlii, 11). Does it not seem as if Jesus had this in mind when He said: "I am come in My Father's name and ye receive Me not. If another shall come in His own name, him ye will receive" (John vi, 43). This other will be the antichrist spoken of in Dan. xi, 36, 45; II Thess. ii, 8-10. It would seem monstrous that men in any measure sane should choose a man—a mortal, selfish man—who would take everything they had from them, instead of the Living God, who gave them all things richly to enjoy. He gave them bread from heaven during forty years in the wilderness, and all the flesh they could eat, and water from the rock, and the land of Canaan with all its riches, as set forth in Deut. xi, 9-12, and His continual presence and constant care and His power and His wisdom. It would seem unbelievable that men would turn their backs upon such an Almighty Friend and choose a robber if we had not read that these same people in after years coolly and deliberately rejected Jesus of Nazareth, their Messiah, the Jehovah of the Old Testament, and chose a robber and murderer in His stead. Men are now persistently and deliberately and consciously choosing the pleasures of sin for a season and refusing the kingdom of glory, choosing a murderer and destroyer and liar, who blinds their eyes to the light of the glorious gospel, rather than the Lord of life and glory, who gave Himself a sacrifice for our sins, even for the sins of the whole world. The things seen and temporal are more to the great majority than all the things unseen and eternal, and like Israel in the days of Samuel, they cry for something visible and tangible.

Men of faith, on the contrary, like those mentioned in Heb. xi, of whom Samuel is one, believe God.

Old Dances in Old Times.

In Edward Scott's "Dancing in All Ages" are some curious details about the dances of old England. "Joan Sanderson" was a "jolly dancer" in Mr. Scott's definition, for before it was ended each lady had kissed all the gentlemen twice, and each man had been equally enterprising. Mary Stuart danced the "Volta," though "not so high and so disposedly" as Elizabeth. In King Charles' time people danced "Trenchmore," the "Cushion Dance," "Omnium Gatherum" and "Holte cum Tolle." "All in a Garden Green," "Gathering of Peaseblossoms," "Lumps of Pudding," "Under and Over," "The Bath," "The Slaughter House" and "Have at Thy Coat, Old Woman," are dances not quite so old.

A Mild Laxative For Baby's Bowels

Doctor Feltz Out Gorge of Pills and Cathartics. "Bills, purgatives, and violent cathartics are dangerous when given to children of delicate constitution," says a well known doctor. "Neither should they be given medicines containing arsenic for stomach or bowel troubles." It would be well for mothers to keep up nursing and keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for baby and himself and for any member of the family that has been afflicted with a stomach trouble. It is safe and pleasant to take and has cured old people of chronic constipation, and dyspepsia of many years standing, and yet is harmless for a baby as many a happy mother can testify. It brings natural daily movements, sweetens the stomach, adds to proper action. The children like it. Life Weather, the popular hotel man in Indianapolis, says: "The children like it. We all use it and would not be without it in the house." Mrs. Mattie Crouch, Tippecanoe, Tenn., cured her 5 months' old baby of indigestion with it. Mrs. Almon Willis, Jamaica, Vt., says it saved her baby's life. Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, Fresno, Calif., says she can't keep house without it. It cured her little son of rheumatism and stomach trouble. Mrs. Flora Hebrew, Bow Creek, Kan., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured my little girl of constipation. I cannot recommend your splendid remedy too highly for children." Mrs. Mary E. Young, Burlington, Ia., writes: "I cheerfully recommend it to mothers as the best laxative for children." Mrs. Alice Miller, Canal Dover, Ohio, has used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with splendid results as a laxative for children. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Pepsin Syrup Co., 361 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to any one who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For

There is only one effective way to Stop Indigestion

Most digesters rely on pepsi.
But pepsi digests albumen only.
It is but one of the elements needed.

Starch, fats and phosphates, each require something else.

Then half of digestion is done in the bowels, and pepsi can't do that.

It requires many ingredients to form a perfect digester, and they must be in liquid form.

Kodol has all those ingredients.

It does all that the stomach does—all that the bowels do. It digests any food—any mixture of foods—completely.

Partial digesters give only halfway help.

There is always some food left to get hard, and irritate the stomach lining.

That irritation, even though slight, continues the inflammation.
That is why the stomach fails to regain its strength.

A weak stomach is like a lame ankle. Use or abuse it and it will never get well.

But give it complete rest—do all its work for it—and Nature very quickly restores its normal powers.

You can't do this by dieting, for there is always some food that doesn't digest.

You can't do it with partial digesters.

You can't do it with tonics, for they spur the stomach to but temporary activity.

It must be done with Kodol.

The results then are instant and complete. Every food that you eat is digested. You get your full nourishment, yet the stomach gets absolute rest.

Our Guarantee

On the first dollar bottle of Kodol
your druggist gives a signed guarantee. If it fails to do all we claim,
your druggist returns your money.

You take no risk whatever. This $1.00 bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle. Made by Cleveland was like Mayor Cleveland. He was a business governor. It was said of him that the state as he would have a right to mastering the details of business so that he could run it the same writer declares that he the state officials practice it. He sed to the legislature until the legislative service reform.

Grover Cleveland was elected by the politicians in his
ty. But his reputation among the people as a plain, practicable, business man had grown so wide that he the summer of 1884, before the tion of his gubernatorial term, he was an insistent call for him to cept that "high political position" which in the letter to his brother had declared was not in his lieved Cleveland was honest and which he believed to be right. He go convention of 1884. His opponent being James G. Blaine.

Cleveland received a small the popular vote and an electorate of thirty-seven. For the since 1860 the Democratic carried the presidential man who two years before ty, a painstaking, laboring ponderous, heavy set had entered the lists and of the captured

nate with congress. Since then many flags have been returned.
President Cleveland in his message to congress in December, 1887, enunciated his relaxed proposal of tariff for revenue only. This was the most notable incident of his first term in office. The message, submitted on the eve of the presidential nominations of 1888, amazed the nation
by its bold stand against the so-called protective tariff. Mr. Cleveland was known to be in a willing mood for renomination.
His fearlessness in thus daring to alienate that large wing of the Democracy which believed in a high tariff for the support of American industries was greeted by the British press with profound admiration.
Eminent political economists in the United States declared this message to be one of the ablest of presidential papers. The president's stand for reduction of the tariff on a "revenue only"
basis was the subject of much discussion pro and con for many years following.

Mr. Cleveland received the Democratic nomination for president in 1888, but was defeated in the election by Benjamin Harrison of Indiana. Many Democrats attributed his defeat to his tariff message of 1887. After Mr.
Harrison's election and the consequent triumph of criticism from members of the president's own party Mr. Cleveland sent for the speaker of the house of representatives, John G. Carlisle, a Democrat, and said to him, "If every other man in the country abandons this issue, I shall stick to it."
Accordingly in the last message of his term he "stuck to" his stand on the tariff problem, urging congress in 1889 to enact laws in line with his suggestions of the winter before.
Cleveland retired to private life
March 4, 1889, and settled in New York city for the practice of the law.

MR. CLEVELAND AS PRESIDENT IN 1888.

He was not particularly active in politics after his retirement.
In the meantime history was making.
Harrison and high tariff were in the saddle. The McKinley act of 1890, increasing the tariff on wool, tin plate and other products, was followed by high prices for the poor man's necessaries of life. Events rapidly were shaping themselves toward a vindication of Grover Cleveland. The ex-president attended to his law work, and the people did the rest. With the politicians, as of old, mostly in opposition, the independent Democratic voters forced the selection of Cleveland delegates to the national Democratic convention of 1892, held in June. "Four more years of Grover" was the campaign cry. Though the New York delegation opposed him, Mr.
Cleveland was nominated for the presidency the third time in succession on the first ballot. President Harrison again was his Republican opponent.
Cleveland was elected, receiving 277 electoral votes against 145 for Harrison and 22 for General Weaver, Populist.

The Second Presidency of Grover Cleveland

His Fight For the Gold Standard, His Bond Issues, His Defiance of Great Britain Over the Venezuela Boundary, His Support of Palmer and Buckner and His Home Life In Princeton.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND DUCK HUNTING AT SEVENTY.

After an in-term of four years in private life Grover Cleveland returned to Washington and was inaugurated president of the United States on March 4, 1893, for the second time. The Cleveland of 1893 was very different from the Cleveland of 1885. When he began his first term
he was altogether
new to Washington and to national politics. He was practically an untried man in the wider field of statesmanship and was but just completing his forty-eighth year. In 1893, at the very mature age of fifty-six, Mr. Cleveland had enjoyed a distinction unique in American history—that of being elected president, renominated and defeated and again renominated and elected. He had served one full term, with all the experience in national and international politics which that service entailed.
In another and more popularly interesting sense the second advent of Cleveland was different. He was now a thorough family man. The Clevelands had a baby, little Ruth, born in New York Oct. 3, 1891. Her death a few years after her parents' retirement to Princeton, N. J., was a matter of general regret. Mrs. Cleveland during the second term further endeared herself to the American people.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND AND HIS SON RICHARD.

Though Mr. Cleveland never possessed in a very appreciable degree that quality which we call personal magnetism, he was undoubtedly the most popular American of his time when he began his second term as president.
When he closed that term and retired permanently to private life he was one of the most unpopular Americans for the time being. He had cut loose from his party and become that amazingly unusual thing—an executive independent of the powers which made him.
The great struggle for the maintenance of the gold standard against bimetallism which signalized the campaign of 1896 was taking definite shape. The president set himself obstinately toward maintaining the gold standard.
In the summer of 1893 he called an extra session of congress and pushed through the repeal of the Sherman act of 1890, under which the government was required to purchase large quantities of silver bullion. The Democracy at large was amazed and enraged at this action, though a very considerable portion of it stood with the president on the issue.
To maintain the gold reserve President Cleveland from time to time made large issues of government bonds. The placing of some of these bonds with New York bankers aroused a cyclone of adverse criticism. Mr. Cleveland, of course, was in the exact storm center. Several years after his retirement Mr. Cleveland wrote a statement explaining the bond sales, defending his own course and declaring that he recalled these executive acts with the greatest satisfaction.

MAN ON THE CORNER

On the morning of June, just about early dawn, in his infinite goodness, he took from our midst the spirit of Mrs. McCary, to the realm of glory. She leaves a very young son, and five children to mourn. She was about 61 years of age. At the age of nine she was a member of the Baptist church, and she had been a consistent member ever since. In the church she was ever found ready to do something that would glorify and uplift the church.

She had been in delicate health for some time, and almost an invalid for three years. She had lived in the community (Sardis) for many years, and all who knew her and feel sad at her departure, were laid to rest in the cemetery. We can only hope that her soul is at rest. Her husband, Mr. McCary, was a very good man, and he says to you that he will be reunited in heaven. The death in Christ is only a sleep. Their beds are made of ivory, and they shall rise and joyfully meet when he comes in that glory. We shall see him again. Then together we will hail the King Emmanuel in the air. Let us hail the mighty King, who reigns in glory, and who will give us life everlasting. Amen.

REV. I. W. WILLIAMS, Editor, W. Va., testifies to the fact that this is a very good medicine, and it is free to say that Foley's Kidney Pills will do all that is claimed for them. Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, July 3, 1908

Editor Banner—I wish to say a few words in reply to one of the scraps of Bubbly Creek who signs his name as L. B. Pounds. I guess that he was raised on Bubbly Creek where he could get plenty of scraps to eat from the slaughter pens and didn't have to work for his living. Now I think it is time for John Brown to baptize Pounds in Bubbly Creek again. Now, Mr. Editor, there is not one word of argument in Pounds's letter. He has taken up nearly a whole column in abusing the Democrats. Where is the Republican or Populist that hasn't got friends or relatives who are Democrats? Who is the man that would vote for one that would write such rot about their friends without cause? If he would spend the time in his office that he spends in planning such letters, there would not be so much land advertised for sale.

Now, Bro. Pounds, when you get through baptizing your candidates in Bubbly Creek we would be glad to see you and see how you look and I don't doubt but what you will look worse than you had been passed down through Bubbly Creek after November election is over. A FRIEND

Winfield, Ala., July 4, 1908
Editor Banner—Will you be so kind as to give me a small space in your valuable paper to give you a few dots from west Alabama. Crops are late in this country and is generally a poor rough country with a little level land. We have had some rain but not a good season.

This is a stock law country and I don't like it as well as some of your correspondents that used to write in the Banner. If some of those stock law men have a good farm, handy to school and church, and wants to exchange it for a good farm in this country and live in the full enjoyment of the stock law, if they will write me I will accommodate them to their wish if we can agree on the trade.

I want some reader of the Banner to write and tell me the price of level land in the Collins Chapel community if there is any to sell and tell what kind of school and church facility they have, also someone from Dixie to give the same information and would like to see such communications from other parts of the county.

Respectfully,
J. L. DRIVER.

FIDDLERS' CONVENTION.

There will be an old time Fiddlers' Convention at Clanton on Friday night, July 24, beginning promptly at 7:00 o'clock. Fiddlers will be here from adjoining counties. Prizes will be awarded to the best and sorriest among the bunch. Old time music only will be played. No charges of any kind will be made as the entertainment will be given for revelry and not for revenue. The public from the four corners is urged to come. The program will be published later. Fiddlers who have taken first and second prizes heretofore, will not be allowed to participate. Old fashioned dance after prizes are awarded.

Twenty-Five Cents is the Price of Peace! The terrible itching and smarting incident to certain skin diseases, is almost instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Salve. Price, 25 cents. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

An unfortunate occurrence took place near the Soldiers' Home at Mountain Creek last Friday. A boy of about twelve or fourteen years of age named Moore had a gun over his shoulder going out into the yard to kill a chicken, when the gun was discharged and his younger brother, aged seven, received the shot into his body and was instantly killed. The poor little fellow's birthday was on the 4th and he was buried on that day.

Brookwood, Ala., July 6, 1908
Editor Banner—May I have space in this issue of the dear old Banner to tell some of the recent happenings. Our picnic on the Fourth, near Brookwood, was enjoyed by all; there was plenty of dinner on the ground. Mr. L. W. Wagoner and Miss Florence Kizlar of Yolande and Misses Roberta and Mollie Wagoner, and Messrs. J. V. and R. B. Patterson of Brookwood and several others attended. We wished for some of the Clanton people to be there to eat fried chicken. All were in smiles and wished for another day like that. Two BLUE EYES.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

MANY KILLED IN PARAGUAY.

Revolution is Said to Have Broken Out Recently.

Buenos Aires, July 4.—The latest advices received from private resources at Formosa, in the northeastern part of Argentina, say that there has been sanguinary fighting in the streets of Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, where a revolution is said to have broken out recently and that hundreds of persons have been killed or wounded.

Edward C. O'Brien, the United States minister to Paraguay and Uruguay, and Harry B. Owsley, Jr., secretary of the legation, both are in Asuncion.

Communication by telegraph and telephone with Asuncion has been cut and consequently there are conflicting rumors of a sensational character current here.

ROBBERED OF HIS TEETH.

Railroad Brakeman Happens to Quite a Novel Adventure.

Omaha, Neb., July 4.—T. C. Roberts, a Northwestern railroad brakeman, on Thursday had eight of his teeth filled with gold.

While on his run Roberts discovered a gang of hungry tramps stealing a ride. He attempted to force them from the train and his new teeth showed brightly in the lantern's light. The tramps captured the brakeman, and while a number jumped on him, others relieved him of the shining teeth, using a pair of pliers in doing the work.

The hoboes jumped from the train as it was entering the railroad yards at the outskirts of Omaha and took Roberts' teeth with them.

Driven From Their Homes.

Chicago, July 4.—Members of more than fifty families were driven from their homes Friday by a fire which destroyed the Schultz dance and lodge hall at 99-100 West Blackhawk street. Two firemen were overcome by smoke and a number of other firemen narrowly escaped death when a gallery from which they were fighting the flames collapsed and they were precipitated to the floor. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Charter for Building From Asheville, N. C., to South Carolina Line.

Asheville, N. C., July 4.—The Asheville and Carolina railway company, with principal office in this city, has been chartered with a capital stock of $200,000, and authority to construct an electric railway from Asheville to the South Carolina line, a distance of thirty-five miles.

The company will take over the franchise of the Asheville and Hendersonville railway company. Work on the construction of the road will begin about the middle of August. The same company has been granted a charter with a capital stock of $100,000, in the state of South Carolina, with authority to construct an electric railway from Greenville, S. C., to the North Carolina boundary, a distance of forty miles.

The South Carolina section of the road will be known as the Greenville and Carolina railway. The two roads will come together at the border line and form one continuous line of electric railway from Greenville, S. C., to Asheville, N. C. The power plant for the road will be located in the Blue Ridge mountains, 20 miles from Asheville. The line will run through a most picturesque section, and it is estimated that it will be 30 miles shorter than the present railway route from Asheville to the city of Greenville, S. C.

TREASURY SITUATION.

Secretary Cortelyou Speaks of the Government's Finances.

Washington, July 4.—Secretary Cortelyou gave out a statement regarding the treasury situation in which he says that the deficit of $60,000,000 shown by the treasury statements is more apparent than real because of the antiquated bookkeeping system which is being overhauled, and contending that "considering the ordinary receipts of the government," there is really a surplus.

The secretary says that the items included under ordinary expenditures are such as might properly be covered by the issue of bonds instead of paid out of current revenues, the latter method constituting an exhibition of financial strength which shows only an imaginary deficit. The statement of the secretary also says that the items included under ordinary expenditures are such as might properly be covered by the issue of bonds instead of paid out of current revenues, the latter method constituting an exhibition of financial strength which shows only an imaginary deficit.

NOTED AUTHOR DEAD

Joel Chandler Harris Is Called to the Beyond.

KNOWN AS "UNCLE REMUS"

In the Death of Mr. Harris, the South May Lose One of Its Most Brilliant Contributors to Literature and a World-Wide Reputation.

Atlanta, July 4.—Joel Chandler Harris, journalist and author of the Uncle Remus stories, died Friday night at 5 o'clock at his home in West End.

The noted author was surrounded by all the members of his family, who had realized for several days that death was inevitable. He was totally unconscious for twelve hours preceding his death.

Realizing that the end was near, Uncle Remus was genial and resolute. He made no attempt to conceal his belief concerning himself from the members of his family. His irresistible humor, his indomitable good spirits never deserted him. The old playful, whimsical manner in his intercourse with the family was preserved until he sank into final unconsciousness.

Friends Were Anxious.

Since the first publication of the news that Uncle Remus was desperately ill, his friends throughout the city and in all parts of the country have besieged the house for news of the patient's condition.

During his life-time many of the most notable people of the world have sought the quiet little home in West End to see the genial philosopher, and the gentle humorist whose work has so enriched American literature. His house was one of the places of national interest. To men of every profession and degree of prominence made pilgrimage while in Atlanta.

During the past two days hundreds of callers have visited "Snap Bean Farm" in sadness. Scores of telegrams from friends and admirers all throughout the state and nation have been received containing expressions of sympathy and affection.

Joel Chandler Harris had his first taste of newspaper life on the Countyman, a weekly newspaper published by Joseph Addison Turner, on his plantation 3 miles from Eatonton, in the county of Putnam.

After leaving the plantation he was engaged in newspaper work in Savannah, Macon and New Orleans. He practiced law at Forsyth, Ga., at the same time doing editorial work.

The "Uncle Remus" Series.

He joined the staff of the Atlanta Constitution in 1876, and it was through his connection with this paper that he entered upon the work which has made him famous wherever the English tongue is spoken.

In the files of the Atlanta Constitution will be found much of his best work, both serious and humorous. In addition to his able editorial contribution there appear the first of the "Uncle Remus" stories, which were later collected and published in book form.

Before Uncle Remus took up this work a series of dialect stories by Sam W. Small, who was writing under the sobriquet "Old Si," had been a regular and attractive feature of the paper.

When these ceased Captain Bryan P. Howell, then editor of the paper, urged Mr. Harris to carry on the feature. The latter demurred, declaring he had never done any dialect writing in his life. Captain Howell insisted, however, and told Mr. Harris he could easily make a big success of the work. Racking his brains, Mr. Harris thought of one of the old folk-lore stories that had been told him on the plantation in Putnam county. This he related to writing, using the negro dialect, and published it under the name of Uncle Remus. Other stories followed. They made an instantaneous hit.

Known Throughout World.

The series began at that time have since been read throughout the civilized world. From them the author received a generous return in money, in addition to the income from his regular newspaper and magazine work. But better than the material reward, he received the affection of thousands of little children whom he had made happy.

REVOLUTIONARY MANIFESTO.

Thousands of Copies Have Been Circulated in Mexico.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 3.—A copy of a Mexican revolutionary manifesto, dated at this city May 15, and bearing the signatures of Ricardo Flores Magón, Antonio I. Villarreal, Enrique Flores Magón, Liberto Rivera, Manuel Sarabia, and Praxedis Guerrero has been found here and on translation proves to be an appeal to the Mexican people to start the great fight for freedom.

The first three mentioned of the signers of this document are at present in the county jail charged with violations of the neutrality laws of the United States, and Sabria was recently taken to Tucson, Ariz., for trial on a similar indictment.

The manifesto declares that "one man has controlled the entire destiny of the nation" for thirty years; that the soldiery has been organized for the sole purpose of massacring the working people; that "our national flag has been given to foreign adventurers," and ends with "Mexicans, to arms. Reform, liberty and justice."

It is stated that thousands of copies of this appeal were smuggled into Mexico before the outbreak of the present trouble there.

SOUTHERN PROGRESS.

$30,000,000 Spent in Road and Street Improvement.

Baltimore, July 3.—A review in this week's issue of the Manufacturers' Record covering the road and street improvements of the cities and counties of the south for the past six months, shows the value of this work to be approximately $30,000,000. Of this sum $4,000,000 represents contracts which have been awarded and construction under way, $15,500,000 bonds voted and money appropriated or available, and $10,500,000 improvements contemplated and for most of which dates have been set for voting on the issuance of the necessary bonds to carry on the work, and which it is fair to assume nearly all will be favorably acted upon.

Continued at this rate for the rest of the year, this would mean an authorization of an outlay of $50,000,000 during 1908 for street and road improvement, but even if no additional work is authorized the showing is very remarkable and noteworthy, and one which not only indicates the appreciation of Southern communities of the benefits to be derived from modern public improvements, but also evidences their determination to secure them.

DYNAMITE HAS LITTLE EFFECT.

Frisco Road Has Elephant on Hands in Way of Hugs Rock.

Brownwood, Tex., July 3.—The Frisco road has an elephant on its hands about a mile south of town in the way of a huge rock on the side of a mountain which is gradually sliding toward the track.

Superintendent Drake, of the road, has had a force of men at work for two days in an effort to relieve the situation, but dynamite has so far only made a few corners disappear.

Since the recent rains the rock has moved some 30 feet down the mountain side and about 20 feet more it will go crushing down, destroying all in its way.

Fire in Royal Opera House.

Berlin, July 3.—Fire broke out in the Royal Opera house Friday, having caught from a plumber's furnace used in the fourth gallery. The roof of the old structure was seen blazing, but the firemen extinguished the flames before more than a part of the roof had been destroyed. While the damage will amount to but a few thousand dollars, it is probable that the opening of the opera house, set for August 16th, will be delayed.

Chicago, July 3.—On account of the local option laws in so many counties in the state of Illinois, buffets in nearly all railroad cars will be closed. The order of the Pullman company will affect its buffets on all roads in the state of Illinois.

ORCHARD ESCAPES

His Sentence May Be Life Imprisonment.

Butte, Idaho, July 3.—The board of pardons Wednesday recommended the sentence of Orchard, who was under sentence for the murder of Steenberg, to be life imprisonment.

Orchard was arrested for the assassination of Steenberg at Caldwell, Idaho, December 30, 1906, and was later, while confined in the Butte penitentiary, confessed the crime.

McFarland, a well known attorney at the same time serving as one of the officers of the Western Miners.

As a result of his confession, M. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, and D. Pettibone were arrested and brought to Butte to face charge of murder.

John Simpkins, another member of the Federation, was also arrested. He is still a fugitive. Harvest and those were acquitted after trials in which Orchard was the witness of a wholesale assassination.

Orchard pleaded guilty to the first degree in the prosecution of the case. The sentence of death was recommended by the jury.

Wood recommended that the pardons committee be notified that he was firmly convinced that Orchard had told the whole and true at the trial of Harvest and those, and that he was therefore entitled to clemency. The board, consisting of Governor, Attorney General, and the action acted on the recommendation of Judge Wood, made at the sentencing Orchard.

Orchard to the last was having the sentence life imprisonment.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 12, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. x. 17-27.
Memory Verse, 24—Golden Text, II
Sam. xiii. 33—Catechism, Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1907, by American Bible Society.)
Milep, first mentioned in Gen. xxxi.
49, is at least suggestive of God's watchful care, as we learn from that chapter. The name is used seven times in I Sam. vii, where we see not only His watchful care, but also the great deliverance which He wrought for them as they humbled themselves before Him. In the lesson today the people are reminded that the King whom they had asked for and whom God had agreed to give them might be publicly chosen by the people themselves, evidently by lot, selecting thus the tribe and then the family and then the man (verse 20, 21). See also the same plan in Josh. vii, 16-18. God approved of this way and guided His people by it (Lev. xvi. 8; Num. xvi. 66, 67; Prov.
xvi. 33). While the people seemed to be deciding the matter it was really the Lord's decision and choice (verse 24).

Turning to the special lesson verses, we notice that Samuel, having gathered the people, reminded them how the Lord God had brought them out of Egypt and delivered them from all their oppressors and that they were that day rejecting God, who Himself had saved them out of all their adversities and tribulations (verses 18, 19). They were redeemed that they might glorify their God and magnify His name before other nations and show to them how great a God they had, even the only living and true God, in order that others might learn to know and trust Him too. But now they turn from their high calling and descend to the level of the nations before whom they were called to honor Jehovah. How sad and sinful and heartbreaking to Jehovah it all was! Hear Him after He had borne long years with them as He calls heaven and earth to witness, "I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me" (Isa. i. 2, 3). To us He says, "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption" (Eph. iv. 30-32), for we are here for Him that the world may believe on Him and know Him. When we live to please or magnify self, then we are saying that we prefer to be like other people, to be conformed to this present world, and thus we reject Him.

When Saul had been elected that day he could not be found, for with a seeming meekness or humility he had hidden himself. They inquire of the Lord, for this was Samuel's way and David's way and should be our way always, according to Prov. iii. 5, 6.
The Lord revealed his hiding place, and they ran and fetched him, and as he stood among them, head and shoulders above them all, no goodlier person in all Israel, the people shouted, "God save the king!" and Samuel said, "See ye him whom the Lord hath chosen" (verses 22-24 and chapter ix. 2). When any person or thing cannot be found, it is well to remember "He that is perfect in knowledge is with thee" (Job xxvi. 4), and consulting Him with all humility, if we have His anointing on our ears, we may hear His voice revealing the place of the lost person or thing. Many a time have I and others seen it proved, but we must be in His will and seek to magnify Him.

Samuel, having told the people the manner of the kingdom and written it in a book and laid it up before the Lord, sent all to their homes. Saul also going to his home. God raised up a band of friends who went with him, but there were some who despised him, and to these he was as though he had been deaf (verse 27, margin). See also Ps. xxxviii. 13, and let us so act when the occasion arises. Returning to the story in chapter ix of the way God provided and pointed out Saul to Samuel, we learn how in all the most ordinary events of daily life God is working out His purposes. On Saul's side of the story we simply see some lost asses and Saul and one of his father's servants out seeking them. After a long and unsuccessful search Saul urges that they return lest his father should be anxious for them instead of the asses. The servant suggested that as they were near a city, where lived a man of God, whose every word came to pass (verse 9), they should consult him before returning home, to which Saul consented. On Samuel's side, we read that the Lord had said to him,
"Tomorrow about this time I will send thee a man" (verse 16), and Samuel had accordingly made all preparation to welcome him. Now see the consummation, the arrival of the weary traveler, the welcome, the setting of the table, the night at Samuel's home, and his forth next morning of Saul and his servant, Samuel's evening communication to Saul, the anointing, the incidents which would happen as Saul went on his way and the saying which some of us are hearing so often and helpful in chapter x. i. "Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee." Let us believe that in the consummation of life, with all their discouragements,
God is leading us on to a kingdom.

Let us trust that the anointing was that He may whisper in our ears (Isa. li. 16) and that He may not need to knock us down before He can use us best. As to being chosen by Him, take comfort from what He says in
I. 4.

In Memory of Little Ole Belle Popwell

On Friday morning, June 26, 1908, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. A.
Popwell and carried away the pure white soul of their sweet little girl, the dear little one being about 18 months old and had just learned to walk and talk. We all know 'twas hard to give her up. She was a very devoted child to her parents and was cunning and sweet in all her little babyish ways. So we feel sure the Lord has taken her home to live with Him. Now, kind parents, do not weep, for your loss is heaven's gain. Just think of the mighty faith and glorious promises of the Gospel as the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Paul was a mighty planner and builder of churches and Apollos was an eloquent man and mighty in the Scriptures, and we imagine we can see him as he stands forth in the assembly of the brethren with the glory of God beaming in his face while he proclaims the everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ. May the great priest staff of the heavy hand that the rod of God go not down while you fight the battle till victory is won, and when you lay your armor by in the evening shade of life may peace, faith and hope shine upon you in the hour of death and the Star of Bethlehem guide you through the valley of the shadow of death to the bright shore of the New Jerusalem, where you will receive the welcome plaudit,
"Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Y. S.

"An honest working man, not a professional working man," is the manner in which the nominee of the Socialists for President of the United States is characterized by the gentleman who placed the name of Martin R. Preston before that body at its convention in New York.

Never having heard of the gentleman previously we are quite willing to believe the statement, although it appears the nominee is now serving a twenty-five years sentence for shooting a restaurant keeper in Goldfield, Nevada, during a strike three years ago.

But we confess that we do not understand the characterization. The honest, horny-handed son of toil is the admiration of all men, who love and respect him for his sturdy independence. Whatever his calling, whether he be farmer or electrician, plowman or puddler, "an honest man is the noblest work of God."

A professional working man is one who follows some useful calling, strictly speaking, one who labors with his hands. Unfortunately there is a large class of individuals, too lazy to work with their hands, who pose as laboring men by "working" the uninformed. They contrive to make a very good living at the expense of the hard working man who seems willing to support them, not for what they do—for that is not—but for what he hopes they may do.

We have some of that brand right here with us—men, who it is doubtful have ever done a day's honest work in their lives, but who manage to blindfold the people, and eke out a good living at their expense. They are men who, having nothing to lose, but everything to gain, take up some old worn-out political question, and by everlastingly striking up on the same string repeat the old tune, din it into the ears of the honest, hard working man and by its unmelodious sound seduce him into supporting their nefarious designs, which are only intended to support the "non-professional" working man. They offer absolutely nothing in return, but are only anxious to keep old sores open.

If every genuine working man in this county will only ask himself seriously who are the working men and who are the loafers, he will soon come to the conclusion who are his best friends and who he can rely upon. Talk is cheap, and most often worthless, it is action that counts and in time tells.

The Farmers' Summer School and Round-Up Farmers' Institute will be held at Auburn, Ala., July 29 to August 5, 1908.

Four years ago the city of Bessemer royally entertained the Alabama Press Association, and this year it proposes to outdo its former royal entertainment. After the annual session the Association will go to Brunswick, Ga., in a special train over the new A. B. & A. Railroad as the guests of the Chamber of Commerce of Bessemer, and a royal time is anticipated from start to finish.

All eyes are turned toward Denver where the National Democratic Convention is holding forth. It is generally conceded that William J. Bryan will be the nominee for President, but the Vice-Presidential nomination is pretty open.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING.
The adjourned educational meeting was called to order at the court house, Monday night, by the chairman, Mr. Tipton Mullins. The meeting proceeded to organize a society known as the Chilton County Educational Society and officers were elected as follows: Tipton Mullins, President, Dr. E. A. Matthews, Vice-President and Treasurer and M. D. Foshee, Secretary.

The Society adopted by-laws as were presented by the committee appointed at the previous meeting on constitution and by-laws. The first Tuesday night in each month was set as the time for the Society to meet.

The following new members were enrolled: Messrs. G. Higgins, W. A. Kemp, H. G. Reynolds, Judge Horn, and B. F. Higgins, Jr.

A motion was carried that the President nominate three trustees and that these three nominate the other six.

The following were appointed: Dr. E. A. Matthews, P. D. Wilson and W. I. Mullins. They ask that the Society give them until next Saturday night to report, and the Society adjourned until that time.

BURY THE TOMAHAWK.

Not by any means that I am called upon as arbitrator or referee, but as there is so much criticism and censure going on of late between the different political parties it would seem that a wayfarer man, though a fool, would conclude that it has but little influence in raising the standard of citizenship in our county for a man to say that all men differing with his ideas is corrupt. Would it not seem that instead of increasing the sentiment for good government that it would have a tendency to cast a shadow of dark that is ever seeking to cover up infamy? Would it not be well for us of Chilton county to take the lesson given of late by Mr. Roosevelt in his proclamation on the death of Mr. Cleveland? Was it not thought at a time by some that Mr. Cleveland was the most corrupt man in the United States? But now it comes that the present occupant of the White House suspends all business and engagements to pay honor to the great Grover Cleveland, and we feel that Mr. Roosevelt is a great man, a Christian gentleman.

Have not all good citizens of Chilton the same interest in the welfare of her citizenship, and if we are different in politics why be so severe in criticism? Do we not all make mistakes and blunders? I am glad that in some of those hard letters that the good people of Chilton are referred to. Then to which party do they belong, is there not some in both? I am not now a candidate, but if the time comes that I should see cause to become one, if I were voted for I would much rather it would be done from a consideration of merit I possessed than the demerit of the other fellow. Would it not be better for us all to do better and give less time in running the other fellow down? I think it a fine suggestion to discuss matters on higher plane. I do not change from being a Democrat because I have never heard any man condemn the theory of Democracy. Many times if things had a proper explanation they would cause great changes in the public mind. Here goes for peace on the right terms.

PRATTVILLE CONFERENCE.

The Prattville District Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened in the Methodist church at Clanton Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

After religious exercises conducted by the presiding Elder, Rev. J. B. Cumming, the roll was called and 14 pastors, and about 25 lay delegates answered to their names. Rev. D. B. Dismukes of Centerville was elected Secretary.

After fixing the hours for meeting and adjournment, and the bar of the conference the body authorized the presiding elder to name the committees.

Rev. P. M. Guthrie, pastor of West End, Montgomery, was introduced to the Conference.

Miss Long Davis, of Prattville, Epworth League Secretary for the district was introduced and made a stirring address on "The Importance of Young People's Work."

On spiritual condition of church: J. B. Stanley, B. M. Mason, and J. W. Killough.

On missions: Mack Featherstone, J. E. Holmes, C. S. Tally, W. D. Wagoner and J. W. Stanfield.

On church property: J. H. Dunklin, W. K. Whetstone and R. J. Mills.

On Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues: Ed Rolan, W. L. Lancaster and R. H. Lewis.

On finance: W. J. Beeland, Geo. B. Reed, J. H. Myrick, W. J. L. Welch, J. F. Price and J. E. McCas.

On education: W. L. Lancaster, J. M. Glenn and W. C. Trotter.

During the three days of the District Conference some fine sermons will be delivered by the visiting pastors, religious services being held every morning at 11 o'clock and every night at 8 o'clock.

The first sermon was preached Monday night by Rev. R. J. Mills of Verbena, and Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock Rev. C. S. Tally of Wetumpka, preached a most interesting sermon.

TO BAPTIST PREACHERS.

To every Baptist Preacher in Chilton county and those who have pastored in the county is this letter addressed.

I stand up to say that I, for one, am in favor of a better acquaintance, a stronger bond of union, closer fellowship and a more thorough and hearty co-operation among Baptist preachers in the things that pertain to the Lord's kingdom in Chilton county. Brethren, the Lord has laid the responsibility of leadership upon us, and I feel the need of your sympathy, prayer and counsel in this great work committed to our hands.

Some one has said "there is strength in unity." Solomon declares that in the multitude of counsel there is wisdom. What say you brethren to a preachers' meeting this summer. Let us come together in some convenient place and hold an informal meeting among ourselves. Just heart to heart talks about our different fields and personal difficulties in our work. We are all interested in the Lord's cause and are anxious to do the best work possible and an exchange of thought and method of work will broaden our views, increase our sympathy to each other and make us more efficient in leadership and more helpful to each other and to our churches.

There are about thirty-six ordained preachers in Chilton county and how I long to see these noble and self-sacrificing men organized in the work of the Lord. I trust and pray that every Baptist preacher who reads these lines will interest himself in this movement and write me his opinion of the same by return mail and suggest a time and place to hold the meeting and go to work for it in right good earnest. Brethren, speak out by letter or through the paper; any way to bring us together for our mutual good and the glory of our risen Lord.

May riches of grace be showered upon each one of you in your work and may the Holy Spirit guide us all in this most important undertaking.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine froggists out of ten will recommend it when their opin-

other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be

When food fails to digest, you must Help the Stomach

It is like a lime acid.
It will never get well while you
use and abuse it.

But rest it completely and Nature
restores its strength.

You need a perfect digester.
Not papain alone, for papain di-gests albumen only.

There are starch and fats and phosphates which must be digested
too.

And half of digestion takes place in the bowels. You must supply
what is needed there.

It is not an easy matter to create a perfect digester. It has taken us years.

There are plenty of ways to digest part of the food, but that isn't sufficient.

A digester must deal with a mixture of foods.

It must do all that the stomach does when well, and all that the bowels do.

Kodol alone will do that.

If any food remains undigested,
it irritates the stomach lining.

The pain tells you that.
That is why the stomach fails
to recover—the irritation makes it impossible.

Kodol leaves no food undigested
—leaves nothing to cause irritation or pain.

The result is, the stomach gets
well very quickly.

Dieting is unnecessary.
The body requires a variety of food. If you starve it, some parts are robbed of their nourishment.

Eat what you need, and let Kodol digest it. For food will do more for weak stomachs than medicine.

The Merry Widow

By ALBERT PAYSON TERNUM

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY HENRY W. SAWYER

CHAPTER VI At Maxim's

MAXIM'S after midnight—the show restaurant wither sight-seeing Americans and other tourists flock and whose dimly machine made throbbed their solemnly believe to be a part and parcel of the Parisian life.

On the night of Sonia's garden party one group of men and women who entered the jolly restaurant were so different from the usual habitués of the place as to come in for not a few amused glances from their neighbors. They were Mme. Natalie Popoff, Mme. Nova Kovitch and Casandra and St. Siroche. The visit was Natalie's idea.

At Maxim's.

She had heard Danilo's wild speech of goodby to Sonia and his announcement that he was off to Maxim's. Hence the ambassador's wife, with a feeble yearning to atone in some way for the false position into which the widow had been thrust for her sake, had resolved to follow in the hope of securing a word in private with Danilo and setting matters right again.

Natalie had not confided her plan to her husband, and now as the party were ushered to a secluded table in an alcove she glanced at the riotous scene about her with a delighted nervousness. The delight vanished suddenly, however, and the nervousness waxed to a panic fear as a familiar voice smote upon her ear.

Popoff had just come in and was standing not ten feet away from the secluded table where his wife sat trembling.

"I want to see Prince Danilo at once," he said to the head waiter. "Has he arrived?"

"Not yet, sir," was the reply, "but he will be here very soon. There is a supper party waiting for him over there," waving to a tableful of gayly appareled girls with tired eyes.

"Really?" exclaimed the ambassador. "I'll just join them till he comes."

He toddled off to the distant table, where, to Natalie's jealous eye, he seemed to make himself at home with a phenomenal ease and quickness. He was scarce seated when Danilo strode in. The whole table rose to give the prince noisy greeting.

"Why, hello, your excellency!" cried Danilo. "This is queer company for a monument of respectability like yourself to wander into!"

"I came only to see you," protested the ambassador, drawing him aside. "I was bound I'd come here and wait till you appeared!"

"Oh, I see," cut in the prince, thoroughly enjoying his confusion. "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread!"

"I didn't rush in," fumed the ambassador; "I crept here in a meanly cab, and I sneaked into the place like a pickpocket, for fear some one would recognize me. I sacrificed myself to my country. Suppose my wife should hear of it! I came to impress you, to cast myself on your mercy, to beg you once more to prevent the widow from—"

"I must see his excellency," insisted a portly man behind her, his eyes gleaming with mischief. "I have a letter for him, and I must see him at once!"

"My dear Nova Kovitch," interrupted the ambassador, "it is necessary to hunt for me with a brass band. Couldn't you?"

"I'm sorry to interrupt you," answered Nova Kovitch. "But being a diplomat, I must see the ambassador. It seemed so important, and I—"

"Popoff told the story of her and read aloud.

"If I had my money, twenty million are allowed to have married me as a bankrupt country."

"That's right," continued the ambassador, turning to the young man in melodramatic tones. "You are right up to you! You are country people to you to see me! You are the widow's last hope. Money the widow and—"

"I'll marry you!" declared Danilo. "To the death with me! I'm done with all this drama of life and all that business. I'm free, and I'm going to make a night of it."

He paused and stood, silent, dumfounded. Down the little flight of stairs leading into the room a woman was advancing alone.

"Sonia!" exclaimed Danilo. "With a word of excuse to the others, he hurried across and met the widow as she reached the foot of the steps."

"You're here," he muttered in horrified wonder—"here alone?"

"Yes," replied Sonia coldly. "Is it any affair of yours?"

"First the summer house," he went on as in a daze, "then Maxim's."

"Quite so. Is that all you have to say?"

"No," he retorted; "I have one thing more. You should not marry De Jolidon."

"Because I—"

"Not! Why not, pray?"

He checked himself. She finished the sentence for him.

"Because you love me?" she suggested.

He broke into a discordant, miserable laugh.

"Don't laugh that silly way!" she reprimanded sharply.

"I am sorry you don't like it," he observed. "It's the only way I know."

"Then don't laugh at all. The laugh is on my side, anyway."

"On your side?"

"Yes. You are angry at what happened this evening. But it wasn't I who was in the summer house with M. de Jolidon."

"No," he retorted; "I have one thing more. You should not marry De Jolidon."

"Because I—"

"Not! Why not, pray?"

He checked himself. She finished the sentence for him.

"Because you love me?" she suggested.

He broke into a discordant, miserable laugh.

"Don't laugh that silly way!" she reprimanded sharply.

"I am sorry you don't like it," he observed. "It's the only way I know."

"Then don't laugh at all. The laugh is on my side, anyway."

"On your side?"

He paused and stood, silent, dumfounded. Down the little flight of stairs leading into the room a woman was advancing alone.

"Sonia!" exclaimed Danilo. "With a word of excuse to the others, he hurried across and met the widow as she reached the foot of the steps."

"You're here," he muttered in horrified wonder—"here alone?"

"Yes," replied Sonia coldly. "Is it any affair of yours?"

WARNED BY SPECTERS

One Person's Three Experiences With Ghosts.

THE SPIRIT OF HIS SISTER.

Now an Apparition From the Unseen World Aided the Brother in Deciding an Important Legal Question—The Phantom on the Grave.

Three times in my life, each instance separated by an interval of years, have the experiences here told been mine. I come of a family of different members of which have become visible at times those appearances which for want of a better name are known as "ghosts." It is at least possible that the superstition regarding the second sight of one born with a veil may have some foundation in scientific fact, for my uncle was thus veiled at birth, and all his life from infancy vacant space was peopled to him with forms, which he would describe so accurately in dress, appearance and manner that listeners would instantly recognize departed friends, gone over years before my uncle's birth in many instances.

It was not till he was a large boy that he realized that the forms seen by him were not visible to others. Pages could be written of his experiences, but I am not here to give hearsay evidence, but my own personal experiences, the sights seen with my own bodily vision.

The first instance was so early in my life that I do not recall it, but my mother relates the circumstances.

Our home was in Brooklyn, and we had gone for the summer to Greenfield Hill, Conn. I was so young that I still wore dresses and was in charge of a nursemaid who was in the habit of receiving visits from Annie, a girl of her own class, so that I was well acquainted with Annie.

She died suddenly and was buried in the country churchyard, but I was not told of her death, being considered too young to understand.

As I walked with my nurse past the cemetery one evening in the edge of dusk her superstitious horror can be imagined when I cried, pointing directly to Annie's grave: "Oh, Maggie, there is Annie! She is waving her hand for us to come over to her!"

I broke away from my nurse and ran to the cemetery fence. She caught me up and ran in a panic to the house, nor would she ever again pass the cemetery after dark.

The only idea in my mind was that of a familiar friend whom I had not seen for some time was at the most unromantic age possible to a boy—about thirteen. I was attending boarding school in Dedham, Mass.

A school friend, a boy of about my age, had left the school some days before for his home in the west, leaving in perfect health.

At about 9 in the evening I sat on the edge of the bed removing my shoes when the wall of the room seemed to part and open, showing the night outside, with the dim forms of the trees gently waving in the wind. As I sat spellbound at this strange sight in the rift of the wall against the background of the night stood my friend as I had last seen him, just as in life. He waved his hand to me in token of farewell, stood looking at me a moment, and gently the vision faded.

I said to my roommate, who had seen nothing: "Charlie is dead. I have just seen him." The next morning a telegram to the school said that he had died the night preceding.

In the third instance I had grown to manhood—a normal, healthy man, over six feet tall and weighing nearly 200 pounds. I am a civil engineer, the hardy outdoor life being far removed from dreams and morbid imaginings.

It was on one occasion necessary for me to consult a lawyer, and one evening I met the lawyer in his Boston office to talk over a matter of business.

In the course of the conversation he asked me a question which I was undecided about answering. I stopped a moment before replying, for consideration, lowering my eyes, and when I raised them, there stood behind the attorney a favorite sister, dead many years.

Her eyes were fixed on mine, her fingers on her lips. I instantly absorbed the idea conveyed by her suggestive pose and did not give the lawyer the information he asked. As it afterward proved, it was greatly to my interest not to do so.

The lawyer shivered slightly as the vision stood behind his chair and said that there was a draft through the room.

He never knew that the sensation of cold, conveyed to his person as a breath from an unseen world. Science has proved that light, sound and color are all the results of vibrations of matter or less rapidly. Some of these vibrations affect our organs and we are aware of their existence. But vibrations which affect our organs and we are not aware of their existence. Some of these vibrations affect our organs and we are not aware of their existence.

Naturally, I was not able to give a definite answer to the question. I was so young that I still wore dresses and was in charge of a nursemaid who was in the habit of receiving visits from Annie, a girl of her own class, so that I was well acquainted with Annie.

General Luke H. Wright, who succeeded as governor general of the Philippines, has been selected to be secretary of war in the cabinet. The appointment came as a tribute to the good work done by Wright in the Philippines. Wright himself is said to have been of the opinion of the Philippines. An important phase of the fact that General Wright is a native of the United States.

THE TURNED UP MUSTACHE.

It Originated in Spain at the Court of Philip IV.

The German emperor, William II., is generally regarded as the inventor of the turned up mustache. This is true only as far as introducing it as a fashion. It was invented at the court of Philip IV., about 1625. That monarch was the first to wear his mustache turned upward. From the Spanish court the fashion spread over all Europe. Charles I. of England, Philip's brother-in-law, and many members of the Austrian Hapsburgs adopted it. It came to Belgium and was introduced into Germany by the Spanish soldiers during the Thirty Years' war.

It was also found in Sweden as well as in France under Louis XIII. Under Louis XIV. the beard went out of fashion, and during the time of the French revolution the elegant world knew only clean shaven faces until the French revolution brought the mustache again into use. But nowhere except in its Spanish home did the mustache rise so extravagantly as with the German emperor and his imitators.

In Spain all kinds of artificial means, such as bandages and coverings, were employed to compel the mustache to keep this unnatural upward position, and in looking at the paintings of Velasquez or Murillo one can easily understand that without such coercive measures a true full blooded Spaniard could never have realized his ideal mustache.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Word Post.

Many persons wonder how we got the word "post" as applied to the mails. It comes from the Latin positus, which means placed. Therefore it is a fixed station. From this it came to mean an established conveyance of letters from one station to another, and the place from which the letters were sent out came to be called the postoffice. "Post-haste," a word used by Shakespeare, means speed in traveling, like that of post or a courier.—Chicago News.

A BURMESE RAT TRAP.

The Rodents Will Gladly Enter It and Cannot Get Out.

Rats may readily be induced to jump or drop into any receptacle, especially if it affords them adequate concealment, and they do this without any hesitating suspicion of their inability to reach the only existing outlet when the time for retreat approaches.

Thus traps on this principle may readily be designed and are obviously preferable to our rat traps where the animals are numerous.

In Burma, where the rats are a perfect pest, they use a jar trap, which is thus described by a traveler:

"The common Pegu jar I used was about one and a half or two feet deep and fourteen or fifteen inches broad, and a hole was punched in the shoulder just large enough for a rat to enter."

"There was about six or seven inches of paddy (rice in husk) in the jar, which was then buried to within about eight inches of the top. The mouth of the jar was then closed with a board and a stone."

"A quantity of old timber joints and straw were in the outboard and no end of rat holes everywhere around."

With this contrivance he caught seventy-two rats in one night. The rats can readily enter, but they cannot climb the smooth sides of the jar to escape.—London Family Herald.

To Renovate Velvet.

Dip a velvet brush in damp sand and rub gently. You will see the velvet come forth as fresh as though it were new. It is a cleaning process, too, for the slight moisture removes dust and the harsh action of the sandy friction gives new life to the nap which has been worn down.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.00.

"In 1902 I had a very severe attack of diarrhoea," says R. N. Farrar of Cat Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do any thing. On Mar 18, 1907, I had a similar attack, and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1902 believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. HINTS FOR FARMERS

Hops and Alfalfa.

The Kansas station reports over 800 pounds of gain on a lot of hops from a ton of alfalfa hay and a little less than 800 pounds of pork produced from an acre of alfalfa pasture. Alfalfa has proved to be worth three times as much as blue grass, and there are many who claim that this estimate could easily be doubled without fear of contradiction.

At the Nebraska station gains on hops pastured. A 3 per cent ration of corn means an amount of corn equal to 3 per cent of the body weight of the hog. By feeding a ration consisting of 75 per cent corn and 25 per cent alfalfa hay to 105 pound hogs in a dry lot at the same station gains were made at a cost of $3.33 per hundred pounds. Similar results are reported from other western stations where alfalfa is grown.—From Address by Professor Kinser, Kansas Experiment Station.

Treating Fenceposts.

The practice of treating fenceposts is becoming general among the best farmers. Common coal tar is melted in a large iron kettle and the end of the post immersed in the tar to a point a foot higher than it will be set. Tar can be melted in a small kettle and applied with a paint or whitewash brush.

A correspondent says his neighbor has tarred cedar posts along the roadside and ends of his 220 acre farm that were set twenty-five years ago and not to exceed one-half dozen have had to be replaced in that time, which proves beyond all argument that tarring or treating posts with preservative pays many times over. Fencepost timber is getting scarce, and the price of posts is advancing each year. The farmer should preserve his posts.—Farmers Advocate.

Farm Notes.

Cultivation helps to make up for lack of fertility.

Plenty of harrowing keeps the weeds down.

Weat ashes and bone dust are good fertilizers.

Never allow failure to make a pest-mist of you.

Remember to keep the garden free from weeds.

A good spreader will take care of all kinds of manure.

Manure is one of the important farm products.

The treeless dooryard lacks many natural beauties.

Feed is important, but the way it is fed determines the profits.—Kimball's Dairyman.

Making Alfalfa Hay.

Cut the alfalfa just as the flowers begin to show. Let lie on the ground until the leaves begin to wilt; then rake into a windrow and let stand until afternoon if the sun is hot; then put into cocks of seventy-five pounds and let cure. When a wisp of the hay twisted in the hands shows no sap, the hay is ready for the barn.

In making alfalfa hay all the leaves possible must be saved, as they are worth pound for pound nearly four times as much as the stems, and to avoid heating and spontaneous combustion the hay must become so dry before stacking that when a handful of stems is tightly twisted together no moisture can be squeezed out.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Prevention of Blackleg.

To prevent blackleg vaccination is the only remedy which the Oklahoma experiment station can suggest. The only instrument necessary to administer the vaccine is a good stout syringe, and with this any one with a little care can administer vaccine. Young cattle should be vaccinated once a year, in March or April and again in October. If they are to be vaccinated only once, the work should probably be done in the spring, as the disease is more prevalent then than at any other season.

When to Cut Alfalfa.

The Maryland experiment station recommends cutting alfalfa for hay when it is about one-tenth in bloom and before the young shoots which make the next crop have made a sufficient growth to be cut off by the mower. The vitality of alfalfa is very much lessened by allowing it to stand very long after the proper time for cutting, and it is not advisable to delay cutting later than full bloom, even at risk of losing the crop.

Combating Glanders.

In combating glanders the general practice is to destroy horses which are positively known to be affected with the disease and to quarantine those which are merely suspected of being affected.

The Farm Live Stock.

If the farmer keeps his animals thrifty and healthy he needs no veterinary and no medicines. Healthy animals are the result of proper feeding, good care and intelligence in handling.

Pleasant Grove

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper for a few words about our Children's Day service held at Pleasant Grove church on the first Sunday in July, 1908. We were indeed delighted with the recitations by the children and hope that in the large audience there may have been some good thoughts advanced that will stay in the minds of those who were present as long as life shall last, especially on the subject of missions as we believe it to be one of the great questions that confronts us today. We earnestly hope that interest in Sunday school work was increased. We were glad to see a large congregation present and believe that most of them at least were in some way benefited. We were also glad to have a number of eloquent speakers with us, among whom were Mr. Jerome O. Williams, Prof. J. L. Johnson, Judge L. H. Reynolds, Rev. T. J. Leadbetter. These gentlemen did some eloquent speaking and we certainly do appreciate the earnest, eloquent, interesting speeches delivered to us by these brethren and friends.

We do especially want to thank our young brother Williams for his faithful talk to the children and young people of our churches. We hope that the good impressions the young brother endeavored so earnestly to make be lasting and produce wonderful effect for good, and we wish to thank Judge Reynolds for his excellent speech he so forcefully delivered to us in the afternoon and we would be glad if every boy and girl in that audience would heed the earnest pleadings of the Judge and that they would leave off indulging in those habits and practices which will ruin them mentally and morally and will at last sink them in eternal ruin and perdition, for whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap. Then may we heed what we have heard; the earnest exhortation and admonitions given us surely will be beneficial to us all if we will heed them. We were very much interested in the lecture of Prof. J. L. Johnson as it was to us on the importance of raising our children right. We are fearful that this is a wider question in its meaning than some parents are aware of. We hope this lecture by Prof. Johnson may cause us as parents to think more seriously on this all important duty and act more seriously.

We were truly glad to have Rev. Leadbetter with us on this occasion and hope his earnest efforts may have their effect for good and accomplish much in causing a reform in the lives of the young people.

Now, we want to thank the good ladies for their nice dinner which they so kindly prepared for entertaining the visitors at the noon hour. Somebody said that this old world would be in a bad fix if there were no women here, but we might get along very well until the noon hour.

We were very much pleased with the liberal contributions made to the foreign missionary cause; we are glad to see the people contributing of their money and means to this great cause in helping to send the Gospel to those poor heathen people, numbers of whom are dying without ever hearing of the loving Jesus, who died that we all might live, and we ought to remember that this same Jesus said "Go ye into all the world and preach my Gospel." Let us be obedient to our Lord's commands. Now, above everything else we desire to thank the gracious heavenly Father for His blessings that were showered down upon us on this day. Let us ever remember that every good and every perfect gift comes from above. We are thankful that we had quietude and peace and no disturbance. Let us all remain humble and faithful and earnest in the Sunday school work.

A POOR GROCER.

Andubon's Lame Attempt to Succeed as a Merchant.

It is not generally remembered that the worldwide reputation of Audubon as a naturalist incidentally is due to his failure to establish himself permanently as a Missouri grocery merchant and dealer in the best brands of Kentucky whiskey.

In 1810 he and Ferdinand Rozier of St. Genevieve loaded a keel boat at Louisville, Ky., with 310 barrels of whiskey and groceries and started down the Ohio and Mississippi to St. Genevieve to open a grocery store. The trip was made during the winter, and the streams were so full of ice that the boat was drawn up against the bank and winter quarters were established just below Cape Girardeau. When St. Genevieve was reached, after the opening of navigation, the firm of Audubon & Rozier opened their store and did a prosperous business. But the business was done by Rozier, for Audubon preferred the woods to the counter and devoted more of his time to sketching and stuffing birds than he did to marketing the 310 barrels of Kentucky bourbon or any other groceries. This led to a dissolution of the partnership. On April 11, 1811, Audubon, convinced of his unfitness for business, sold out to Rozier and took up the work for which he was better fitted than any one who had lived before or who has lived since and from a fourth rate grocer became the great ornithologist. The grocery business which Audubon abandoned grew until finally it "extended throughout all of upper Louisiana."—Kansas City Star.

The Best Man.

"Why is it," asked the dear girl, "that the bridegroom's attendant is called the 'best man'?"

"I suppose it's because he is the best off," growled the fussy old bachelor.—Kansas City Newsbook.

Help for Those Who Have Stomach Trouble.

After enduring for about a year's years for a bad stomach trouble, I am spending nearly five hundred dollars for medicine and doctors' fees. I purchased my wife one box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which she continued to use, and they have done her more good than all of the medicine I took before.—SAMUEL B. MAN ON THE CORNER

We are now in the middle of the month all its glory glows. It is all caught up with, and feels as if "laying-by" time to take a rest and luxuriate in the lap of idleness.

There is an attraction about "laying-by" time that appeals to us, and we willingly yield to its seductive charms. The hard work of spring and of early summer comes to a little rest and recreation, while nature performs her part and leads up to the glorious west time.

Who wouldn't wish to "lay-by" the warm days and glorious night beauties provided by a beautiful Creator. The fields are ripening and one contemplates prospects of a bounteous harvest with internal satisfaction, that has performed his part, the place can safely be left to "him doeth all things well."

This is the time when the sturdy farmer hitches up the team, mounts his family, and with a well packed basket, goes off to visit his relatives and friends, content of a pleasant reception and a vacation from the cares of every life. The professional man by his daily round of duties flies him off to the springs and oceans or the sea-shore, there in a stock of renewed health carry him safely through the long winter.

He quietly stealing away from the haunts of man, with rod and gun, he seeks some secluded spot on the banks of the rippling brook, reclining in the grateful shade of some spreading tree he enjoys the sunny tribe, exulting every time he gets a bite, and finally returning home at night in a fine string of fish, victims of piscatorial art, and with mind body refreshed and invigorated, ready and willing for another day's work.

Only "laying-by" time is the enjoyable season of the whole year.

The luscious watermelon is in season these days, and when it has been cooled off in a deep well it tickles the palate. It is inspiring sight to see three or four fellows around a big juicy melon on a hot summer day. How they sink into the firm juicy flesh, and oh! with what gusto the seeds vanish from sight. Gimme more piece and I'll quit.

If there is any among the small towns of Alabama that can boast a better or neater street than the street of Clanton, since the walks have been paved I would be glad to know of it. Then the improvements at the post office and the undertaker, all help to make the good looks of Clanton, best among the small (not the small, by a long way) towns of Alabama. Watch us grow, and the improvements too.

The noble order of Red Men of whom held a pow-wow Tuesday and there is no doubt the discussion was mighty interesting. An observation made from the side they discussed half a dozen watermelons, consumed no end of them (not a stick in the pile of it), cooled the atmosphere and had a big time generally. The noble Red Man shows not the sign of stoicism when it comes to devouring watermelon, but it is a thorough business way.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Oak Grove

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in your most valuable paper. The health of our community is very good, except a few cases of fever.

Our school has started again at Oak Grove and Miss Nealie Johnson of Jemison is our teacher. We have 53 pupils on roll.

Misses Verla Skipper and Ora Shaw seemed to be all smiles Sunday afternoon.

Miss Pearl Bledson and brother, Arthur, spent Sunday with Miss Lizzie and Ears Cobb.

The Mt. Moriah girls seemed to be all smiles this week; I guess they had a good time Sunday. For I noticed that the H. N. and G. buggies went up that way.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under our superintendent, Mr. W. H. Shaw, and secretary, Miss Myrtle Durbin.

Mr. J. B. Hawkins and family spent Saturday night with Mr. C. W. Martin's family.

Singing at Oak Grove every third Sunday evening and everybody is invited to call around.

Misses Annie and Verla Skipper spent Monday night with Miss Lizzie Cobb.

The Mt. Moriah singing class sang at Concord Sunday.

There was singing at W. H. Shaw's Sunday night and was attended by a large crowd.

We'll ring off for this time. BROWN EYES.

UNION RALLY.

There will be a Union Rally at the Culp Schoolhouse, 9 1/2 miles west of Clanton on the Montgomery and Tuscaloosa road, Aug. 1. Everybody is invited to come and bring filled baskets and let us have a good time. We expect to have some of the State and county officers with us. Understand that this invitation is extended to everybody.

W. O. DURBIN, Sec. & Treas.

Plantersville

About 2,000 citizens met here Saturday to hear an address by Gov. Comer upon the high school question—this most probably being the location of the high school for Dallas county.

The governor spoke for over two hours and the audience highly appreciated his speech. He was followed by Auditor Brandon who spoke for about one hour.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Joe Martin, living a few miles north of Clanton on the Peter Wellen place, on Wednesday evening cut his throat with a knife and stabbed himself under the heart. Dr. Johnson was sent for and he dressed the wounds which are not likely to prove fatal. Martin recently returned from Florida, and it is supposed that domestic disturbances caused the rash act.

NOTICE.

The Chilton County Singing Convention will hold a called session with Jemison Baptist church the fourth Sunday in July, beginning at 9:30 o'clock a.m. All singers and lovers of music are invited to attend and bring their books and baskets.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

THE CLANTON BANK

Billingsley.

Saturday last was a great day in Billingsley, the occasion being the public installation of the Masonic officers and a basket picnic by the Masons and Old Fellows. The members of both Lodges assembled at their respective halls and marched to the picnic grounds, where the officers were duly installed. At 12:30 o'clock all gathered around the table and enjoyed a most sumptuous dinner.

There was a large number of people here from the whole surrounding country, many coming from Montgomery and Prattville, and perfect order prevailed throughout the day.

In the afternoon a large number went to the ball park, where two games were scheduled, the first game was between the home team and Jones, the score ending 8 to 3 in favor of the visitors. In the second contest, Jones played all around the Mulberry boys, shutting them out 12 to 0.

DEATH OF MRS. STEWART.

A long and useful life was terminated Monday, when the spirit of Mrs. Obitha A. Stewart was called home. The aged lady was for many years a resident of Clanton, but for several years past had been living with her son, Mr. Lee Stewart, at Birmingham, where she expired, aged 82 years. She was a good woman, in every sense of the word, and many people in this section will learn with deep regret of her decease.

The remains were brought to Clanton and laid beside those of her son, Dr. W. E. Stewart, and daughter, Mrs. W. T. Callen, while her husband, who preceded her to the grave many years since, lays with them side by side. In life they were together in death they are not divided. Rev. J. F. Price officiated at the funeral.

COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

The Court was in session Monday and adjourned Tuesday, setting as a court of errors. Commissioner Robinson says that matters are getting straightened out, and they had very little trouble in adjusting differences.

FIDDLERS' CONVENTION.

There will be an old time Fiddlers' Convention at Clanton on Friday night, July 24, beginning promptly at 7:00 o'clock. Fiddlers will be here from adjoining counties. Prizes will be awarded to the best and sorriest among the bunch. Old time music only will be played. No charges of any kind will be made as the entertainment will be given for revelry and not for revenue. The public from the four corners is urged to come. The program will be published later. Fiddlers who have taken first and second prizes heretofore, will not be allowed to participate. Old fashioned dance after prizes are awarded.

RETURNING FROM DENVER

As Fast Train Was Approaching St. Louis It Was Assailed by a Foul-laden of Rocks, Stones and Pistol Shots—Two Delegates Injured.

Chicago, July 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from St. Louis, Mo., says: The train bearing the Pennsylvania delegation home from the Denver convention was attacked by thugs as it was entering St. Louis Sunday. On the side of the special car was a streamer announcing that the car contained the Pennsylvania delegation.

The train was running at high speed when suddenly there was a fusillade of stones, bricks and bullets.

William Schultz, O. E. Maxwell, and J. F. Curran, of Washington, Pa., seated together at one side of the car, were cut by flying glass but escaped the stones and bullets.

Colonel James M. Guffey was seated in the forward end of the car and escaped injury. Since leaving Denver, Colo., Guffey has been ill as a result of the heat. At St. Louis, Mo., the train was held while a physician came aboard and attended Mr. Guffey.

BITTEN BY RATTLER.

Man Almost Severs Arm to Save His Life.

Mobile, Ala., July 13.—Rather than lose his life from a rattlesnake's bite Harry Wood, former member of the police force of this city, almost chopped his left arm off Friday morning.

Wood is superintendent of a turpentine camp, near Creola, this county, and while in the woods, five miles from camp, was bitten by a deadly rattlesnake. Being desperate, and unable to reach camp, he took a hatchet and severed several big arteries which allowed the blood to flow free.

He lapsed into unconsciousness and remained on the ground from 9 in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon. It is thought he will recover.

INCUBATOR TWINS.

Mites of Humanity Named After Bryan and Taft.

New York, July 13.—Many members of the Italian colony at Coney Island joined Sunday in the christening of Bryan and Taft Palaneno, the incubator sons of Marie and Pasquale Palaneno. The twins were born on Saturday morning and their weight combined scarcely exceeded three pounds.

Bryan weighs three ounces less than Taft, but both have an even chance in the incubators.

Dr. Pierce realized that the boys could not be brought up under ordinary circumstances and both were taken to the incubators at an amusement park.

To Test New Pistol Law.

Montgomery, Ala., July 13.—Constable Church, of Madison county, will make a test of the new pistol law. He was arrested for having in his possession a pistol less than 24 inches long and will carry the case through the courts. It has been understood all along that the law officers would be compelled to violate the act in order to protect themselves and they have not been obeying it. However, it is thought best to get a ruling favorable to them if possible. The sheriff's association has the matter in hand.

Successor for Wiley.

Montgomery, Ala., July 13.—The second district democratic congressional committee met here Tuesday to lay down a plan for the nomination of a successor to the late Congressman Wiley. There is a movement on foot to compliment O. C. Wiley, a brother of the deceased, with the short term, and it may be that he will be named by the committee. GEORGIA LEGISLATURE

Convict Lease Question a Most Important Measure.

Atlanta, July 13.—The beginning of the end is in sight when the general assembly, this week, takes up the convict bill, for it has been conceded this is the most important bit of legislation which this body will have to solve this session.

Briefly outlined, the measure provides: The judge may use discretion in sentencing female convicts; all convicts or a county may either be leased by the county or worked by the county; no misdemeanor convicts are to be farmed out to private parties; the convict proper is to be eliminated by having the leasees sign a contract to return to the commission all convicts which, for any reason, they cannot work. It allows the commission to separate the races.

Saturday for forty-two minutes the house transacted business in record-breaking fashion and adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

During this time thirty-two bills were passed and fourteen new bills introduced.

Asking the general assembly of Georgia to stick the probe into the Georgia prison commission, Representative Shaw of Clay, introduced in the house Saturday morning a joint resolution, calling for an investigation of its affairs.

The resolution provides that three from the house and two from the senate shall act as the investigating committee.

After a week of unusual activity the senate adjourned on Friday until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

During the week $15,000 was appropriated to the Georgia Normal and industrial college at Milledgeville for needed improvements, and the committee favorably recommended appropriations for the State Normal school at Athens, the University of Georgia and the Georgia School of Technology. It is understood that these measures will pass the senate with little opposition.

The bill by Senator Hardman requiring the election of the pension commissioner by the people was passed.

The bill of Senator Whaley prescribing the manner in which new counties may be formed was lost.

The bill by Mr. Adams, of Chatham county, limiting the amount of interest to be levied to 5 per cent per month was vigorously fought in the committee room, but with only one dissenting vote the bill received a favorable recommendation and will probably be voted on by the senate during the present week.

WATCHED WOMAN DROWN.

Big Crowd Raised Not a Hand at Rescue.

Chicago, July 13.—While 200 men and boys sat or stood within a comparatively few feet of her and in sight of nearly 1,000 others, an unidentified woman fell, or rolled purposely from the North pier at the mouth of the Chicago river Sunday and drowned.

Although she screamed repeatedly for assistance not a hand in the crowd that watched her struggles in the water, was lifted to save her. Instead, one of the gazers stole the woman's purse and hat, which she had placed on the pier beside her, and fled.

A half hour later the body was taken from the water by Captain Carland and his men from the life saving station.

The body was neatly dressed. The woman apparently was thirty-five years old, 5 feet, 4 inches tall, with dark brown hair and hazel eyes, and weighed 105 pounds.

KERN AT FAIRVIEW

Vice Presidential Nominee Confers With W. J. Bryan.

COMPERS ALSO AT LINCOLN

First Intimation Given by Mr. Bryan Regarding His Desire with Respect to the Nominations Committee to Call on Him After Taft's Notification.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., July 13.—J. W. Kern, vice presidential candidate of the democratic party, and W. S. Jackson, chairman of the Indiana democratic state central committee, arrived here Monday to confer with W. J. Bryan. Their train was delayed four hours near Fairbury by a wash out.

The same train brought Samuel Compers, Frank Morrison and James Duncan, of the American Federation of Labor, also here for a visit to Fairview.

It developed that the conference here on Saturday between Theodore A. Bell and Mr. Bryan concerned particularly campaign plans for Mr. Bell's state—California.

The democrats could not carry that state, Mr. Bell urged, if the policies of President Roosevelt are attacked. Mr. Bryan, who maintains that the president's reforms are democratic, agreed with the Californian and the so-called Roosevelt reforms will not be an issue in the Pacific coast state.

The first intimation was given by Mr. Bryan Monday regarding his desires as to the time when the committee on nomination should call on him.

After considering the question carefully, Mr. Bryan has concluded that his notification should come after that of Mr. Taft, and he has advised Representative Henry D. Clayton, the chairman of the committee at Denver, to that effect.

The exact date will be announced after Mr. Clayton returns from a three weeks' trip to the Pacific coast.

PRISONER ON A RAMPAPE.

Ammonia Used to Overcome Jailbird at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 13.—Dave Edwards, convicted of murder, and who is considered the most desperate prisoner ever in the Hamilton county jail, went on a rampage Sunday and attacked a fellow prisoner, J. C. Duncan, also convicted of murder.

A fierce fight ensued, in which Edwards was badly beaten. When the officers tried to place Edwards in the dungeon he barricaded himself in his cell, and ammonia was used, but to no avail, as Edwards had covered himself with a mattress.

Finally a stream of water from a 3-inch hose was turned on the prisoner, and he was nearly drowned. He cried "enough," and the door of the cell was opened. Edwards came out and made a rush for Chief Deputy Frawley, striking him with a "billy" which he had made of the straps and buckles from his cot. He missed the deputy and struck a negro prisoner in the face. He was finally floored by a blow on the head with a pair of handcuffs and overpowered.

HUSBAND'S FATAL MISTAKE.

Thought His Wife Was a Burglar and Shot Her.

Philadelphia, July 13.—Mistaking his bride of less than a year for a burglar, William A. Thomas, aged twenty-three years, shot and probably fatally wounded her at their home in the upper section of the city.

Hearing a noise in the bathroom of the dwelling, Thomas seized a revolver and began an investigation. As he reached the second story of the house Mrs. Thomas emerged from the bath room and her husband discharged the revolver, the bullet striking her in the abdomen.

Thomas says he believed his wife to have been in another part of the house. He was placed under arrest pending an investigation.

FATAL PLEASURE TRIP.

Four Members of Yachting Party Lose Their Lives.

Marion, Mass., July 13.—Four prominent residents of this town and Walpole met death through an explosion on board a 45-foot launch off here Saturday night. Two survivors were picked up after having been in the water for twelve hours.

Engineer Blown Into the Air.

Neither of the survivors was able to give the cause of the explosion. Mr. Tarbell, who owned the launch, as the launch was called, said that the boat started out from Marion on a short pleasure cruise, and was well on in the middle of Buzzard Bay when the explosion occurred. Savory, the engineer, was suddenly blown into the air, and was probably dead when he struck the water.

The boat caught fire immediately, and Tarbell called to his comrades to leap overboard. He strapped a life preserver about himself before he leaped, and Mr. Packer, who is connected with the Boston banking firm of Rollins & Son, seized an oar and followed. So far as they knew, none of the others in the party jumped. Either they could not swim and preferred to cling to the launch until help came, or else they were stunned by the explosion.

Both Tarbell and Packer remained near the launch for several moments, urging their comrades to jump into the water with a cushion, oar, life preserver or something, for the launch was burning rapidly.

One man, believed to be Roland Worthington, was seen clinging to the side of the boat, but he could not swim apparently, and the men in the water could not reach him. Gradually the launch drifted out to sea, and Packer and Tarbell were forced to give up hope. They turned landward and swam slowly so as to husband their strength as much as possible. It was twelve hours before their rescue occurred.

PEARY'S ARCTIC DASH

International Race to Uttermost Ends of the Earth.

IS WATCHED WITH INTEREST

Peary Will Try to Plant Stars and Stripes Farthest North and Englishman Will Try and Meet Union Jack Farthest South.

New York, July 13.—When Commander Robert E. Peary boards his steamer Roosevelt at Sydney, Cape Breton, this week, and starts on his expedition in search of the north pole, an international race to the uttermost ends of the earth will be on.

Peary hopes to carry the Stars and Stripes to the north pole, while a British antarctic expedition commanded by Lieutenant Ernest H. Shackleton, is trying to place the Union Jack of the British empire at 90 degrees south.

British Expedition.

Although the British expedition has a clear handicap in point of time, Mr. Peary hopes to win the race. Lieutenant Shackleton and party left London on July 20, 1907, on board the Nimrod, originally a New Foundland sealing vessel of 227 tons, but which had been refitted as a steam barkentine. Shackleton is an officer of the British navy and before leaving London King Edward bestowed upon him the Victorian Order. He was a member of the British antarctic expedition of 1902-03 under Captain Scott, and with his commander and another member of the party, accomplished a sledge journey with dogs to a point 82 degrees and 17 minutes south latitude during which they were absent from their ship, the Discovery, 93 days and covered a distance of 960 miles.

Peary reached a point 97 degrees and 6 minutes north on April 21, in the year 1906.

Prepared for a Long Stay.

The Nimrod's crew, all told, numbered 32 men, including several scientists, but the landing party was to consist of but twelve men. The barkentine sailed early in January from New Zealand and returned in March, having left the Shackleton party encamped at the foot of Mount Erebus. The party took with them materials for wooden buildings with double doors and windows to be lined with felt and several inches of granulated cork. Provisions and supplies for a long stay were landed. The Nimrod brought back to New Zealand a tale of disension in the party which resulted in the resignation of Captain England, the Nimrod's skipper, and the ship, therefore, will return to the little harbor early in 1910 without him.

Their Different Methods.

Shackleton took with him a specially built motor sledge which he hoped to use in his polar dash and a number of Siberian ponies in addition to a pack of dogs. Peary will use only Eskimos and dogs. The boxes containing the supplies aboard the Roosevelt were so designed as to make possible the construction of a house out of them at Cape Sheridan. The structure will be about twenty 20x60 feet, and when built will be covered with the Roosevelt's main sail, and that in turn covered with snow. Peary plans to make his dash to the pole from his base of supplies in February next year and hopes to return to the United States some time in October.

The flag occupies a prominent place on the wall of Peary's cabin on the Roosevelt. Peary also took with him the flag which he carried farthest north in 1906, a Delta Kappa alumni flag, a Princeton banner and several smaller emblems.

GIRL PROVED A HEROINE.

Rescued Her Father and Her Uncle from Drowning.

Portland, Ore., July 13.—Cora Hosford, fourteen years old, Sunday at Washougal, Washington, rescued her father, Captain Hosford, W. B. Patterson, her uncle, and Mildred Long, her half-sister, who were in swimming. The Long girl became exhausted and Captain Hosford went to her assistance. The girl's struggles exhausted him and he cried for help and Patterson went to assist him. Captain Hosford himself was exhausted, and Miss Hosford swam to him and bore him in safety to the shore. By this time Patterson had become exhausted in his efforts to save the struggling girl and his little niece plunged into the water, swam to him, seized her uncle by his hair and towed him to shore, where he was resuscitated. She then went back and secured the body of the Long girl. The latter, however, was past reviving.

2400 Alabama troops are preparing to take part in the maneuvers at Chickamauga next week. Adjutant General Bibb Graves says the brigade will be the largest that has ever gone out to represent Alabama. There will be thirty-one companies of infantry and two batteries of artillery.

Bryan's Present Popularity.

Gradually the more conservative leaders of the Democratic party, and especially those of the eastern states, have come into cordial relations with Mr. Bryan; so that he is in a position of favor and good standing that he did not enjoy in the conventions of 1896, 1900 and 1904. In those conventions the strain between the conservative and radical wings of the party was so severe that much of the energy was wasted in factional strife which should have been expended in wisely concerted assault upon the opposing party. All these things are recalled to mind in order to bring out more clearly by contrast the very different position in which Mr. Bryan finds himself this year. His party will be more harmonious than in any political year since he has been identified with it. He has made steady growth in acquaintance and in popular good-will by virtue of the exercise of the two professions which he has now for a good while past been carrying on. His chief work has been that of a platform lecturer, in which capacity he has been almost everywhere in the country speaking to large audiences of ten upon subjects not of a controversial sort, and by his eloquence and tract dispelling that strong prejudice against him that had survived from the bitter fight against free silver. His other calling is that of an editor and writer, and his weekly paper has kept him in touch with large numbers of his political followers. He is ten times as widely acquainted with men in all walks of life as any other member of the Democratic party. He is more in demand as a speaker than ever before, and his readiness and skill as an orator have greatly increased. From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for July.

Bryan is a sure winner this time—already he leads Taft by one—five letters to Bryan, four to Taft.

Stirring scenes marked the convention at Denver when Bryan was nominated on the first ballot after an all night session.

John W. Kern, of Indiana, received the nomination for Vice-President, a selection that is pleasing to the country at large.

The platform adopted, according to a statement by Mr. Bryan is "Clear, specific and strong, and I am grateful to the committee for the work that they have done in stating the issues. I am sure that the platform will greatly strengthen us in the fight upon which we are entering."

A full account of the convention will be found on pages 6 and 7.

Thomas Taggart of Indiana, chairman of a special committee of eleven to select the permanent officers of the democratic national committee, today announced that the choice of a chairman would not be made for a week or ten days, and possibly two weeks.

The official notification of Mr. Bryan will be made at his home in Lincoln on August 12. Mr. Kern will be notified at Indianapolis at a date to be determined upon later.

Resolutions providing for publicity of campaign contributions and limiting the amount of any single gift to $10,000; providing for the publication of all campaign expenditures thirty days after the election, and calling upon democrats all over the country to form themselves into democratic clubs were adopted.

In another column will be found the report of the Republican convention held at Clanton on Wednesday. A few weeks since we reported the proceedings of two "wings" of the so-called Republican party (with a third admixture) and which of these four should be properly called the Republican party we leave it to the intelligence of Chilton county or the recognized authorities to determine. With a correctly pronounced Republican party we have no cavil, but with a Republican party for revenue and office only we think it is time for Chilton to call a halt. Ask yourself why should two "wings" and a third outside party align themselves if not for the purpose of securing the votes of the honest electors who may have Republican proclivities, and we do not believe there is a great number in Chilton county when they properly understand the situation.

THE ONLY PROTECTION.

One feature of the Democratic platform that must commend itself to all fair minded is its adherence to the rights of man as opposed to privileges for any class of men. It takes fair with corporate interests as long as these interests tote fair with the law and the people, and while it recognizes as just some of the claims of labor, it yet does not segregate the working man from other citizens to give him privilege as a class. He is appreciated, but not preferred. His stock is at par, just as is the stock of the agriculturist, the clerk, the merchant and every other citizen, and the stock of none of them is bulled with the promise of a bonus.

This is exactly as it should be. Protection has no business being sought but general. Government is unjust and tyrannical when it takes up a pet and fattens him at the expense of others. Kings may have favorites, dower them with lands and riches; but a republic is simply a thief when it steals from one citizen to enrich another. Republicanism has committed this grand larceny of the people to enrich its minion, the trusts; but Democracy declares it will have no court favorite.

Some of the leaders have aspired to put labor in the position of court favorite. They would have government make of it the pampered pet of a privileged favorite. These will not take kindly to the Democratic view of equal rights to all, but the workingman himself and the stalwart army of his brothers will readily realize the Democracy is protecting all men in their rights—protects the laboring man equally with all others—and the manhood of labor would scorn to ask anything more.

By playing favorites, Republicanism has brought the country under the domination of the plutocratic class. Should Democracy pursue a like course with labor as the privileged class, similar evils would result. The only just way is the square deal for all, equal rights, no favors and a protection that operates to preserve in every citizen his property, his political and civil liberty and his right to the pursuit of happiness. A united Democracy offers this to the people, and if the people are wise they will take advantage of the offer.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The meeting of the convention of the Republican party of Chilton county was held Wednesday in Headley's Hall, and passing unanimously the following resolutions, adjourned to meet at Thorsby, on Monday, the 29th day of July, for the purpose of making nominations for a full Republican ticket for county officers.

Be it resolved, by the Republicans of Chilton county in convention assembled, that we renew our allegiance to the principles and policies of the grand old party.

That we congratulate the people, who, free from the dogmas and wild schemes of the party in power in our county, that the time is near at hand, when the overthrow of that party will restore to the people their own, and stop we hope forever, the system of oppression, wrong and plunder, from which for the last four years they have suffered.

Resolved, That we demand for ourselves and our associates the undisturbed enjoyment of freedom of opinion, and the untrammelled right to vote for Republicans at all elections.

Resolved, That we favor the enforcement of the laws—not for the few, but for all alike, and to this end, demand that felonies be prosecuted, as well as misdemeanors, that those who commit notorious crimes, forgers, miscegenation, incest, perjury and the like, that unfit men to be the "associates, morally or otherwise of their own children" be punished.

Resolved, That we demand that the system by which our people are overburdened by taxes, for the benefit of a few in place and power, be overthrown, and that the system by which aliens to our county and State are made rich at the public expense shall stop.

Resolved, That the incompetency of the present court of County Commissioners and their reckless disregard of the public treasury, demands at the hands of the people of Chilton county, that a new court shall be elected, and one for which Chilton county will be willing to be held responsible.

Resolved, That we demand that the tax rate shall be reduced and that at least one-half of the $25,000 now collected from our people, be restored to the rightful owners of the money—the people—the tax payers of the county.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Over Thirty-Five Years.

In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

There is only one effective way to Stop Indigestion

Most digesters rely on pepsin. But pepsin digests albumen only. It is but one of the elements needed.

Starch, fats and phosphates each require something else.

Then half of digestion is done in the bowels, and pepsin can't do that.

It requires many ingredients to form a perfect digester, and they must be in liquid form.

Kodol has all those ingredients. It does all that the stomach does—all that the bowels do. It digests any food—any mixture of foods—completely.

Partial digesters give only half-way help.

There is always some food left to get hard, and irritate the stomach lining.

That irritation, even though slight, continues the inflammation. That is why the stomach fails to regain its strength.

A weak stomach is like a lame ankle. Use or abuse it and it will never get well.

But give it complete rest—do all its work for it—and Nature very quickly restores its normal powers.

You can't do this by dieting, for there is always some food that doesn't digest.

You can't do it with partial digesters.

You can't do it with tonics, for they spur the stomach to but temporary activity.

It must be done with Kodol. The results then are instant and complete. Every food that you eat is digested. You get your full nourishment, yet the stomach gets absolute rest.

Antidote Wild and Exciting Scenes the Democratic National Convention Chooses its Standard Bearer—Synopsis of the Platform Adopted, Etc.

Convention Hall, Denver, July 8.—The democratic national convention began its sessions at noon Tuesday amid scenes of stirring animation. The vast amphitheater of the auditorium was packed with 12,000 people, an ever-moving, intense and expectant throng, moved by patriotic airs and stirred into tumultuous demonstration as a sullen portrait of Bryan was borne within the hall. It was just 12:20 when Chairman Taggart, of the national committee, called the convention to order. Bishop J. J. Keane, of Cheyenne, Wyo., pronounced the opening invocation, an impressive plea for Divine grace on the convention's deliberations.

Cheers for Bryan. The convention promptly effected the preliminary deliberations, electing Theodore A. Bell of California, as temporary chairman. The keynote speech of the temporary presiding officer floor started the echoes ringing and brought forth enthusiastic demonstration for Bryan and the other party idols. The appointment of the convention committees and the presentation of resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Grover Cleveland completed the formal work of the day.

Clayton Permanent Chairman. The committee on permanent organization met and on motion of Governor Folk of Missouri, selected Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama, as permanent chairman of the convention. For the other officers the temporary selections were made permanent, with the addition of E. Y. Mitchell, of Missouri, who was named as an assistant secretary.

In presenting the name of Mr. Clayton, Governor Folk said he had intended to offer the name of Champ Clark, but on being shown a letter from Mr. Bryan, in which the desire was expressed that Mr. Clayton occupy the chair, he gladly assented to Mr. Bryan's suggestion.

It Was a Stirring Scene. It was a stirring scene which spread before Chairman Taggart at noon, when with uplifted gavel he sought to bring order out of the confused babel of sound and motion. The splendid amphitheater, decorated with flags and bunting, was packed to its uttermost limits, with a dense and seething mass of humanity. Below, in the center arena, sat the delegates, just two more than an even thousand, and back of them the one thousand alternates—these two thousand the real convention, with the destinies of the party in their hands. Flanking them and sweeping around the hall were the long lines of eager, expectant onlookers, rising tier on tier and gallery on gallery, solid masses, the brightness of the women in their gay costumes vying with the splendors of old glory, which hung at every hand.

Drift to Bryan. The interest was centered in the opening session of the convention, and aside from this the early part of the day brought few developments of importance as to candidates or platform. The overwhelming drift of sentiment continued toward Bryan, and the enthusiasm of the opening session only emphasized his commanding hold on the convention.

A strong cordon of police was stretched around the Denver auditorium when the delegates to the democratic convention began to arrive at the scene of the next four days' activities. The sidewalks were roped off to assist the officers in handling the curious throngs that began to gather about the hall early in the day. Mounted police kept the streets clear as a passageway for them, holding tickets.

Snow Covered the Alleys. In two of the streets fronting the auditorium great banks of snow gave a cool greeting to the visitors. From the mountain heights the snow had been brought down to this mid-high level on a special train, and hauled through the city in carts of various descriptions. The day was by no means warm, however, and the only effect of the snow was the novelty of an icy street scene in July.

The doors of the hall were unbarred at 11:10 o'clock, nearly one hour before the gavel of the national chairman, Tom Taggart, was scheduled to fall, a signal for the beginning of the initial session.

Denver, Colo., July 8.—Wednesday it was difficult to say which of the four principal divisions of the work before the democratic national convention, which held its first session here Tuesday day held first place in the interest of the delegates when they gathered for the second day's session. In the foreground, however, inextricably entangled with all the other matters and in a most important way involving their outcome, was the work of the committee on credentials, which sat all night to hear the arguments for and against those who from several states had come to contest the validity of the certification under which groups of delegates held their places on the temporary roll prepared by the national committee.

The Guffey Case.

The Pennsylvania cases involving the membership of Colonel James M. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, in the national committee, afforded a sensational episode in the opening session of the convention, when the case was referred by Temporary Chairman Bell by sheer power of the gavel, to the credentials committee, in spite of vociferous demands of Colonel Guffey and his associates for a vote on the subject then and there. The denial of a roll call by the chairman was the subject of much discussion among the delegates after the adjournment of the convention, and it was made plain that when the matter comes before the convention on the report of the credentials committee, the outcome will be anything but a foregone conclusion.

Meanwhile, the committee on resolutions, and later the subcommittee to which the platform was finally referred, held a protracted meeting. The full committee remained in session until after 1 a. m., and heard arguments in favor of many proposed planks; then it adjourned until 5 p. m., leaving the sub-committee to wrestle with the problem in detail.

Denver, Colo., July 9.—Caused by Blind Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, a Bryan tidal wave of enthusiasm rolled over the convention for one hour and twenty-seven minutes Wednesday and submerged everything in its path except the standard of the Georgia delegation. That anti-Bryan standard was planted and it stood. The following from Senator Gore provoked the outburst: "The president of the United States has said that his opinion of our constitution is unfair for publication. That is true of many of the opinions of the president of the United States."

"Fellow democrats, the great secretary of war came to Oklahoma and waged war against our legislation," continued Senator Gore. "He asked us to give up our right of liberty and self-government, but by a vote of thousands upon thousands we rejected the advice of Taft and accepted the advice of Bryan."

Men Leaped to Chairs.

The mention of the name brought the convention to its feet in the first real Bryan demonstration. Delegates from nearly every state jumped to their chairs and yelled. Many members of the New York delegation joined in the cheering, but a majority remained in their seats.

Minnesota and Delaware were the conspicuous exceptions to the general celebration. A Bryan banner, which had been lurking in the rear of the hall, was rushed to the stage and waved above the heads of the chairman and speaker. The point of the flagstaff caught one of the suspended eagles over the chairman's desk and brought it crashing down to the floor. It was quickly caught up, however, and held above Senator Gore's head.

The applause was relaxing somewhat, the band poured oil on the fire by striking up "Dixie." Senator Gore, who had caused the terrific outburst waited for a time for the noise to cease, and then quietly turned and seated himself against the railing of the platform, waiting for the uproar to subside.

After ten minutes of yelling the perspiring, scrambling delegates with their state standards, left the platform and started on a parade around the hall. Back and forth in the aisle, the excited, shouting Bryan men carried their standards, but the cheers were by this time beginning to decrease in volume.

The chief interest in the day centered around the action of the credentials committee in deciding against James M. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, and the vigorous preparations made by that skilled and veteran political warrior to organize his forces for a fight in the convention which he was determined to carry to the uttermost. On account of delay in the report of the credentials committee a night session was held Wednesday.

At the night session the galleries were well lined with delegates and their supporters, and the band, unaided by the electric lights, blazed brightly. Under the glow of electric lights the delegates showed to best advantage. The credentials committee conference lasted about an hour, and then the credentials committee met on the main floor of the hall. It was agreed to hold a roll call of the delegates at 11:30 p. m.

The roll call was held at 11:30 p. m., and the delegates were called in alphabetical order. The roll call was held at 11:30 p. m., and the delegates were called in alphabetical order. CORRESPONDENCE.

Wadsworth, Ala., July 16, 1908
Editor Banner—Having some business before the court of errors, which convened in your city last Monday, the 13th inst., I was there soon after the court convened. I went before said court and stated my case, the decision of same being perfectly satisfactory with me. In 1907 I bought quite a lot of land for taxes in Chilton county, and I failed to list said lands for taxes as I should have done for the year 1907, hence the lands were again sold. This showed to me that the tax officials were diligent in their duties in assessing and collecting the county taxes. I acknowledged to the court that the fault all lay with me, and I stand ready to take my medicine if it did cost me several dollars. Later another man was before the board, whom I know to be a good business man, and he too, like a good fellow, owned up that all was his fault. I could also mention others. What I saw and heard convinced me that the Assessor, Collector and Back-Tax Commissioner were all striving to do their duty. Being a large land owner in the county, I would like to see them continue in their respective places, because now, they have greater experience, and that will enable them to be more efficient to discharge the duties exacted of them. Now, of all things most liable to errors is the assessment of axes, for one letter or figure wrongfully made will cause a fatal error.

Now, we are all liable to make mistakes, but let us resolve to make as few of them as possible, and I hope those who indulge in severe criticisms of the officers would withhold their criticisms until all parties could be heard, as in my case, as well as that of others. I also think from what I saw and heard, the court acted with fairness and good judgment.

Respectfully,
W. W. WADSWORTH.

A CARD FROM J. D. SIMS.

To the Voters of Chilton County: Owing to the recent changes in the commissioners' districts in the county I find that I am a resident of the 4th District and therefore my nomination in the recent primary election, for Commissioner from the 3d District was improper. Mr. John W. Stanfield is the regular nominee from the 4th District and his name will so appear upon the official ballot in the November election. I appreciate deeply the interest my friends have manifested in my behalf and it is with some pardonable reluctance that I decline to proceed further in the race, but as Mr. Stanfield is the legal nominee, I yield the field to him, knowing him as I do, to be an honest, capable man in whom the people can safely entrust the important duties of county commissioner. I shall give him my heartiest support and call upon my friends to do likewise. Very truly, J. D. Sims.

BIG BILL.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county is hereby called to meet at Clanton on Friday, the 31st day of July, 1908.

All Democrats are cordially invited to attend at this meeting as matters of interest and moment will be attended to.

THOS. A. CURRY, Chairman.
FRANK CRICHTON, Secretary.

HENRY C. Potter, Episcopal Bishop of the diocese of New York, died at his summer home near Cooperstown, N. Y., Tuesday, after a long illness. He was 74 years old.

CLEAN up your premises, good citizens, clean off all the weeds and remove all trash, breeders of pestilence and disease. This is a duty you owe to yourself and family, likewise to your neighbor and the entire community. The streets and alleys have been cleaned up under the superintendence of Marshal Morgan. Now let his efforts be seconded by every individual citizen.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Clanton, July 20, 1908
Editor Banner—Please publish this notice. The true Republican party will meet in Thorsby, Wednesday, July 29, to nominate candidates for county offices, subject to the action of the November election. We invite everybody to come who will support the nominees in November and everybody is welcome to come that will believe themselves. We are not going to have any more such conduct carried on as was carried on last Wednesday.

J. F. GOODGAME.

We take pleasure in directing our readers' attention to the advertisement appearing elsewhere in our columns of the Southern School of Telegraphy, located at Newnan, Ga. There is a great and constantly growing demand for telegraph operators, and we are glad to see this worthy and well-recognized institution doing such creditable work in helping supply that demand. Any young man wishing to learn a good profession should investigate the opportunities offered in the telegraph field by writing at once for the School's free descriptive literature.

Editor Banner—Will you give me space in your paper to say to the people that I will not have anything to do with the primary that is to be held on August 17, 1908. All who vote in that primary will be pledged to the ticket nominated at the primary, and I will not hold to a thing in one party that I have always fought in another. I hope all who are opposed to ring rule and ring robbery will meet at Thorsby on the 20th of July and help put out a ticket that will stand for equal rights to all and special favors to none, and we will hoist the political plunderers like we did in 1888.

G. W. EDWARDS.

Billevoy.

Dear Editor—Will you allow me a small space in your wonderful paper as I would like to say a few words about this little city?

The crops in this community are looking fine.

We are glad to state that Dr. E. H. Down's drug store is almost finished.

Mr. D. Wyatt made a flying visit to this place Sunday.

We are glad to know that Mr. Felton is putting in his planing mill.

Messrs. L. and C. A. Pattillo made a flying trip to Montgomery this week.

Miss Fannie Apperson of Jones is visiting her friends at this place.

Rev. Dix filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

A magnificent ball game was played here Saturday, the 18th; the second nine had an easy walk-over with the first nine, the score was 12 to 10. Hurrah for the second nine! Some of the rooters said they would have liked very much to have had the first nine's photo after the game.

We are glad to hear that the Baptist protracted meeting will start here the third Sunday in August. Hope they will have a flourishing meeting.

Evergreen.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words in regard to our community and school.

Health of this community is fairly good at present.

The school at this place is progressing nicely under the able management of Miss Ida Norris, who taught a very successful school at this place last winter, and we all welcomed her back again this summer.

Our Sunday school is also progressing nicely under the management of Mr. W. T. Johnson, our faithful Superintendent, who is a very earnest worker in the Sunday school.

We are all glad to have Miss Maggie Wood and her brother, Wallace, with us again. They have been attending school at Highland Home for the past nine months.

Mrs. Ellen White is visiting relatives near Verbena this week.

Mr. George Moore and Mrs. Etta Taylor, of Mississippi are visiting home folks here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Johnson and family are making preparations for a visit to their old home-stand in Chambers county. They will be accompanied by Miss Della Williams.

Bro. Yeagan filled his regular appointment here last Sunday.

Miss Lizzie Williams was all smiles the 4th Sunday and we can all guess why.

Miss Ida Morris made a flying visit to Mt. Creek last Saturday week.

We elected our delegates to the Sunday school convention, and they all went and report a nice time.

We are expecting to have an agricultural speaking at this place on Thursday, July 30, and the school is going to sell ice cream and lemonade and soda water and the money will be used in repairing the old windows and to put in some new ones. We hope to see a large crowd out. Be sure you bring your baskets well filled.

Best wishes to The Banner.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

JEMISON, JULY 18 AND 19, 1908.

The Sunday school association has marked another year's progress with the white stone of the finest convention in its history, and Jemison has added several leaves to its laurel crown of fame for hospitality.

We were thrice welcomed—first at the depot, as strangers within the city gates, by the reception committee, then at the church as an association, by Prof. Rasco, whose earnestness made evident the sincerity of his cordial words and we were glad indeed we were so ably represented when Mr. T. U. Crumpton voiced our appreciation and thanks in his very eloquent "response," and lastly we were welcomed as guests in the homes of hospitable people whose kindness is good to remember.

The highest praise and commendation is due the entertainment committee. Thirty-six Sunday schools were represented by a larger delegation than ever before present at our conventions. We were fortunate in having with us Miss Kennedy and Judge Carthel of the State Association. Their work in a convention is always helpful and inspirational and the resolution offered expressive of grateful appreciation of their presence was most heartily endorsed.

Mr. M. C. Crumpton, in an interesting sketch of "the past century's progress in Sunday school work," brought its history up to date and Judge Reynolds, always forcefully eloquent, told of "the present possibilities of the work." He mentioned the great improvement in the public schools in Chilton during the last two years and Judge Carthel stated as a matter of history that where effective Sunday school work is done, increased prosperity of the public school will result.

Because Mr. Wiley Mitchell is the efficient Superintendent of the flourishing Sunday school at Maplesville, his talk on "the superintendent" was particularly helpful as we knew he had wrought his theories from practical experience. Mr. A. B. Wincingham of Autauga, and a member of the noted Sunday school at Marbury, spoke especially on the importance of the Secretary's part in the successful Sunday school. Mrs. S. B. Groves told an interesting story of an old clock and its transformation from unsightly worthlessness to useful beauty and her application of this to the Sunday school was very ingenious, very much enjoyed and made us long to help more in the winding up of the Sunday school clock.

Miss Kennedy gave us a new vision of the work of "the teacher" in the Sunday school and a new realization of what it means to be "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Rev. E. W. Butler of Thorsby talked in a very able manner about "the Sunday school as an educational force."

The reports of the President, Dr. A. Horn, of the Executive Committee, by J. O. Williams, of the District Presidents, W. H. Shaw, J. O. Williams, J. Bice, W. I. Mullins, D. S. Robinson and N. L. Broadhead showed that the work of the year has been well done.

To conform with the change of beats in the county, a few changes were made in the districts as follows: Jemison, Beats 1, 2, 12 and 13; Mulberry, Beats 3, 15 and 6; Thorsby, Beats 9 and 14; Clanton, Beats 4 and 11; Verbena, Beats 5, 10 and 16; Maplesville, Beats 7 and 8.

It was decided that Chilton would join in the movement for a "house-to-house canvass" of Alabama on the second Thursday in October, and Judge Carthel made a very eloquent address on the subject, giving valuable help and practical suggestions for planning the canvass in the county. It is earnestly desired that every superintendent will present this matter to his school with full explanation so the plan will be thoroughly understood and the work carried on successfully.

$75 has been paid to the State Association since July 1907; $15 for Secretary's expenses and this leaves $11 in the treasury. The convention generously pledged over $100 for state and county work for next year.

Saturday evening Judge Carthel gave a very interesting account of the International convention recently held in Louisville, and we also had the pleasure of hearing a sermon by Dr. Hubbard, the State Evangelist of The Baptist church.

Chilton, as a banner county, is marked with a blue star on the state map and this year we are to make special effort to win a gold star. That will mean all districts are banner districts, all schools evergreen, furnishing a report and making a contribution. For the schools, it is hoped the special work will be organized classes for men and women and better training for the work of teaching. Leaflets on these subjects and especially on "teacher training" will be sent to the superintendents for distribution.

The following officers were elected: President, Dr. A. Horn, Thorsby; Executive Committee, E. G. Cofer, Jemison, L. A. Calloway, Verbena, Marion Mims, Thorsby, C. M. Norcutt, Jemison and T. G. Milling, Riderville. The Secretary was re-elected.

The convention accepted with very great pleasure the invitation extended by Mr. Wiley Mitchell to meet at Maplesville in 1909.

The Sunday school work in Chilton county has prospered and with the enthusiasm and inspiration of this convention at Jemison it will be even more successful during the coming year.

The Remedy That Does.

Dr. King's New Discovery is the remedy that does the healing, others promise but fail to perform," says Mrs. E. R. Pierson, of Auburn Centre, Pa. "It is curing me of throat and lung trouble of long standing, that other treatments relieved only temporarily. New Discovery is doing me so much good that I feel confident its continued use for a reasonable length of time will restore me to perfect health." This renowned cough and cold remedy and throat and lung healer is sold at Upchurch drug store, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Maplesville.

Gilbert Scott, white, a lineman for the Southern Bell Telephone company, while working in the vicinity of Maplesville was shocked by lightning in a peculiar manner Tuesday afternoon, a week ago. He was on top of a pole testing a wire, the sun shining very brightly, and no signs of a storm except about a mile or so away, in which direction he heard rumblings of thunder. All of a sudden a fearful pain shot through him and he was rendered unconscious. He recovered in about 10 minutes. His position on the pole was such that he did not fall, but he reached the ground with difficulty. The bolt evidently struck the wire over a mile from where the young man was working. Had it been of continuous voltage instead of just a sudden shock it would have caused death.

The Farmers' Summer School and Round-Up Farmers' Institute will be held at Auburn, Ala., July 29 to August 5, 1908.

That hacking cough continues

Over Thirty-Five Years.
In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have
other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For

When food fails to digest, you must
Help the Stomach

It is like a lame ankle.
It will never get well while you
use and abuse it.
But rest it completely and Nature
restores its strength.
You need a perfect digester.
Not peppin alone, for peppin di-
gests albumen only.
There are starch and fats and phosphates which must be digested
too.
And half of Digestion takes place
in the bowels. You must supply
what is needed there.
It is not an easy matter to create a perfect digester. It has taken us years.
There are plenty of ways to digest part of the food, but that isn't sufficient.
A digester must deal with a mixture of foods.
It must do all that the stomach does when well, and all that the bowels do.
Kodol alone will do that.
If any food remains undigested,
it irritates the stomach lining.
The pain tells you that.
That is why the stomach fails
to recover—the irritation makes it impossible.
Kodol leaves no food undigested—
leaves nothing to cause irritation or pain.
The result is, the stomach gets
well very quickly.
Dieting is unnecessary.
The body requires a variety of food. If you starve it, some parts
are robbed of their nourishment.
Eat what you need, and let Kodol digest it. For food will do more for weak stomachs than medicine.
Our Guarantee
On the first dollar bottle of Kodol
your druggist gives a signed guarantee. If it fails to do all we claim,
your druggist returns your money.
You take no risk whatever. The much as the 50c bottle. Made by

ARTISTS' BLUNDERS.

Procession of Monks That Adam and Eve Enjoyed.
Among the most amusing "breaks" by artists is a landscape by Turner in which a rainbow is depicted behind the sun. This occurred almost as surely as the sun came out in the English sky as did the slip of Constant, the great French artist, who in his portrait of Queen Victoria painted the ribbon of the Order of the Garter the wrong color.

A picture of Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden hung in the gallery of the Guggenheim Museum, represents the first couple as watching a procession of monks.

In the famous galleries at Antwerp are certain pictures of old masters in which the jumble of ideas is as remarkable as the technique is fine. In one picture of heaven the angels are armed with bows and arrows, and in a celebrated painting of "The Murder of the Innocents" the massacre is represented as taking place in a city of Holland. The parents of the children are stout burghers, the Roman soldiers are Dutch policemen armed with muskets, and the innocent infants are transformed into solid schoolboys in bulky wooden trousers and jackets and hooded shoes.

Some grim stories are told of Lord Kitchener, says the United States Gazette, and we have read one which, although we cannot vouch for the truth of it, has a decided Kitchener flavor about it. A young subaltern who was in charge of some works that were in course of construction in the Punjab had the misfortune to lose some native workmen through an accident with dynamite. Fearful of a reprimand from headquarters, he telegraphed to the commander in chief, "Regret to report killing of twelve laborers by dynamite accident." Back is said to have come the laconic message, "Do you want any more dynamite?"

Greedy.

Two Englishmen on a holiday in France were dining together at a Paris restaurant. Mr. Smith would order and ask for everything he wanted in beautiful French, while Mr. Cross would offer explanations that were in the nature of criticisms. At last Mr. Smith's temper rose to explosive point. "Will you," he said in English this time, "be so good as not to interfere with me in the use of my French?" "Very well," retorted Mr. Cross. "I simply wanted to point out that you were asking for a staircase when all you wanted was a spoon."—London Mail.

Suffering Humanity.

"Mrs. Sedgwick, who thought she had a mission to look after suffering humanity, is married, isn't she?" "Yes."

"I was surprised to learn that she had given up her mission in life?" "She hasn't. Her husband is going to be suffering humanity hereafter."—Houston Post.

Just Exactly Right.

"I had used Dr. K's New Life Pills for several years, and I know from just exactly right," says Mr. A. A. Kelson, of Haverhill, N. Y. "A few Life Pills relieve without the least discomfort. Best remedy for constipation, indigestion, and all the ailments of the stomach and bowels."

THE HUMAN TONGUE.

It is Very Inquisitive, With a Strong Will of Its Own.

The curiosity of the tongue does not cause the human being so much trouble as the curiosity of the eye, but the tongue, within its limits, is the most curious of all.

Let the dentist make a change in the mouth, let him remove a tooth or replace with his admirable artifice one that has long been absent, let him change the form of a tooth by rounding off a corner or building up a cavity, and see what the tongue will do. It will search out that place, taking careful and minute account of the change. Then it will linger near the place. If it is called to other duties, it comes back as soon as they are discharged and feels the changed place all over again, as if it had not explored and rummaged there already.

It makes no difference that these repeated investigations presently cause annoyance to its supposed master, the man. The tongue in nothing more than in this matter proves that it is an unruly member and will not be controlled.

It seems to have an original will and consciousness of its own, and nothing will serve it except the fullest satisfaction of its curiosity. It will wear itself out, perhaps, but it will find out all about the strange change.—Boston Transcript.

Funerals in Peru.

According to social usage, women in Peru cannot attend funerals, and they do not appear at weddings unless they are very intimate friends. When a funeral procession passes through the streets the coffin is carried upon the shoulders of the pallbearers, who are followed by an empty hearse drawn by two, four or six horses, according to the means of the mourners and their desire for display. All the male members of the family and friends of the deceased follow on foot, with a line of empty carriages behind them. As long as they are in the presence of the dead it is considered a proper and necessary evidence of respect to walk. After the body has been committed to the grave those who attend the funeral are brought home in carriages.

He Followed the Water.

"Could you do something for a poor old sailor?" asked a wanderer at the rear door of a suburban house one morning recently.

"Poor old sailor?" echoed the housewife, who had opened the door.

"Yes'm. I followed the water for twenty years."

"Well," said the lady as she slammed the door in the face of her unwelcome visitor, "all I've got to say is you certainly don't look as though you had ever caught it."—London Answers.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Would Have Saved Him $100.00.

"In 1902 I had a very severe attack of cholera," says R. N. Farrar of Cat Island, La. "For several weeks I was unable to do anything. On Mar. 18, 1907, I had a similar attack, and took Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which gave me prompt relief. I consider it one of the best medicines of its kind in the world, and had I used it in 1902 believe it would have saved me a hundred dollar doctor's bill. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Clanton; and other druggists."

HOLDING THE BABY.

Introducing a New Point in Baby-Carriage Etiquette.

"That fellow doesn't know the first thing about the etiquette of the baby carriage," remarked one of a group of men at Thirty-first and Main streets. The comment was made to all in a general way. One of the group, the man with a frayed collar and a look of patient resignation, gazed anxiously at a couple about to board a car. The mother was sparring in a desperate sort of way with one of those baby carriages which shop salesmen can open and close in a minute and the users in from five to thirty minutes.

"Don't see anything wrong with that," said the man with the frayed collar. "He's got to hold the baby even if she does have to wrestle with the carriage. You don't think he ought to hold the baby and take care of the carriage, too, do you?"

"Well, there's one thing sure," rejoined the objector—"The man doesn't know a thing about baby carriage etiquette. What you want to do is this: If the baby weighs more than the carriage, it's the man's place to hold the baby. If the carriage weighs more, he should hand the baby to his wife."

"Oh, piffle!" interpolated the man with the big black cigar. "You're way off. What he ought to do is to hand the baby to his wife and the carriage to the conductor."—Kansas City Star.

POINTING THE BONE.

Queer Superstition of the Native Blacks of Australia.

The native blacks of Australia are steeped in superstition. A black fellow will on no account go near the spot where another black has been buried. He has a deep rooted aversion to one particular bird—the wagtail—because, he says, "him all day talk, talk along a white feller, tellum all about black feller," and no opportunity is lost of killing these little birds.

Many tribes "bury" their dead by sticking them up into the forks of trees and then leaving them till the flesh has either dropped or been taken, leaving the bones clean. These bones are then taken down, the larger ones buried and the smallest handed round as keepsakes to those nearly related to the deceased. Should one black fellow wish the death of a rival or enemy he points the bone at him. This means that he takes one of his late relation's bones from his dilly bag and points it, in the presence of witnesses, at the man he wishes to get rid of, all the time pouring forth threats and curses.

Strange as it may seem, the one pointed at will often languish, eventually die, perhaps in a month, perhaps in a year, for no sooner is the bone pointed than he makes up his mind to die, and there is no saving him.—London Standard.

Tennyson's Cure For Shyness.

It is recorded in "Tennyson's Life" that he used to recommend to a younger brother the thought of the stellar spaces, swarming with constellations and traversed by planets at ineffable distances, as a cure for shyness, and for a lady of my acquaintance used to endeavor as a girl to stay her falling heart on the thought of eternity at such moments. It is all in vain. At the urgent moment one cares very little about the stellar motions or the dim vistas of futurity and very much indeed about the cut of one's coat and the glance of one's enemies, and the doctrines of the church and the prospects of ultimate salvation are things very light in the scales in comparison with the pressing necessities of the crisis and the desperate need to appear wholly unconcerned!—Arthur C. Benson in Putnam's Reader.

A Terrific Tumble.

Most marvelous of all the stories of great falls is the account of Charles Woolcott's terrific tumble from a height of no less than 3,000 feet. It was in Venezuela, and he was making a parachute descent. The parachute refused to open till within 100 or 200 feet from the ground. Then it spread out suddenly and split. The unfortunate man crashed both ankles and both knees, broke his right thigh and hip, dislocated his spinal column and suffered other injuries. Yet after a year in a hospital he recovered sufficiently to write an account of what was probably the most fearful accident mortal man ever survived.

Spilled Mercury.

Mercury spilled on a table or floor is somewhat hard to collect unless special precautions are taken, owing to its tendency to divide into small globules, which roll away at the slightest touch. If a wet ring is made around the spilled mercury by the aid of a wash bottle or other similar means, it will be found that the globules of mercury cannot cross the ring. The mercury can then be collected in a small shovel made from a piece of thin card or even an ordinary envelope.

Race of Life.

There wouldn't be so very much fun in living if there were not a hurdle or two to jump over in this race of life. There always have been obstacles, and there always will be, and it is of no use to repine over them.—Manchester Union.

Our Neighbors.

Sunday School Teacher—Why did the Lord command us to love our neighbors? Little Lois—Oh, I guess it was another way of telling us to love our enemies.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No man is nobler born than another unless he is born with better abilities and more amiable disposition.—Seneca.

TIME AT THE POLES.

It is Possibly Any Hour of the Day or Night.

Things are so convenient with the use of globes that all the meridians of longitude starting from the equator converge toward and meet at the poles. They know, too, that longitude signifies time and that difference of longitude is difference in time. They know very well that when it is noon in London it is about 7 o'clock in the morning in Boston, and that when it is noon in San Francisco it is about a quarter past 3 in the afternoon in New York.

Now, as the meridian of London extends to the north pole, it necessarily comes that when it is noon in the English capital it must also be noon at the north pole. In a similar manner when it is noon at Boston, or in San Francisco, or at Pekin, or any other place situated in the northern hemisphere, it follows that it must also be noon at the pole, because all the meridians of those places unite at the north pole. Therefore it is noon all day long at the pole.

Thus there is an entire absence of time at the pole. But it would be just as correct to say that it is a place where there is a preponderance of time, for it is practically any time of day during the whole twenty-four hours or, indeed, through the year. In fact, a resident at the north pole could make it any time of day he might choose to select, with the consciousness that it would be the right time.

A POET'S DIET.

Byron's Strenuous Efforts to Keep Himself From Getting Fat.

"You mention Browning's idea that starvation was the cure for all the ills of the flesh—his own, at any rate," says a correspondent. "Browning was not the only poet with peculiar views on the subject. One of Byron's chief fears was that of becoming fat, and to avoid it he often resorted to extraordinary systems of diet. At Athens he lived mainly on rice and vinegar and six biscuits a day and ten. In 1816 he had so restricted his diet that he was obliged to keep down hunger by chewing mastic and tobacco. 'Don Juan' was 'written on gin and water.'"

Byron, it has been pointed out, was one of those foredoomed by their constitutions to fatness in middle life, whether they eat much or little, and his victory over nature in this respect—for he succeeded in reducing himself—for those violent methods—has been quoted as one of the most remarkable achievements of the human will, considering all the circumstances. It must have been bitter to him to see such a man as Beau Brummell, who ate and drank freely and took no exercise, retaining without an effort all the elegance of figure that was his greatest gift. No wonder Byron's was the poetry of gloom.—London News.

"Alexandria, Egypt."

All correspondents with Egypt in all parts of the world should be warned that it is necessary to put the word "Egypt" on all communications addressed to Alexandria, as a great deal of trouble and annoyance has been caused owing to communications addressed to the Egyptian city being delivered to Scotland, Canada, New South Wales, Cape Colony, Italy, the United States of America and other countries where towns of the same name exist.—Egyptian Gazette, Alexandria.

The Berliner.

On the theory that might goes before right the Berliner fights his way past old ladies and tired women into crowded tram cars and ruthlessly jostles from his path the passerby in the streets with an obstinate insolence that goads the visitor accustomed to the higher civilization of other capitals to impotent fury.—Berlin Cor. Clanton, July 20, 1908

Editor Banner—Please give me a space in your paper to ask some questions. Is it a fact that Reynolds has promised Killgore the Clanton post office? Well, I have said that he would bankrupt the county, and now he wants to keep the people here from getting their mail. Lewis, is that M. A. Killgore, who sold the Sheriff's office or gave it to a Democrat? Is he the Moses that wanted to run for Probate Judge? Now, Lewis, is he the man that you and Co. sent down to Headley's hall to break up the Republican mass meeting, or is he the old Moses that led the children out of bondage? Poor old Moses! Poor old Moses! Lord have mercy on him. Now, M. A., don't you know that when they tell you they will give you the post office, they lie? Old Sol could come nearer giving you the office than L. H. could, for he is a Republican.

Now, Moses, come up to Thorby and act the fool like you did last Monday and you will go off with the headache. You are like the old saying, convince a fool of his error and he is a fool still. If I were you, Lewis, I would let Moses bring water, make fires and sweep the court house, then he could black your shoes and he would have an office, that is all you could give him. Now, Lewis, keep him on the road, for it is making the Republicans more votes. I heard one of your Populists say that he did aim to vote your ticket till he heard you had sent that fool out to electioneer for you.

Now, L. H. Reynolds, we are going to beat your ticket next November and two years from now we will bury you politically forever and ever. Amen.

Lewis, it seems like somebody scared a heap of folks at the court house to day. It may be that you are having prayer-meeting, but it is too late to pray now. When the election is over I will have your picture taken.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Burrellville, Md., July 23, 1908
Editor Banner—Will you allow me a space in your paper to make a few remarks about the state in which I am now living?

We spent the winter at Westminster, Md., where I attended the Westminster Theological Seminary. Westminster is a beautiful little town of about 3,500 people, situated on the Western Maryland Railroad. From Westminster we moved over on the eastern shore of Maryland and took charge of a work in the Maryland conference. This is a beautiful country of course but we see no cotton growing in this state. The principal crops raised in this state are wheat, corn, tomatoes and a good many strawberries. We find that the majority of the people are wealthy.

I have also traveled over some parts of the State of Delaware. I have just returned from a trip to Rehoboth, Del., the great northern summer resort. Here we took our first look at the Atlantic ocean. I have also made a trip to the Delaware Bay since I have been on this charge. The people generally are very kind. I have a charge with four churches and am well pleased with my work. Two of my churches are in little towns and the others are out in the country. This circuit pays its pastor $600 a year. They know just how to make a preacher happy.

Mr. Editor, please send me The Banner for one year. I don't see how I can do without it any longer. If this escapes the waste basket I may write again soon.

J. W. GIBSON.

Mountain Creek, July 25, 1908
Editor Banner—Will you please allow me to say a few words in regard to the political conditions in Chilton county? That Republican meeting at Clanton seems to have raised a storm of abuse. Now, I believe in men coming out for what they think is right. If you are a Republican, come out and say so, or a Democrat, do the same.

Now, the prospects of Democratic victory are brighter than they have been in years, so please allow me to offer a little advice to the Democrats of the county, don't take part in heaping slanderous epithets and abuse on others and carry on a clean and honest campaign. Let us all as Democrats put our shoulders to the wheel and our country will come back in line with other counties in Alabama, and we can be proud of our grand old party, for the mission of the Democratic party is that of conservatism, honesty in public office, and an impartial execution of the present laws as they exist.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

IN MEMORY.

On July 22 the death angel visited the home of Mr. J. J. Roberts and took away his loving wife, Sarahann, after an illness of about eight weeks. She leaves a husband and six children and a host of friends to mourn her loss. Mrs. Roberts was 67 years old, and belonged to the Baptist church at Alpine. Her remains were carried to Pilgrims rest cemetery and laid away to await the coming of her dear Savior. She was a good christian lady and she will be sadly missed, but we all can, if we will, meet her over on the golden shore where parting will be no more. Our deepest sympathy goes with the bereaved family. May they ever look forward and prepare to meet their loved one on that bright celestial shore.

She has gone and left us, and her loss we deeply feel; But 'tis God who has bereft us, He can all our sorrows heal. Weep not dear friends for the loved one is at rest. A precious one from us is gone, a voice we loved is stilled; God in His wisdom called her home to rest among the blest.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

All Democrats are cordially invited to attend at this meeting as matters of interest and moment will be attended to.

FRANK CRICHTON, Secretary.

Mr. Bryan's First Two Campaigns.
Mr. Bryan was handicapped eight years ago by his insistence upon the reaffirmation of his party of every declaration of the famous Chicago platform of 1896, the chief doctrine of which was that of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio with gold of 16 to 1. The business interests of the country felt that the sound money victory of 1896 absolutely required for its firm establishment another defeat of Mr. Bryan. Thus, under the circumstances which surrounded him eight years ago, Mr. Bryan's fight, though foredoomed to failure, must be regarded as the most plucky and remarkable exploits of campaigning in the history of the country, and one, which no other member of his party at that time could have equaled. It is not in accord, therefore, with the truth of the political history to set Mr. Bryan down as a leader always destined to defeat. The silver fight of 1896 was based upon a mistaken estimate of the conditions of the general bullion market—that is to say, of the production of silver and gold as commodities—and a miscalculation of the effects that would have been produced by opening the American mints to silver without concurrent action by European mints. But there was nothing ignoble or dishonest about the Chicago platform, which was adopted in a mood of intense conviction and sincerity by an unbiassed convention of earnest men who were not trying to pay their debts in cheaper money, but were trying to establish what they thought to be a high rule of justice. They were mistaken in their premises and their statistics. They have now learned that monetary systems cannot be based upon the idea of an unchanging ratio of value between two different metals. Mr. Bryan did not originate the free-silver movement, and Republicans as well as Democrats were responsible for its doctrines and its practical demands. He was simply put forward to lead the movement at a time when to have adopted its proposals would have been hazardous in the extreme. It is twelve years since Mr. Bryan made that first great campaign of 1896. He was then 36 years of age and he is now 48. In all these years he has not held public office, but he has been constantly before the people as a party leader and an expounder of questions and issues from the standpoint of the so-called "radical" wing of the Democratic party. The very large recent output of gold has settled the money question in so far as the metallic standard is concerned, and Mr. Bryan accepts the settlement. From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for July.

CHILTON COUNTY TAXES.

Chapter II.
A PARABLE WITH A MORAL.
BY EROS FRATUS.

And the Lord spoke unto Eros Fratus, saying: Beware of those tax gatherers who oppress the widow, starve the laborer, and cause the orphan to come to want, by levying more tax than is meet for Caesar's Republic. For behold! they be hirelings, and not the people's servants; they call all men brother to their faces, and gnaw secretly at their hearts, and curse men with their mouths. The Lord will not remember them in that day, for his anger is already kindled against them.

For verily, verily I say unto you: That these county officers who are levying unjust amounts upon the people for taxes are getting themselves upon a greased plank which slides them into a realm where county officers are not to be had and are not needed. Behold them! They are fast coming into oblivion, and soon none shall know them. Hear ye the word of the Lord: Those who have been oppressing the people with burdensome and unjust taxes, they have given the Union man $5 to notify the general public that they would not refuse office again, since multitudinous raises of taxes causes an equal number of fees and returns therefore are great. But I say unto you that whose vote for them in the next election are co-partners with them in the crime and should be branded and seared with hot irons. Touch not, taste not, handle not, communicate with not, and vote not for such men, for they are a bad taste in the mouth, a bad odor in the nose, but they are magnetic friends to pocket books. So much so, that they draw great amounts unto themselves, and having no conscience to speak of, though they be "divine healers," yet they rest at their ease. I say unto you, it is best would thou let them plow hard tails for a living next year by withholding your vote from them. Let them watch the corn, lest the ox tread upon it, instead of watching your taxes in order to make a raise. Verily, it is best that thou spew them out.

Moral—Change your county officers next election. O. T. H.

TO THE CHRISTIAN PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY.

Dear co-laborers with me in this great Sunday school work—We have just closed one of the best years in our history, having held one of the most attentive, enthusiastic and far-reaching in its effects, county conventions, ever held in our county, and why so? Simply because our people are just beginning to awake to their great opportunities, privileges and duties in this grand, great and noble work. We have planned great things for the coming year, and if carried to a successful consummation, we need, and must have the earnest co-operation of every christian man, woman, boy, girl and child in the county. Stop, think and ask yourself this question: Am I my brother's keeper, and will God hold me responsible if he should be lost by me failing to do what I can to give him a chance to be saved?

There are 9,500 white people in our fair, and otherwise good county, who are not in attendance at any Sunday school according to reliable statistical reports. Brother, sister, friend and neighbor, do you realize what a great responsibility rests upon each of us? Do you? Will we face it as brave and true soldiers, or will we be like Gideon's army, become faint hearted and turn cowards, and thus do shame to our noble cause? Time alone will tell the results.

On the second Tuesday of October next, is the day on which the battle will be set in active engagement with the enemy of our noble cause and every soldier will be needed to storm and help take the strong holds of the enemy and hall down the red flag of hereditary indifference, and plant in its stead, the spotless white flag of the great Sunday school army, inscribed with victory in the name of our great King Emmanuel.

Chilton county has been taken captive for Christ. Attention, Captains, (Sunday school Superintendents) see that your company (the Sunday school) is all in readiness to drop everything and rally around your officers at the bugle's call. Attention, commanders of divisions, (District Presidents) see that your divisions (Districts) are well organized and equipped for the great fight, for let me assure you that it is no common foe we will have to meet. But the foes are many and strongly entrenched behind the breast works of a thousand excuses, but the strongest of all is careless indifference, self righteousness and Sunday laziness. Dear soldiers of the cross, these are some of the foes to our cause we will have to meet, and must conquer or suffer a shameful defeat.

Shall we enter into this great conflict without first being qualified and equipped for the work ourselves? We have a great and all-wise General to whom we can go for help in every time of need, one who has never lost a battle, willing and ready to help and give such instructions as we will need on this great occasion. So now let us put ourselves in training with Him, by going to Him in earnest prayer each day, until we have the assurance of success, and then will we know that He heareth us, and will be swift and sure to give us the desire of our hearts.

Awake! Awake! thou that sleepest, and Christ will give thee life.
Your commander in chief,
A. HORN, County Pres.

ALABAMA AGRICULTURAL FAIR.

The Third annual Fair of the Alabama Agricultural Association will be held at Vandiver Park, Montgomery, Ala., October 18-24 inclusive 1908.

Fairs of this kind are indisputable evidence of progress. Whenever held they show that the people of the contiguous territory are industrious, intelligent and progressive. Our Fair means that the State of Alabama has resources worthy of general attention and a people who know how to improve and utilize them. Well arranged Fairs benefit all avenues of industrial life.

The farmers and live stock breeders of Alabama are evincing great interest in the coming Fair, and appreciate the benefit derived from the annual exhibition of the products of their farms and herds. A fine racing program of harness and running horses has been arranged for each afternoon. The very best of free attractions have been secured. There will be two series of free acts each afternoon and evening. These acts embrace some of the most nerve thrilling aerial feats, high wire walking, high diving, and Wild West performances.

One of the features of the Fair will be the horse show, at night in a brilliantly illuminated arena in front of the grand stand. Ricci's premium band will furnish music both afternoon and evening.

Arrangements have also been made for attractions on "The Curve," consisting of fifteen to twenty high-class shows, clean and free from all objectionable features. Ample police force will be provided, and good order maintained at all times.

The Premium List has been most liberally prepared, particularly in the agricultural and livestock departments. The Main Building will contain a profusion of interesting exhibits. The earnest co-operation of exhibitors is solicited in making our Third Annual Fair the most successful of any held by the Association. Prepare to come—Tell your neighbors to come—You cannot afford to miss the opportunity.

All railroads will give low rates. For further information, address ALA. AGRICULTURAL ASSN., Frank P. Chaffee, Sec'y, Box 583, Montgomery, Ala.

Isabella, District 37.

We are going to have an educational Rally here the 2nd Saturday in August. Judge Reynolds will lecture at 10 o'clock and Prof. Rasco at 11. After which we will have dinner on the ground for everybody. After dinner we will have volunteer speeches from a number of teachers of the county.

We will also have plenty of ice cream and lemonade on the ground, and are thinking very seriously of having a big barbecue too. Everybody has a cordial invitation to come and spend the day with us.

Help the Stomach

It is like a lame ankle.
It will never get well while you
use and abuse it.
But rest it completely and Nature
restores its strength.
You need a perfect digester.
Not people alone, for people di-
gests albumen only.
There are starch and fats and phosphates which must be digested
too.
And half of digestion takes place
in the bowels. You must supply
what is needed there.
It is not an easy matter to create a perfect digester. It has taken us years.
There are plenty of ways to digest part of the food, but that isn't sufficient.
A digester must deal with a mixture of foods.
It must do all that the stomach does when well, and all that the bowels do.
Kodol alone will do that.
If any food remains undigested,
it irritates the stomach lining.
The pain tells you that.
That is why the stomach fails
to recover—the irritation makes it impossible.
Kodol leaves no food undigested
—leaves nothing to cause irritation or pain.
The result is, the stomach gets
well very quickly.
Dieting is unnecessary.
The body requires a variety of food. If you starve it, some parts
are robbed of their nourishment.
Eat what you need, and let Kodol digest it. For food will do more for weak stomachs than medicine.

The Choice of Captain Ebenezer.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1924, by Clarissa Mackie.

CAPTAIN EBENEZER HOBSON washed and dried his dishes with amazing celerity. In a trice they stood in shining rows on the trim dresser, and the gaunt form of the captain was bent over his little cook stove, while his great brown hands played the blackening brush vigorously. When the stove shone like a mirror and the kettle fairly sparkled with cleanliness, the captain swept out the kitchen and hung the broom upon its accustomed hook, with a sigh of relief. He lighted an old pipe and sat down on the doorstep with his back against the lintel and his keen blue eyes fixed across the bay to where the Lodge light shone like a large red star.

It was after sunset, and the pale pink and purplish of the afterglow were fading from the western sky. Captain Ebenezer was lost in reverie. His blackened pipe went out all unnoticed and hung from his fingers listlessly, while the old sailor whistled softly to himself. Suddenly he slapped his knee and burst into a hearty laugh.

"Ho, ho!" he chuckled. "I guess that will fetch one or two of 'em! Let me see. Now, the Widder Banks says, says she, 'It ain't no good for man to live alone, Cap'n Ebenezer, and, moreover, 'tain't always good for women, either.' Now, I wonder if Widder Banks meant I should ask Miss Phoebe to change her name? Again the captain shook with laughter as he contemplated upon the rather complex state of his love affairs, for bluf, hearty Captain Ebenezer had tired of his long, lonesome years of widowhood and had determined to seek another companion to share his snug cottage on the beach and the proceeds of his fishing smack, the Saucy Liz.

"Now," mused the captain, "there's Miss Phoebe, as trim a little craft as ever sailed the seas. She's good natured and a good cook, and I guess she ain't afraid of the water. A sailor's wife ought to be able to sail across the gulf. I don't know, though, whether she'd move down to my cabin. If Miss Phoebe won't have me, I'll have to ask the widder. There ain't another woman with marryin' within twenty miles; but, Lor, the widder's tongue 'll make things lively, I suppose!"

Captain Ebenezer had sighed after Miss Phoebe Lummis for many months. That little lady's utter indifference to his society had chilled his ardent sailor heart, and he had changed his matrimonial course in the direction of the Widow Banks' brown house on the high hill overlooking the bay. Captain Ebenezer had made up his mind to marry, and marry he would, one or the other of the two object of his choice—whichever one would have him. That night the wind changed and blew restlessly from the southward. The pale sun rose on a gray-green bay whipped with white foam and on long green waves that broke on the beach with a sullen roar that was music to Captain Ebenezer's ears. "It's pretty roughish," he muttered between the teeth clinched on his pipe, "but the Saucy Liz is as safe as a rockin' chair, and if either of them two gals is scared to go out in her she won't do for me." He spat reflectively at one great roller and stepped back as it broke with a hissing roar over his feet.

"Pretty near got me that time, go! darn yer!" he chuckled, pulling his coat tighter about him. He was standing facing the shore road toward the little village which nestled between two high, protecting hills. "Good mornin', Mrs. Banks," he called cheerily as the widow opened her door and came out to greet him. "I'm out to Bar Island for a mess of blues. Thought mebbe you'd enjoy the sail." Mrs. Banks cast a startled glance over the captain's burly shoulder toward the tossing, tumbling, whitecapped bay.

"You ain't afraid, are you?" asked the captain, looking at her. "I'm afraid of the ship and the sea, but I'm not afraid of you." "You wouldn't you wouldn't ob-stalwart form proceeding down the path. "I believe I see Phoebe Lummis trustin' herself to the Saucy Liz or any other craft on a day like this. I guess victuals for two will be a-plenty this day!" She closed the door and went within, where she busied herself over her preparations with more trepidation than Captain Ebenezer would have believed she could display.

In the meantime the captain had rolled up the trim path bordered with snowy clam shells which outlined rows of richly colored dahlias and gay, many hued asters.

"Terribly neat, Miss Phoebe," he muttered dubiously as he tiptoed across the freshly painted porch and rang the bell.

Miss Phoebe Lummis, small, exquisitely neat in person and delicately neat in form and feature, as Captain Ebenezer mentally inventoried her, smiled pleasantly upon the good looking sailor man.

"Come right in, captain," she said cheerfully, throwing open the door of her sunny parlor, where the honey-suckle vines cast dancing shadows on the walls. "Do sit down while I take my cookies out of the oven. I'll be back in a minute."

Captain Ebenezer looked around the room approvingly. There were a gayly figured brussels carpet, a whatnot containing strange seashells and curiosities from foreign lands, great ragged branches of coral flanking the fireplace and comfortable old fashioned chairs. There were geraniums in the front windows and a canary singing in an adjoining room. Many a long winter evening had the captain played cribbage with Miss Phoebe, and many a drink of sweet cider had been quaffed to wash down the deliciously crisp cookies and light doughnuts that she offered for his refreshment. In spite of this entertainment the captain stood in wholesome fear of Miss Phoebe, who spoke what she thought in brief terms, and it was the fear of getting the right about from Miss Phoebe that deterred the captain from uttering the words of affection that so often trembled on his lips.

"It's a dreadful day on the water," began Miss Phoebe when she had returned and seated herself opposite the captain. "I don't know who'd want to be out on a day like this!"

"I'm goin' out myself," ventured the latter, twirling his sea-weed in his horny hands. "And I came in to say that I'd like to have you go out with me in the Saucy Liz. There's a good fresh wind, and it won't hurt you none."

"Never!" returned Miss Lummis decidedly. "I'd be scared to death if I got aboard. I ain't no sailor, Captain Ebenezer, so you'll sail without me this time!" she uttered pleasantly upon the discomfited sailor.

"The Widder Banks is sailin' alone to Bar Island for a mess of blues, and I thought you'd be sailin' with her one another. You ain't a good sailor, then, are you?" Captain Ebenezer's voice expressed potent anxiety as he ventured this question.

"Not a bit. I like a sail on a smooth sea, but no sea-weed for me, captain. You ask me some time when it's not rough and I'll go with you gladly."

"You wouldn't you wouldn't ob-easy there?" Captain Ebenezer thrust a hand inside the collar of his flannel shirt and yanked it frantically. With sudden desperation he jumped to his feet and extended one hand pleadingly. "You wouldn't marry me, Miss Phoebe, would you?" he pleaded desperately.

Miss Phoebe's smiling laugh died away as a pink flush rose to her delicate cheeks. "I might if you asked me, captain," she said demurely.

"I thought mebbe you wouldn't want to leave this pretty home of yours, Phoebe," said the captain tenderly as later he occupied a place on the sofa beside his fiancée.

"I figured," began Miss Phoebe dreamily, and then she stopped, with a sudden shocked expression in her mild eyes. "I mean," she went on hastily, "I should think we could move this house right down the bluff and fasten it on to your cabin, you know."

"Surest way, my hearty," said Captain Ebenezer blithely. "And now?" "You better be going along, captain," interrupted Miss Phoebe briskly. "I see the widder going down the road, and you don't want to keep her waiting."

Captain Ebenezer stared, aghast. He had forgotten the Widow Banks and the proposed trip to Bar Island.

"I'm an engaged man now, Phoebe," he said, mopping his forehead and looking at her out of troubled eyes. "Oh, go along, Ebenezer, do!" she said, with playful impetuosity. "I ain't a mite jealous. You wasn't engaged when you asked her to go. Bring me a mess of blues, and you can come to tea and eat 'em."

Captain Ebenezer's blithely smile faded from his face as he proceeded down the road to the beach, where he could see the red knitted jacket of Myra Banks moving toward the landing where the Saucy Liz dragged at her anchor. What the Widow Banks might expect from him as a result of this marked attention he could not, dared not, imagine. If he had only gone to Miss Phoebe's first! He tried to recall if he had ever uttered a remark to the keen witted widow which might have committed him in any way to an avowal of love. There was none that he could remember. He had been very indirect.

"Here I be a-waitin' for you," began Myra Banks playfully as she deposited a heavy basket on the landing. "I expect we'll have to eat up all the victuals so's I can put the plums in the basket. Where's Phoebe?"

"Phoebe, she—Miss Phoebe ain't a-comin'. She thinks it's too rough for her," exclaimed Captain Ebenezer, reddening under the keen gaze of the widow. "Now, Mrs. Banks, jest step into the dory, your foot right in the middle—that's it—easy now—umph—so!" With surprising agility the big captain took his place in the rocking boat and with a few quick, long strokes brought them to the side of the Saucy Liz.

It is needless to record this voyage over the careening seas, for neither one of the occupants of the sloop cared to remember the unpleasantness of that day. To the widow it was one long, nauseous period of terror. To Captain Ebenezer it was a dark and gloomy passage. The successful outcome of his wooing was counterbalanced by the fear of what the widow might expect from his marked attentions in the past. He trailed his lines and pulled in myriads of shining, steely bluefish ere they grounded on the pebbly beach of the quiet cove.

The widow tottered ashore on Captain Ebenezer's arm, and they sat down, and while Myra Banks languidly discussed the contents of the lunch basket, which the captain attacked with a right good will, the widow seemed to be revolving some weighty matter within her mind, a matter that might excite her want of appetite after the bracing voyage.

"I'll help you get your plums, Mrs. Banks," said the captain, looking kindly upon the pallid face and disheveled hair of his guest.

Myra Banks turned a gloomy eye upon her host and then looked back over the tossing sea of green water and shuddered.

"I guess it was a little too rough," ventured Captain Ebenezer uneasily. The continued silence of the Widow Banks was disconcerting and somewhat alarming.

Suddenly the pent up wrath of Myra Banks found vent, and she shook quivering fingers in the air before the astonished visage of the captain.

"Rough, indeed! And what do you mean by a-sailin' frail women off on a voyage like this, a-temptin' them with?"

"She—she—Mrs. Banks," expostulated the captain indignantly. "Whatever do you mean? I didn't hold out no temptations when I asked you to go. I jes' asked you to go—that was all!"

"I want to go home," retorted Mrs. Banks bitterly in reply to the captain's last remarks, and home they went, beating before the wind, mounting against heights of water and diving into valleys decked with foam. While the captain was dropping his anchor Myra Banks looked fiercely at the harbor as the flying smacks, the high wooded bluffs and around the deck of the Saucy Liz, and yet she said never a word.

Shortly she accompanied Captain Ebenezer ashore, and sullenly she parted from him, and then, just as he turned away from her, dangling a string of fish in his hand, she called to him.

"Captain Ebenezer Hobson?" "Yes," he shouted back cheerily. "I wouldn't marry a regular man for anything, so there's no need for you to come a-sailin' any more!" she faced about and plucked up the road toward home.

"Thank the Lord!" murmured Captain Ebenezer piously as he turned to the clam shell bordered path between the dahlias.

PLAYING A TROMBONE FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A Rather Easy Matter, the Musician Seemed to Think.

SUCH A SIMPLE INSTRUMENT

But Somehow or Another the Explanation Only Muddled the Man Who Wanted to Learn and Who Decided to Tackle an Accordian.

The band was playing loudly in the Trunkfistergarten, and the little bald-headed man had his eyes fastened intently on the trombone player. When the players stopped to recuperate he beckoned the man who works the loose horn over to his table and ordered two glasses of schenker.

"My name is Biggs," said the man whose hair was absent. "One of my lungs is trying to quit work, and the doctor advises me to break up its shiftless habits by blowing a brass. The careless way you yank that pump horn looks good, and I want you to put me on."

"What do you want to know?" asked the musician. "Just a hint about how you handle that wind machine so nonchalantly."

"The trombone is very simple," replied the musician, wiping his lips, which curled in thick, red volutes. "The slide is divided into seven shifts, or positions, about three inches apart. Starting with the lowest note in the first position—the slide closed—you get B flat. Push out the tubes and you hit successively A, flat, G, F sharp, F and E."

"That's only seven notes," objected Biggs. "Yes. Getting the rest depends on how you pucker your lips. In the first position you can make, figuring up toward, B flat, F, B flat, D, F, B flat and C. In the second you obtain A, E, A, C sharp, E, G and A. The third gives you A flat, E flat, A flat, C, E flat and A flat. It works out the same all the way down."

"There are higher notes that I didn't mention, but you won't want to monkey with them. But a good player has a compass of more than three octaves." Biggs looked troubled.

"Let me see," he said. "You start in the first position with B flat." "Yes," replied the other—"that is, provided you are playing in the bass clef. In the treble clef the first position is C."

"What?" exclaimed Biggs. "It's one note one time and another another?" "In the treble clef," explained the musician, "the trombone is a B flat horn. In the bass clef it is a C horn." Biggs mopped his brow.

"Say that again, will you?" he appealed. "Don't you see?" came the answer. "When the first position is C it's a B flat horn. When the same shift is B flat it's a C horn."

Biggs unbuttoned his coat. "You may call it this thing simple," he said, "but if I'll give myself up to the nearest asylum. You are talking antonyms."

"The musician grinned. 'We'll take one thing at a time,' he said. 'In getting at what a B flat horn is let's consider a cornet.' 'Let's, if it's simpler,' said Biggs hopefully.

"It's because it's always a B flat horn," replied the other. Then he added, "Except when it's an A horn." Biggs gave a sickly smile.

"The lowest note on a cornet when open—when no keys are pressed down—is really B flat," said the bandman. "But it is called C."

"That doesn't make it C," said Biggs. "For all practical purposes it does," was the reply. "There is a reason for doing this, but it's complicated and at present I'm keeping to simple facts."

"Yes, indeed," murmured Biggs. "In an orchestra, for instance, when the first violins are playing in C natural the cornetist's score is two semitones higher and is thus written in D or two sharps. When the violins are playing in D the cornet player is tooting in E or four sharps. But if things kept on this way the cornetist would soon be lost in a confusion of sharps and double sharps, so he slips on a C crook on his instrument. That raises the signature three semitones. When the fiddles play in A or three sharps the cornetist is blowing along the easy path of C natural."

"Look here," said Biggs. "If my wife is playing 'Under the Pink Lilac Bush' on the piano, couldn't I play with her from the song score?" "Not unless you can mentally transpose as you go along," said the musician. "The system looks queer at first, but it's logical. Its purpose is to bring the same music within the natural compass of all the instruments of a band or an orchestra. But if you are going to play the trombone you won't have to bother your head about any of this, as trombone music is now always written in the bass clef."

"Then what have you been talking about it for and mixing the 'up' and 'down'?" asked Biggs, frowning. "What you've been talking about," said the musician, "is the fact that you've asked me to teach you."

"I'm not," replied Biggs. "I'm only going to make my will and buy an accordian."—Washington Post.

"So that's what you're doing?" "Yes," said Biggs. "I'm not a musician, but I want to be. I want to be a musician."

"Not at all. He told it to his wife just before he died."

"Yes, that's what I mean," said Biggs. "I want to be a musician."

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

It's a child's finger and toe nails are properly cared for from infancy the danger of ingrowing toe nails and other ailments of the feet will be lessened. The finger nails should always be filed and not cut. Filing the nails will keep them thin and delicate. The nails should be trimmed in an oval shape, and if the fingers are inclined to be blunt this will often make them taper more. It is not wise to make the child nervous and cross by manhandling the nails for half an hour, for all that is necessary is to keep the nails clean and filed and the skin around the nail-roots and pushed back.

The toe nails may be cut, although the best method is to file them with a nail file or an emery stick. They should be cut straight across and not curved to the shape of the toe.

Treatment for Burns. In cases where the burn is not serious enough to require the services of a doctor, alum will be found to bring speedy relief. Dissolve two ounces of alum in one pint of hot water. Saturate cotton cloths in this solution and keep the burn well wrapped in them. The pain will soon cease and the healing process will commence immediately. If alum is not handy, use common baking powder. Sprinkle the burned surface with the baking soda, and then cover with a wet cloth. When the burn is only slight the pain will cease immediately and but one application is necessary, but when the injury extends deeper more time and a greater number of the baking soda applications will be necessary.

The white of an egg also is excellent for use on burns. Apply it with a soft brush or a wisp of old muslin. As soon as this dries put on another layer of the egg.

Electric Carpet Cleaner. Electricity is now being used to operate carpet cleaners. A Pittsburgh man recently patented the apparatus shown in the accompanying illustration, which is more serviceable than the pneumatic cleaner for small houses. It resembles the familiar carpet cleaner in appearance. A motor operates a turbine and brush, the revolutions of the latter agitating the nap of the carpet and loosening the dirt. The turbine creates a suction, drawing up all dust and dirt and depositing it in a dust receiver provided for the purpose.

It is claimed that carpets can be thoroughly cleaned on the floor and every corner can be reached. Nothing need be moved. Attachable appliances are also provided for treating walls, ceilings, cornices, chandeliers, curtains, etc. Mattresses, cushions, upholstered furniture and pillows can also be treated as well as cleaned by this appliance. The machine works noiselessly and quickly. Power to operate the apparatus can be obtained from the ordinary incandescent socket.

Knives and Fork Etiquette. There are many people who are careful of their table manners who are often puzzled about certain little points of etiquette. When using both knife and fork the knife is held in the right hand and the fork in the left. When not using the knife it should be laid along the side of the plate with the blade pointing in; the fork is then held in the right hand. In case the plate is passed for a second helping the knife and fork are laid side by side along the side of the plate, with the knife and fork grasped in the hand when passing the plate.

For Brittle Nails. Brittle nails are often the result of having the hands in water too much or of using too strong soap. If the nails are inclined to be brittle it is well to wear rubber gloves when performing any household duty which necessitates putting the hands in water. Rub olive oil into the nails every night and then pull loose white gloves over the hands, and they will soon regain their normal condition.

Hands That Perspire. Perspiring hands are caused by a poor circulation of blood and a physical weakness. The only permanent way to effect a cure is to improve the blood, but the only way to keep the hands dry is to use a powder. The powder should be applied to the hands every day, and it will keep the hands dry and prevent the hands from becoming sore.

A Word About Soap. Never warm up a dish containing soap in the water, which will make the soap runny and it will be lost. It is better to use a bar of soap in a dish, and after getting cold wash the hands with it. Soap should be used in a dish, and after getting cold wash the hands with it.

2 KILLED, 20 WOUNDED

Bloody Price Paid by Pensacola Mob to Lynch Negro.

AN ATTACK WAS MADE ON JAIL.

Sheriff and Deputies Made Valiant Attempt to Defend Prisoner, but After Two Hours' Fight the Mob Was Victorious—Negro Lynched.

Pensacola, Fla., July 30.—A mob of over 1,000 persons stormed the Pensacola jail Wednesday night and lynched a negro, but at fearful cost, two men being killed and over twenty wounded, some of them fatally.

Among those wounded are several deputies.

Battle Raged for Hours.

For several hours the fight raged about the jail, the sheriff and deputies pouring volleys into the mob, but the mob finally triumphed, winning its way into the jail, securing the negro, and dragging him to the public square, where he was lynched.

The negro lynched was Leander Shaw, who assaulted and nearly killed Mrs. Lillian Davis in her home in the suburbs.

First Attack on Jail.

The mob numbered probably a thousand persons, and gathered early, but there was no apparent indication that the crowd, which completely surrounded the jail, contemplated making a rush until nearly two hours later.

The first indication was when a rail about a dozen men upon the iron gate of the jail yard. At the same moment the entire mob seemed to catch the spirit, and with yells and curses dashed for the jail entrance. Some climbed over the tall iron fence, while others hammered upon the gate.

The sheriff with half a dozen deputies, stood in windows upstairs with drawn revolvers and shot rifles. The sheriff pleaded with the mob at the same time telling them he would defend the prisoner at the cost of every life present.

Officers Open Fire.

His words had no effect, and the moment the first blow was struck on the gate, a volley of shots flamed from the upper windows of the jail.

This was answered by the crowd, which poured volley after volley into the jail windows, wounding two deputies. The mob was momentarily driven back with many wounded and one dead as a result of the deadly aim of the sheriff and his deputies.

One man, "Bud" Nichols, who was the first to enter the jail yard after the gate was broken down, was shot dead, while half a dozen of the mob and two deputies were wounded, some perhaps fatally.

Mob Victorious.

But the mob was determined to get the negro and, strongly reinforced by residents from the scene of the assault, made another attack.

The officers stood their ground valiantly, but the mob was finally victorious, securing the negro and riding him to the public square.

The affair has created the greatest excitement in Pensacola.

Negro's Brutal Crime.

The crime of the negro was most brutal. Thursday Leander Shaw entered the home of Mrs. Lillian Davis, the young wife of a resident of the suburbs, and attempted to assault her. Mrs. Davis fought desperately for her honor. She first picked up a revolver and ordered the negro from the house, but he grasped the revolver, and then taking his knife out, cut her throat, giving her infant child a blow as he passed out.

He was captured after a fierce fight. The body of Shaw was cut down by order of the authorities.

Mrs. Wm. Davis, whose throat was cut by the negro and for which crime he died, is yet alive, but it is said she cannot recover from her injuries.

The babe who was struck by the negro at the time he tried to kill the mother, it is said, will fully recover.

Atlanta, Aug. 1.—That trade cannot be used as an agent in the solicitation of orders for liquor to be shipped to Georgia has just been decided by the court of appeals in a decision handed down in the case of A. M. Ross versus the state.

The decision was written by Judge Richard B. Russell. It cites the case of DeFamaster versus South Dakota, 205 U. S. 92, in which it is held that the "general" power of the states to control and regulate, within their borders, the business of dealing in or soliciting orders for, the purchase of intoxicating liquors is beyond question.

WHOLESALE HANGING

Four Negroes Lynched at Nashville, Ky.

BY A MOB OF FIFTY MEN

The Lynching Was Quietly Accomplished, No One Knowing of It Until Bodies Were Seen Dangling from Trees the Following Morning.

Repulseville, Ky., Aug. 1.—Four negroes, Virgil, Tom and Robert Jones and Joe Riley, were taken from jail here early Saturday and hanged to a tree on the edge of town.

No shots were fired by the mob, which was composed of about fifty men, and the people of the town knew nothing of the affair until daylight revealed the four bodies dangling from a tree just outside Repulseville on the Nashville pike. The following note was pinned on one of the bodies.

Posted Warning.

"Let this be a warning to you niggers to let white people alone, or you will go the same way. Hugh Rogers better shut up or quit."

The negroes who were lynched were members of a lodge and at a meeting recently, it is said, they approved of the murder of James Cunningham, a white farmer, by his negro tenant, Rufus Browder.

The Cunningham murder occurred in the southern part of Logan county, and it is supposed that the mob was made up of men from that part of the country.

The negroes had been in jail for several days, and while there had been considerable unrest since the attempt on the part of the mob to take Browder, the slayer of Cunningham, from the jail, some nights ago, no real trouble was anticipated, and there was no guard around the prison.

The effort to get Browder failed, owing to the fact that he was spirited out of jail by the sheriff and sent to Bowling Green and later to Louisville, where he is now confined, awaiting trial.

Mob Came Quietly.

The mob came into town so quietly that not one of the residents of the city was awakened from their slumber. Proceeding at once to the county jail, the jailer, Jake Butts, was summoned to the door, his residence being directly connected with the prison. When he made his appearance he found himself covered with rifles and shotguns and was given the command to turn over the keys of the jail or be shot down.

After a short parley with the members of the mob in which he tried to persuade them to go away without doing any violence, he was finally forced to hand over the keys.

The mob then entered the jail, and finding the four negroes, forced them to go with them. Two of the men, not being given time to dress, were taken along in their night shirts, and the whole party proceeded at once to the tree on the outskirts of the city on the Nashville pike, where the negroes were strung up in a row.

No Shots Were Fired.

Contrary to the usual custom of mobs no shots were fired at the swinging victims, and the mob dispersed as soon as it had finished its work.

There is no clue to the members of the band, as the jailer, the only person who saw them, failed to get a good look at them and would not recognize them.

The bodies of the negroes were cut down during the morning.

MORTALITY AMONG INFANTS

Six Hundred and Sixty-Chicago, Aug. 4.—During the of July 669 babies, under the old died in Chicago.

Most of these deaths, the health department believes, was the result of ignorance of parents. Probably thirds of the children could have been saved.

Sanitary premises and proper feeding of milk, according to the five physicians who have been gating the congested districts, have the direction of the health department have less to do with the high mortality than generally is believed.

By far the greater part of the deaths among babies, the department believes, is due to improper feeding, over-dressing, lack of personal cleanliness, and want of the factors that produce the illness that kills babies in weather.

CHILD'S LONG JOURNEY.
Remarkable Experience of Eight-Old Syrian Girl.
Detroit Harbor, Mich., Aug. 4.— Barishah, eight years old, stopped a steamer from Chicago Sunday for journey alone 10,000 miles to Damascus, Syria.

The child's trip was the more impressive to her having been accompanied by her father, who left without friends in Marshall France, a Syrian who had offered protection to the little girl, had robbed and deserted her at Marseille.

Appealing to the proprietor of the hotel, the child succeeded in word of her predicament sent to father, who was then in New York and additional funds were promised her. Relatives met her in New York and placed her on board westbound train, and her father awaiting her arrival here on Sunday steamer from Chicago.

Large Orders for Pig Iron.
Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 4.—Pig iron is leaving Alabama in train loads and the statement is made that the number of contracts have lately been reduced which will shortly call for increased production in this state.
Special from Sheffield says that train load of forty-five cars loaded with pig iron has just left there bound for London, N. J., the iron to be used partly by water. An order for 11,500 tons is being filled from the furnace in the Sheffield district.
Furnace has just resumed operation near that place.

Bishop Farley Visits the Pope.
Rome, Aug. 4.—Archbishop Farley of New York, visited the Pope Monday and was received by Pius, with marked distinction. The archbishop presented the Jubilee offer and offering of the New York diocese and gave a satisfactory report of conditions there. The Pope thanked the archbishop for the offering of Peter's Pence and sent the apostolic benediction to the clergy in Italy of New York.

Burnham, Architect, Injured.
Detroit, Mich., Aug. 4.—Daniel Burnham, of Chicago, the architect who designed the Chicago world buildings, was taken to Grace hospital yesterday night as the result of falling on his head while walking on a moving street car. Physicians say there is a possibility that Mr. Burnham's skull may have been fractured but this could not be determined positively.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson VI.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 9, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xxi, 25-34.
Memory Verse, 28. Golden Text.
Ps. xli.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Copyright, 1908, by American Bible Association.
We saw in last week's lesson that David had been in the midst of his travels with his brother Jonathan and his wife Michal, and that he had been troubled by an evil spirit by God's permission, for if the truth is rejected God allows delusion to take us (I Thess. ii, 11). We are recommended by his servants to employ one who could play skillfully on the harp to quiet and soothe him. David, the son of Jesse, was mentioned as a suitable man. He was sent for and came, and Saul loved him greatly, and he became his armor bearer, and God gave him success in driving away the evil spirit (xvi, 14-23).

After this David returned again to feed his father's sheep at Bethlehem (xvii, 15), and doubtless he cared for the sheep just as cheerfully as he waited on Saul, perhaps more so, for there would not be as much of God in the atmosphere of Saul's home as out in the fields with the sheep, but this spirit of being just as willing to keep sheep as to serve a king, or vice versa, is the great thing. "For any manner of service wholly at Thy commandment" (I Chron. xviii, 21). While David is thus employed in the quiet home life, being fitted by communion with God for greater things, like Moses at Midian, or Paul in Arabia, or John the Baptist in the wilderness, or Jesus at Nazareth, the Philistines gather their armies against Israel, and the two armies are face to face in battle array with a valley between them.
Day by day their champion comes forth in his strength, crying: "I defy the armies of Israel this day. Give me a man that we may fight together."

And so it continued morning and evening for forty days (verses 10, 16).
Although Saul was head and shoulders taller than an ordinary man, and he was man against man and God was left out, both Saul and all Israel were dismayed and greatly afraid, and when the men of Israel saw the man they fled from him (verses 11, 24). The three eldest of David's brethren were in Saul's army, and while this state of things continued Jesse one day sent David to carry some food to his brethren and to see how they fared.
As he talked with his brethren and asked them of their welfare Goliath came forth and in his customary style defied the armies of Israel, and David heard him and saw Israel flee before him. All his soul is stirred as he hears this blasphemy defying the armies of the living God, and as he sees the reproach resting on Israel because of him he asks, "What shall be done to the man that killeth the reproach from Israel?" His eldest brother heard him and was angry with him and accused him of pride and haughtiness of heart and of leaving his sheep to come down to see the battle.

It is more gratifying to the flesh to talk back, but a soft answer is God's way. Saul is told of David and his words, and so he sent for him. To Saul's great amazement, David offers to go out and fight Goliath and tells how God enabled him to kill both the lion and a bear as he kept his father's sheep, and he was sure that the same God would give him victory over this Philistine. In a very flippant way, as I understand it, Saul said, "Go, and the Lord be with thee" (verse 33). It sounds somewhat like some of the "God bless you's" that we hear.
Words from the heart carry a blessing, but mere lip words are idle. What a sight David must have been with Saul's armor on, but he was soon rid of it, for, as he said, he had not proved it.
We can only use in the service of our Lord and in our conflict with the devil that which we have proved in our own personal experience, and the proving in private is often a qualification for a more public experience.

With his staff and his sling and five smooth stones in his scrip, he went forth to meet the great God-defying adversary, but conscious that he was God's man and seeking only the honor of Jehovah he could say, as he did say,
"I come in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied," "that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel and all this assembly shall know that the Lord saveth not with sword and spear, for the battle is the Lord's" (verses 45-47).

What real for God? What selfish confidence in him? What forgetfulness of self and of people? Gazed upon in wonder by the many thousands of Israel and with scorn and derision by the giant and the vast multitude who relied upon him as their champion, he went forth calmly and fearlessly, with no thought but that God would be glorified. Goliath cursed him and said that he would give his flesh to the birds and to the beasts, but David hastened and ran to meet him, and taking a stone from his scrip, he slung it with swiftness in the name and in the power of Jehovah, and it smote into the giant's forehead, and he fell upon his face to the earth. Then he ran again, and taking the giant's sword out of its sheath, he stood upon him and cut off his head and brought it to Jerusalem and put his armor in his tent (verses 50-54).

There is no less demand than for the white linen shirt to wear with white shirts.
The only real rival to the shirt of Khaki is modish and is showing signs of a long and successful career. In Paris being much used for colorful and elegant material, it is being used for the most modest and simple of clothing.

THE MINUET.

What do you think, girls—that old maid, Hepzibah Springer, is going to dance at our May festival? Did you ever hear of anything more ridiculous? And Dorothy Palmer tossed her head disdainfully at the thought of what to her seemed an unwarrantable proceeding.

"Oh, do tell us all about it, Dorothy,
dear! Come, tell us all you know."
"Well that will not take her very long," chimed in one of the sweet girls, who did not regard Dorothy in a very favorable light. "I mean, of course, dear, it will not take you long to tell the story, for it is well known you have a wonderful faculty of condensing a vast amount of information in a few most refreshingly pungent remarks."

"If you girls will only be quiet," remarked Dorothy, "I will tell you the little I know. Today I went to Miss Villiers' dancing class to practice the Minuet, and who should walk in but Hepzibah. Miss Villiers had one of her wretched headaches and was about to dismiss the class when what did that antiquated maiden do but step forward and volunteer to put the young folks through their paces."

"Well, in justice to our village spinster, she knows a thing or two about steps, and Villiers became so interested that she forgot her headache and was most profuse in her compliments. 'My dear Miss Hepzibah,' she said, 'I thought myself capable of teaching these children, but here are you capable of teaching me. Will you not continue to assist me? Will you not introduce some old time dance? It will be such an innovation!'"

"I have not danced for years," answered Hepzibah, and would you believe it, girls, there were tears in the poor old creature's eyes. "But," she added,
"I will comply with your request. Let me have my choice of these people and I will put them through the evolutions of a minuet. We will costume in old fashioned clothes suitable for an old fashioned dance. I myself can wear a dress in which I last danced the minuet, almost forty years ago!"

The girls chattered merrily over the affair, and I am afraid poor Miss Hep-zibah was ridiculed without stint. But Hepzibah went about her preparations for the dance with methodical precision. The chosen few who were to be in her set met nightly at her little cottage and to the melody of Mozart's
"Don Juan," squeaked out of a wheezy tuned piano, went through the movements of the stately number in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

At last the night of the dance arrived. The town hall was peopled to its fullest capacity, for nearly every family in that and adjacent villages had a representative in one or another of the various dances. Many were there who remembered Miss Hepzibah when she was a much younger woman.
The gossip chattered among themselves and raked their memories, recalling events in her early life. Some of them hinted at the cause of her state of single blessedness, if such it could be called, and every one was curious to see her dance.

Miss Hepzibah was late in appearing, and her entrance was the cause of no little excitement and some admiration.
She wore an old rose silk quilted petticoat, with an elaborately figured silk overskirt. An old lace kerchief was folded over her breast, and on her feet were high heeled white slippers somewhat yellowed with age. To crown all, her scant hair was arranged over a cushion. That hair needed no powder. It was already as white as newly fallen snow.

Miss Villiers herself came forward to greet Miss Hepzibah.
"Oh, my dear," she said, "Whatever shall we do? Your partner has not come. I am afraid you will be very much annoyed, but the best we can do is to find a substitute for him. A Mr.
Brooks, a new arrival in the village, has proffered his services. Do you mind?"

If any one had closely observed Hep-zibah at that moment it would have been noticed that a tinge of color had crept into her usually colorless face.
"At such a time as this one cannot choose," she said. "There is no other alternative. Mr. Brooks is very kind.
I have no doubt that I will find him a most acceptable partner."

20,000 TELEGRAPH OPERATORS NEEDED

Young Men Prepare Yourself for Good Positions.

On account of the new 8-hour law passed by congress in the interest of telegraphers, and also on account of so many new railroads being built and old lines extended, an unusual demand for operators has been created. Conservative estimates have placed the number of additional Operators that will be required during the next ten months at approximately 20,000.

YOUNG MEN NOW IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY! Enroll in our school NOW and in only four to six months we will have you qualified for splendid positions. Telegraph Operators receive from $50.00 upwards. Our school has been established twenty years; its equipment is perfect; instruction thorough and practical; positions positively guaranteed our graduates. Board in Newnan is very cheap; the town is healthful and the people are cordial. Two Main Line Railroad Wires run into our School room. No other school in the United States has such up-to-date and practical facilities for the benefit of its students. Write at once for free descriptive literature.

Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle, of Phillips, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Phillips Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and although sixty years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

A Mere Pittance.

Mrs. Nurich—I told Widow Downes to send her boy to you and you'd give him a position. Mr. Nurich—Well, I didn't give him no position. He came with a note from her, an' she said in the note, "I must find employment for my boy, even if he works for a mere pittance." The nerve of her callin' me "a mere pittance!"—Philadelphia Press.

A Dry Joke.

"Will you take something to drink?" "With pleasure." The photo was taken, and the latter said: "But what about that little invitation?" "Oh, sir, that is just a trade ruse of mine to give a natural and interested expression to the face."—Tit-Bits.

SOLDIERS IN BATTLE
How Men Feel and Act With Death All About Them.

THE STORY OF A PRIVATE.
With the Beginning of the Fight
Comes Fear, but That Soon Passes Away in the Eagerness For Killing.
Varying Effects of Wounds.

A narrative of the battle of Solferino is told by a veteran survivor to Robert Blackleton appears in Harper's. It is, word for word, a chapter of history as seen by a man in the ranks. Incidents which impressed him are curious:
"We halted, and a Tyrolean lying on the ground cried out: 'I am dying. Give me to drink.' Whereat my companion stopped to offer him a flask, and as he stooped the Tyrolean struck savagely at him with his bayonet, but my companion jumped back, and it missed him, and he said, 'You Tyrolean, you said you wanted a drink before you died, and now you shall die without the drink.' And he stuck his bayonet through him as a boy would stick a pin through a fly."
"The fighting soon began again, and it was very fierce. It was soon that we came to know that we were to capture a little village and the hills about the village. The village was named San Martino, and there were walled barns and gardens, and the Austrians were very strong there."

"The bursting of the shells was very bad. Sometimes all of us close by would be thrown down and be covered with mud and earth, but most of us would jump up again, not wounded, but always there were some who would not jump up again, because they were wounded or dead."
"At the beginning of a battle a soldier feels afraid. At the beginning of this battle I felt afraid, and I know that other men felt afraid, though it was not our first battle, and we knew what it was to be under fire."

"So it was that at the beginning we commended ourselves; we felt like death, but soon that passed away, and we thought no more of death, but only of the killing of the Austrians."
"All around me men were killed. There were heads and arms blown off, and men flew into pieces like the smashing of a jug. But we did not care. We thought nothing of it. I do not know that we even knew we saw such things, but some of them came to me as I sit with you and talk of that long day. We did not notice, and we did not think that at any moment we too might have our heads blown off or be smashed into little pieces like the breaking of a jug."

"Once, when we rushed over the big guns and killed the men who still fought with us, we turned the guns to fire on the Austrians as they flew away, but they had driven lists of steel into the touchholes, and so we could not fire them. They were of a courage, those Austrians."
"Only once in all that battle did I think much of what I saw or heard, and that was when there was the terrible screaming of a captain who had his foot shot off. He twisted and turned as he cried out, and it was a very bad sound. But it is just as it chances. I saw many men who were hurt worse than that captain and many who were blown into little bits, but I did not trouble about them. It is just as it chances so."

"It is very often that a man does not know that he is hurt. I remember that once there was a man near me with a great hole in his forehead, but he ran right on with us with his bayonet, and I thought, 'He will fall dead.' But after that I saw him no more, for there was always the fighting."
"The storm and the blackness, they made of us a great mixing. Yes; it was a very great tangling, for all lines were lost, and I know that sometimes Austrians struck at Austrians and sometimes Italians struck at Italians, for we were in a very great mixing and very fierce in the blackness of that storm."

"We were told to lie down and sleep. So we lay down where we were, among the dead and the wounded, among the Italians and the Austrians."
"And we slept. Yes; we were tired, for we had fought hard for all that long, long day, and on that hill that at last we had gained we slept, and we gave no heed to the dead men or the wounded."
"The wounded they made very great cries, and there were men sent to go among them with lights. Some were surgeons, and some were men to carry them to the field hospitals. But the most of us we lay there and slept, and we were very tired, and we knew that with the morning there might be another fight."

The Hungry Author.
The following is an extract from the notebook of an author:
"Rose at 5 and had a sonnet and a glass of cold water for breakfast."
"Retired early in the evening, without supper, as I feared the neighbors would be annoyed by the rattling of the knives and forks."—St. Louis Republic.

Failed to See
"Poor man!" said the kind lady.

"Well, mum," answered Tired Traveler, "de foist time dat I noticed it was when I was out lookin' for work."

Put a little more in than you take out, and your purse will soon fill.

MY QUICK CHANGE
I am an actor accustomed to coach and act with many amateurs. What is most trying to me in my connection is when I am requested to play a secondary part to some unfortunate gentleman who considers himself qualified by nature to play the first part. For this I need not say I exact a double fee, but the wear and tear of my feelings are more than proportionately severe.

The character that is sometimes affected by these deluded persons is that of Sir Charles Coldstream in "Used Up." Military men in particular who have cultivated an impressive manner and a drawing voice are prone to imagine themselves fitted for this performance, and many a fifty pound note have I had for playing the blacksmith to a very, very and caricature of that pleasant baronet.

I was asked to go so down at a certain great mansion at Richmond one Easter. At first I positively declined upon the plea that I was drawing large houses as Lord Fribble in my own theater and could not be excused, even for a single night, but the following letter persuaded me to accede to the request:
My Dear Blathers—You must come, for there is no man in England I can trust to play the blacksmith to my Sir Charles except yourself. As for your theater, that is easily managed. Your Lord Fribble is over by 10 o'clock; then jump into a cab and catch the 10:30 to Richmond. "Used Up" will be made our last piece expressly to suit this arrangement, and you can change your costume in the cab or train. I inclose check for £25, lest in my hurry and excitement on the night I should chance to forget it. Yours ever, PLANTAGENET.

As to dressing in the train, that was not to be thought of, for only imagine if there should be no compartment without a lady in it! But to devote the half hour I had to get to the station to dressing seemed feasible enough. It was true that the piece in which I played Lord Fribble was generally concluded by 10, but a few more minutes had to be allowed for in my case, since I always had to come forward to acknowledge the calls from behind the curtain. Of course I might have omitted this, but no earthly considerations, or, at all events, no considerations with respect to an amateur performance at Richmond, would have induced Alphonse Blathers to commit such a discourtesy.

At 10:05, then, on the night in question I hurried from the theater in the splendid attire of Lord Fribble and jumped into the cab that was at the door in readiness for me, while an attendant placed a carpetbag by my side containing the costume of the blacksmith.

"Drive quick, sirrah," were my last words and "I'll make 'em spin, my lord" (in allusion probably to the wheels), was the obsequious reply. My periwig was still on my head, though my blacksmith's clothes were on my body, when I passed through Waterloo bridge turnpike, and never probably had the tollman betrayed so much astonishment during his official duties as at the moment when he received my toll.

But the next moment I had thrust it into the carpetbag with the rest of my fine attire and became, with the help of a little lampblack, as genuine a son of the anvil as any man whose carriage has broken down on the road would wish to see.

The clock in the Waterloo road showed but five minutes to the half hour, and all my thoughts were concentrated upon the question of whether I should reach the station in time. I did reach it in time, though with a minute or two only to spare, and, jumping out upon the platform, held out my hand with 2 shillings in it to the cabman. It is always my custom to pay such persons liberally, and at first I thought the cabman's astonishment was due to the magnitude of the sum thus offered to his notice. His eyes became the size of saucers, his mouth approached the dimensions of a punch bowl rather than those of a slop basin.

"None of your blood money!" cried he. "Oh, mother of Moses, here's a villain! been and murdered a hereditary nobleman! Police, police!"
At that fatal cry the porters, who I must say, had not shown themselves very alert to take my carpetbag, began to gather around me, and at the same time an inspector showed himself at the ticket office door.

"That man is mad," said I, addressing this official. "I have given him his fare and a shilling over, and he won't take it."
But the cabman had by this time swung himself off his perch. "He has murdered a hereditary nobleman!" was that idiot's reiterated cry, which, being taken up by the porters, the passengers and the passersby, presently appealed into a tempest of accusation.

It was vain for me in my blacksmith's garb to offer a syllable of denial. My accuser was evidently actuated by a genuine sense of justice, and the fact of my having come in a cab at all seemed doubtless of itself to demand an explanation.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.
Mr. Edward E. Hensy, with the United States Express Co., Chicago, writes, "Our General Superintendent, Mr. Quick, handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack of the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many of our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier who served with Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the 23rd Ohio Regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which his Remedy stops at once." For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Fairview.
Editor Banner—I have noticed in your paper that a part of the Republicans of this county have decided it was time to reform, but I say there is no reform as long as they stand for the Republican "principles."
Fellow citizens, do you intend to go on and vote the Republican ticket and cause your country to go to destruction? Look at the affairs of our county, look at the condition of our nation!
Now just as long as you continue to cast your vote for the Republicans, who respect the negro as one of their family, who takes the power from our congressmen and gives it to the speaker of the house of Representatives, who is supporting the Wall Street gang and the trusts, and robbing the southern people, who has tried to diminish our southern Congressmen, and who has refused to let it be known publicly, who contributed, and how much was contributed for the purpose of carrying on the campaign of 1908, you will continue to be robbed of the independence which our forefathers so dearly purchased.

Fellow citizens, take up the "Union" and read the communications and see how much argument you can find on the fundamental principles of the Republican party. There is none they don't have any to base their argument on. They call us Democrats liars, but not in one instance have they proved it. There is no reason in their argument.

Fellow citizens, let us be up and doing, and acquire the liberty and freedom as was enjoyed in the days of Jefferson and Jackson.
A TRUE DEMOCRAT.

All locals are requested to send delegates and help us to make this the grandest meeting ever held in the county. Bro. O. P. Ford has been invited to attend. Cured Hay Fever and Summer Colds
A. S. Nussbaum, Batesville, Ind., writes: "Last year I suffered for three months with a summer cold so distressing that it interfered with my business. I had many of the symptoms of hay fever, and a doctor's prescription did not reach my case, and I took several medicines which seemed only to aggravate it. Fortunately I insisted upon having Foley's Honey and Tar. It quickly cured me. My wife has used Foley's Honey and Tar with the same success." Upchurch Drug Co.

How to Cure Every Trouble
Keep Your Bowels Regular and Your Strength Swift

People sometimes imagine when they have liver trouble or are bilious that the main thing to do is to take pills. Taking pills and having your bowels regular are two very different things. The use of a violent cathartic does not mean the cure of constipation or the establishment of regular movements. A physician in his emergency resorts to purgatives as a last resort. If the bowels do not move regularly there is a deeper deeper seated than the mere clogging up that is removed by a dose of salts or pills.
When that distressing, tired feeling, with the coated tongue, the dull head pains, the sour stomach, the yellow complexion, constipated bowels and touches of fever come on it is time to take a medicine that will act on the bowels gently and mildly, cleansing and strengthening them, stir up the liver and aid the stomach in digesting the food.
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does this every time. Take a few doses and see how quickly the drowsy feeling leaves, regular bowel movements come back, with a good appetite and perfect digestion, and you soon feel like your old self. It does not gripe nor pain. It acts smoothly, mildly and is very pleasant to take. Wm. Hinckman, Mesick, Mich., says: "I was troubled with indigestion and liver trouble. I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with fine results. It is a perfect laxative and I now feel as strong and well as formerly." Wm. Black, Niantic, Ill., says: "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best remedy I ever used for liver complaint or constipation." Mrs. R. H. Brown, Addington, Ind. Ter., was troubled with torpid liver and constipation. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave her prompt relief. All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.
Syrup Pepsin Co., 304 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. is glad to send a free sample to anyone who has never used it and will give it a fair trial.

Scallops.
Editor Banner—Since writing you last, we have had copious rains, which have improved the crop prospects wonderfully.

This section is still suffering from the fever. Prof. J. A. Anderson's little daughter is convalescing, as is Mr. J. L. Martin's child, but Mr. Robert Skipper's little girl is very low, and his little son, it is thought, is taking the fever.

Times are awful dull up here, with work of every kind at a standstill. It is said that the Shelby Iron Company will start their coaling here on the 15th inst. It is to be hoped this report is true as the coaling will give employment to a large number of men and cause to circulate quite a sum of money.

On Thursday last a week ago, Mr. J. N. Sims and family, Mr. W. F. Anderson and son, Mr. J. T. Childers and family, visited Prof. J. H. Anderson and family and remained until Sunday, when they returned home, having had a very enjoyable time.

Captain Martin is still enthusiastic over his trotting stock. He has secured the services of Col. Henry Misskelly as head trainer and stable boss, which he thinks insures his success on the track. He also has employed Jesse James as head jockey. Jesse is an Afro-American jockey of high repute. Success to Capt. Martin.

The season for protracted meetings in this section is approaching, and everybody is talking about attending. A protracted meeting is in progress now at Oak Grove. We understand the attendance is large and the interest very marked.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper for a short chat.

Health of this community is very good at present.

Our school is progressing nicely under the management of Prof. Howard Roper.

We will ring off for this time, hoping to hear from A. B. C. soon. Come again Wasp. Your letters are fine. Success to the Banner and its many readers.

Millions to the Dixie Farmers.

We refer to the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer throughout Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time.

And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some general quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and fruitless plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common-sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants.

The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908. We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants; B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; J. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Moss, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R. F. D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R. F. D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,

"W. H. WESTMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. Those little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,

"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.

"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.

"Yours very truly,"

"J. L. GRUBB."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you cull them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.

"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,

"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.

"Yours very truly,"

"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine, good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,"

"MOSES CHASE."

"I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,

"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.

"Yours, etc.,

"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,

"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.

"Yours truly, etc.,

"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,

"HENRY SIMES."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.

"Yours truly,"

"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,

"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from your neighbors:

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908. Mr. O. H. Franklin—Dear Sir: I desire to say to you and the public that after seeing the perfect work done by your Climax Cotton Seed Culler, I pronounce it a complete success and a very desirable machine for the cotton planter.

"We have needed just such a machine for years. Perfect seed means a perfect stand of strong, vigorous plants and a better yield of cotton.

"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,

"MOSES ROBINSON,"
County Commissioner.

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908. "Mr. O. H. Franklin—Dear Sir: It is with pleasure that we testify to the merits of your Climax Cotton Seed Culler for improving planting seed for the cotton grower. There is no question but what firm, well matured seed will produce a better stand of stronger and more vigorous plants, with a consequent heavier yield of finer cotton.

"After seeing the perfect work done by your machine, we pronounce it a complete success.

"Yours truly, etc.,

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mountain Creek, Aug. 15, 1908

Editor Banner—Please allow me to say a few words to the true populists of the county.

You who have always stood for Jeffersonian Democracy and honesty in public affairs. The Democratic party may have in the past departed from the way blazed out by Jefferson and Jackson, but a United Democracy has come back to the faith and have accepted those time honored principles of democracy and heeding your brave fight for honest elections in Alabama. They adopted a constitution giving to the white people of this commonwealth, honest and fair elections, so on the common ground of democracy, we, as Democrats, respectfully ask you, as true to the Jeffersonian principles, to unite with us in electing our ticket, for you stand no chance to elect your ticket nationally, and as true Southern Populists you cannot afford to endorse some of the policies of the Republican Platform, and part if not all who are running in the Peoples' primary, are men who have voted the Republican ticket and some of them have even figured in Republican conventions.

Now the ticket that the Democrats have put out is composed of some of the best men in the county, men of honor and competence, thoroughly qualified to fill the offices to which they aspire. So let us all rally to their support and elect men who are competent to fill the offices and bring our county back in line and then we will have a voice in the council of the state and in the making of laws.

W. E. PRICE.

Shelby Springs, Aug. 18, 1908

Editor Banner—I thought I would write you a few lines about this old time, once famous summer resort. I really believe it will regain its ancient prestige under Dr. Patrick's management. Dr. W. A. Patrick is a retired dentist from Auburn, Ala., who has leased the springs for a number of years. The fare is decidedly improved from last year, and the grounds are cleaned up. The water is always delicious and there is a cool refreshing breeze the greater part of the day. There has been almost a hundred guests, and at least sixty are still here. Dancing at night is the chief amusement. The music is furnished by a band from Selma. Among the guests now remaining are Mr. and Mrs. John Cody of Montgomery, Dr. and Mrs. Webb and Mr. Small and son of Greensboro, Mrs. Bandy and children of Columbiana, Captain Dimmick and wife and daughters and Mr. Thetford of Montgomery. We have had two brides and grooms in the past few weeks. This seems to be a favorite place for honeymoons.

Miss Clements of Tuscaloosa accompanied me here for a month's stay.
Yours truly,
STELLA SPENCER.

Billingsley.

Editor Banner—please allow us a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

A number of our boys and girls went to evergreen to the barbecue Friday last.

The Billingsley and Milton ball teams crossed bats here and resulted in a complete shut out of 4 to 0 in favor of Billingsley. Batteries for Billingsley Turner and Culp; for Milton Lumlin and Bates. The Milton boys played well, but they could not beat Turner. Only one safe hit. A good game boys.

The Billingsley second nine crossed bats with Vida Wednesday, the score being 10 to 0 in favor of Billingsley.

Same team crossed bats with Booth which resulted in a score of 8 to 1 in favor of Billingsley. The Billingsley 1st nine crossed bats with Center Point Saturday, a result being 9 to 4 in favor of Billingsley. Batteries for Billingsley, Turner and Culp; for visitors, Langston and Grimes. Come again boys.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

20,000 TELEGRAPH OPERATORS NEEDED

Young Men Prepare Yourself for Good Positions.

On account of the new 8-hour law passed by congress in the interest of telegraphers, and also on account of so many new railroads being built and old lines extended, an unusual demand for operators has been created. Conservative estimates have placed the number of additional Operators that will be required during the next ten months at approximately 20,000.

YOUNG MEN NOW IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY! Enroll in our school NOW and in only four to six months we will have you qualified for splendid positions. Telegraph Operators receive from $50.00 upwards. Our school has been established twenty years; its equipment is perfect; instruction thorough and practical; positions positively guaranteed our graduates. Board in Newnan is very cheap; the town is beautiful and the people are cordial. Two Main Line Railroad Wires run into our School room. No other school in the United States has such up-to-date and practical facilities for the benefit of its students. Write at once for free descriptive literature.

Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle, of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and although sixty years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Hora, Thorsby.

Mr. O. H. Franklin, who has been in our little city for several days now, as special representative of the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, informs us that he is progressing in a very satisfactory way, introducing his justly celebrated machine. Mr. Franklin informs us that he is organizing a joint stock company in Clanton for the manufacture and sale of this machine in this section of the state, some of the leading business men having already taken stock in the company, and others contemplate doing so at once. The "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler is beyond doubt a machine of genuine merit, and fills a long felt want. We are glad to welcome the enterprise to our community. Let her roll.

Millions to the Dixie Farmer

We refer to The "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower. It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer through out Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some generant quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and brittle plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants. The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908
We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

P. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants, B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; T. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Moss, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R. F. D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R. F. D. carrier; E. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—
Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,
"W. H. WESTMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. Those little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,
"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.
"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.
"Yours very truly,
"J. L. GRUBB."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you culler them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.
"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,
"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.
"Yours very truly,
"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,
"MOSES CARR." "I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,
"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.
"Yours, etc.,
"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,
"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.
"Yours truly, etc.,
"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,
"HENRY SIMES."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.
"Yours truly,
"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,
"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from your neighbors:

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908

Mr. O. H. Franklin—
Dear Sir: I desire to say to you and the public that after seeing the perfect work done by your Climax Cotton Seed Culler, I pronounce it a complete success and a very desirable machine for the cotton planter. "We have needed just such a machine for years. Perfect seed means a perfect stand of strong, vigorous plants and a better yield of cotton.
"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,
"MOSES ROBINSON, County Commissioner."

"Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908

"Dear Sir: It is with pleasure that we testify to the merits of your Climax Cotton Seed Culler for improving planting seed for the cotton grower. There is no question but what firm, well matured seed will produce a better stand of stronger and more vigorous plants, with a consequent heavier yield of finer cotton.
"After seeing the perfect work done by your machine, we pronounce it a complete success.
"Yours truly, etc.,
"W. T. CALLEN,
"W. I. MULLINS,
"W. D. SPIGNER,
"H. M. MAHAN,
"H. E. SARELY,
State Agent, U. S. Dept. Agr.
"R. S. WILSON,
District Agr., U. S. Dept. Agr.
"W. H. CONWAY,
Local Agent, U. S. Dept. Agr."

The above testimonials are all genuine. We have the originals on file, which can be shown you at a moment's notice.

But why take up your valuable time reading testimonials? See the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, get acquainted with it and you will like it. Yours for success,
O. H. FRANKLIN.

A Faithful Friend.
"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. Ter. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thornby."

Value of Cement For Wells.

Unsanitary dairy wells are a menace to health, and as the country becomes more densely settled more and more care is necessary to provide good water. The director of the Chicago hygienic laboratory reports that of 163 wells on nearby dairy farms examined by the inspectors only eleven were found to be safe for domestic purposes. In all cases the safe wells were those lined with cement, with cement covers and protecting flange of cement covering feet out from the well. In some of the wells used for washing milk utensils a high percentage of colon bacteria was found, and in some cases manure could be detected microscopically and by the odor.

FIRST CAMPAIGN GUN

Bryan Speaks to Big Audiences at Des Moines, Ia.

TARIFF REFORM HIS THEME

Democratic Candidate for the Presidency Is Given Quite an Ovation by The People of Des Moines—Informal Reception, Etc.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 22.—Comparing the attitude of the two dominant parties on the tariff question, William J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for the presidency, at the baseball park in this city, Friday night, before a vast audience, fired the first gun in the campaign. He attacked the republican promises of tariff revision, and asked if the democratic party was not justified when it included in its platform the declaration that "the people cannot safely entrust the execution of this important work with a party which is so deeply obligated to the highly protected interests as the republican party."

Justice in Taxation.

"The whole aim of us," he said, in summarizing, "is to secure justice in taxation. We believe that each individual should contribute to the support of the government in proportion to the benefits which he receives under the protecting government. We believe that a revenue tariff, approached gradually, according to the plan laid down in our platform, will equalize the burdens of taxation, and that the addition of an income tax will make taxation still more equal. If the republican party is to have the support of the people who find pecuniary profit in the legislature of the taxing power as a private asset in their business, we ought to have the support of that large majority of people who produce the nation's wealth in time of peace, protect the nation's flag in time of war, and ask for nothing from the government but evenhanded justice."

Held Informal Reception.

Upon his arrival in this city Mr. Bryan and those who accompanied him were driven in automobiles to the Savery hotel where the democratic candidate held an informal reception in the lobby.

At night, escorted by the Young Men's Bryan Club and many prominent democrats, he proceeded to the baseball park where he received an ovation before commencing his remarks. Upon the conclusion of his tariff speech, he addressed an overflow crowd in the auditorium and emphasized his views regarding the election of senators by vote of the people. During the day Mr. Bryan announced that on Wednesday next, on his way from Indianapolis to Topeka, he would stop several hours at Salem, Ill., his birthplace, and deliver a speech.

Mr. Bryan left at 10:30 o'clock for Chicago, where he will remain three days and hold frequent conferences with his campaign managers.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 22.—Hon. Clark Howell, a prominent member of the national democratic committee from Georgia, has received a telegram from Hon. Norman E. Mack, chairman of the national democratic committee, announcing that Hon. W. J. Bryan will speak in Macon on Sept. 14th.

The address will be delivered under the auspices of the Macon Democratic Club, which, it is understood, will take up at once the matter of entertaining Mr. Bryan and the democratic guests who will make Macon the Georgia Mecca that day.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 21.—Governor John Johnson has announced that he will accept the nomination tendered him by the state democratic convention at Minneapolis. made up my mind to lay aside all personal considerations and listen to the call of the party. I will accept the nomination when it is formally tendered me.

Dahlman Opposes "County Option."

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 22.—Mayor J. C. Dahlman has announced that in his race for the gubernatorial nomination he will take a stand against "county option," and strongly in favor of a law providing for a guarantee to bank depositors. Dahlman declares the county option is against the principles of local self-government, which anticipates that the purpose of organizing municipalities is to control affairs within their corporate limits.

He says county citizens would be able to control churches, schools and saloons alike in towns adjacent to them with a county option law.

Bruno, and testing the efficacy of his own treatment. Although the disease has reached an acute form, the physician said he was not at all alarmed at his condition.

Evans, retired, has been offered the chairmanship of the Los Angeles Harbor Railroad company, a big corporation which will practically control the harbor of Los Angeles and San Pedro. The offer was made by the city, but no reply has yet been received from "Fighting Bob."

Mountcastle, of Tennessee, announces that he has been advised by National Chairman Mack that Mr. Bryan will speak in Nashville on Friday, Sept. 11. One of the wildest demonstrations ever seen in a state convention in Minnesota ensued. Hennepin county (Minneapolis) tore up its standard and started a wild march about the hall. Everybody else seemed to join in.

All of the surplus now on hand and all further contributions will be added to the endowment of the institute. Women Inclined To Constipation

Violent Cathartics

Women, owing to their peculiar organization, are more or less liable to constipation, and when they find themselves afflicted with this ailment, they are inclined to resort to the pill habit, and will therefore purchase large quantities of cases of few benefits, but complete discomfort, and even violent cathartics, and the consequent use of violent cathartics to overcome it.

We believe women will be glad to learn of a safe, reliable, sweet and stomach-remedy that is so effective in producing natural daily movements without pain or gripe and in a short time establish a permanent cure. It is so effective it has cured cases of 60 years' standing and yet so mild and safe thousands of mothers give it to their babies. Jennie Gresham, Nashville, Tenn., says: "I suffered almost death with torpid liver and indigestion and Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave me quick relief." Sister M. Berchmans, of Mt. St. Mary's Academy, Oklahoma City, says: "We have found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin satisfactory as a gentle laxative and stomach tonic." Mrs. Myrtle Mather, Chicago, says: "My daughter was troubled since birth with constipation and sick headaches. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured her." Mrs. W. M. Powers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says: "It is the best remedy for constipation and stomach trouble I have ever used." Mrs. R. H. Brown, Addington, Ohio, says it gave her prompt relief from constipation and torpid liver. Mrs. Isabella Wheeler, Freeston, Ind., says: "Twenty-three years ago I was taken with stomach trouble. Three years ago I had become so weak I could hardly walk. I took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and today am as well as ever." Druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

We are glad to send a free sample to any one who has not used it and will give it a fair trial. Address Pepsin Syrup Co., 308 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

A GOOD DOCTOR will recommend BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP

Every cough weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, breaks down the tissues and leaves the system in a weakened condition, causing it to be more susceptible to the consumptive germ. Ballard's Horehound Syrup will cure the cough and strengthen the system.

The Children Like It.

Mrs. C. H. Bunyon, Stanberry, Mo., writes: "I have used your Ballard's Horehound Syrup and find it a very useful medicine for coughs and colds, and in fact all lung troubles. It is very pleasant to take, and we have no trouble in inducing the children to take it. I recommend it highly."

Don't wait until that cough develops into a more dangerous malady. Save yourself and children many sick spells and insure a long and healthy life.

CURES COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSE LUNGS, BRONCHITIS, HOARSENESS, WHOOPING COUGH AND ALL LUNG TROUBLES.

Fruit Cans.

Did you ever stop to think that the Can Goods you buy are put up in tin, and that you consider them delicious? Then why not use the Tin Cans in preserving fruit at home? They are much cheaper than the Glass Jars, and must be satisfactory, else so many Canning Factories would not use them.

We can furnish them to you at 45c the dozen, which is a saving of about 35c.

We have Fruit Jar Rubbers at 5c and 10c the dozen, and we carry also the Porcelain Lined Caps.

20,000 TELEGRAPH OPERATORS

Young Men Prepare selves for Good Positions.

On account of the new 8-hour law passed by congress in the interest of telegraphers, and also on account of so many new railroads being built and old lines extended, an unusual demand for operators has been created. Conservative estimates have placed the number of additional Operators that will be required during the next ten months at approximately 20,000.

YOUNG MEN NOW IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY! Enroll in our school NOW and in only four to six months we will have you qualified for splendid positions. Telegraph Operators receive from $50.00 upwards. Our school has been established twenty years; its equipment is perfect; instruction thorough and practical; positions positively guaranteed our graduates. Board in Newnan is very cheap; the town is healthful and the people are cordial. Two Main Line Railroad Wires run into our School room. No other school in the United States has such up-to-date and practical facilities for the benefit of its students. Write at once for free descriptive literature.

The result is one bottle cured him and he has not suffered with the disease for eight months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. Millions to the Dixie Farmers

We refer to the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly tested and high-grade planting seed it plugs to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer through out Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some general quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and thrifless plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants.

The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908

We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Hyron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants; B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; C. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Ross, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R.F.D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R.F.D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—

Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,

"W. H. WESTMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you cull for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. Those little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,

"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you cull for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.

"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.

"Yours very truly,

"J. L. GAUSS."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you cull them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.

"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,

"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.

"Yours very truly,

"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and

West Chilton.

Editor Banner—I wish to say a few words to the poll tax payers of Chilton. I am very much surprised to see and know there are so many good men that have got behind in paying their poll tax, and men who profess to be Democrats. Why, men, this will not do, wake up to your duty, be up and doing, pay up your back tax the first round in October and get in shape to vote in November. Go to the polls with your head up and vote the old true Democratic ticket that your forefathers and grandfathers voted. Did you ever stop and study that all white men who would not pay their poll tax, were robbing their children and their neighbor's children and even the government. Why, there is a great many men who have spent money enough this year for ice cream and lemonade to have paid up their poll tax. Wake up, men! November will soon be here.

"THE HOSE THAT WEARS LIKE IRON"

"Irontex"—New in Our Hosiery Stocks

"Irontex" Hosiery for men and children, is a new Hosiery we are just introducing and one that is characterized by great durability. But great durability alone is not its sole merit, equal importance is its very fine, soft texture, due to the yarns employed in the making. The body of an Irontex hose is made of choicest Egyptian cotton yarn. The heel and toe are made wear-resisting by an interweaving of best quality linen.

Unlike the coarse, baggy, Cotton Stockings loaded for durability, "Irontex" Stockings retain their shape after washing, and they are made on full-fashioned frames. And they will hold their foot-fitting shape as long as the fabric holds together. On the hand, the coarse, all cotton Stockings have little more shape than hand bags after being washed once.

If there is any more argument needed in favor of "Irontex" in the matter of price, "Irontex" costs less than the coarsest Hosiery.

Men's "Irontex" Half Hose sell for 24cts. the pair. The women's sell for 33c. a pair.

Women's "Irontex" Stockings, 28c., 38c., 48c. the pair.

Children's "Irontex" 24c. the pair.

(Children's with "Irontex" Knives, in addition to soles, heels and toes.)

We invite you to try "Irontex" confident that you will find it the most durable and most comfortable Hosiery you have ever worn.

CLANTON TAKES DOUBLE HEADER.

On Monday morning last the Grady baseball team arrived in Clanton for a series of three games with the home team. A double header was announced for Monday afternoon, the first game being played shortly after 2 o'clock by Grady and Clanton. A large crowd was in attendance, including many ladies, who yelled themselves hoarse for the home boys.

In the first game Grady Reynolds did the twirling for Clanton, while Headley receiving. Visitors' names were Falkner, Raney and Headley. Reynolds pitched a perfect game throughout and kept the home team at all stages, while the Grady team had a walkover, the final score ending 9 to 2.

In the second game the saw mill boys showed no improvement and were evident from the start that they wouldn't have a "look in," were again beaten to a frazzle. The battery for Clanton was Headley and Headley; Marbury; Gilman, Raney and Pinkston. Howland (Matthewson No. 2) pitched a perfect game, having the visitors' names at his mercy. The Grady team was 0 to 0. Aside from the twirling, the feature of the game was Joe Headley's two

Editor Banner.—Will you please give me space in your dear old paper to say a few words to my friends at home.

I've been going to big meetings at New Hope and Harmony Grove and Camp Meeting at Antioch Camp grounds and had a fine meeting. I've been enjoying my north Georgia visit fine. Have been visiting my sisters and friends.

We have been having a lot of rain. Crops are very good here. Would like very much to see homefolks and friends again. Hope you all have had a good meeting. A lot of melons and fruit here. People are in a rush to get their fodder gathered and listening at their telephones.

The people have canned a lot of fruit, also have a lot of nice dried fruit on hand. Oh my, my! I'm nearly up to the big Methodist Preacher's eating chicken and other goodies, and you know I am enjoying myself fine.

SHERIFF CATTS RETURNS.

Sheriff J. S. Catts has just returned from a long, tiresome trip to Koscusko, Miss., bringing with him one Thomas Deloach, who is charged with bigamy. Some years since he ran away with the 14-year-old daughter of a very prominent farmer of Holmes county, Miss. He lived several years with her; when they separated he stole their child, which the law forced him to return to her mother. He then applied for a divorce, which was refused him, when he came to Rider-ville, this county, representing himself a single man and married a Miss Price, a daughter of a very respectable farmer of that place. On last December he returned to Mississippi, where the Sheriff traced him and had him arrested on Monday, Aug. 17. When arrested it was learned that he had procured license to marry another young girl at or near McCall, Miss. He had his preliminary trial before Squire Reed on Monday, who bound him over under a $1,000 bond to appear at the next term of the grand jury of this county. He was to have been married on last Sunday to his third wife, but instead of a marriage he was in the hands of the Sheriff making his way back to Alabama.

DEATH OF MRS. J. C. BROWN.

Mrs. Brown was carried to a hospital in Birmingham a few weeks ago with the hope of regaining her health, but all to no avail. The remains were carried to Mobile for interment. The grief-stricken husband has our deepest sympathy in his great bereavement.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

AUGUSTA'S BIG FLOOD

Georgia City Experienced One of the Worst in Years.

A LOSS OF OVER $1,500,000

For Forty-Six Hours the Turbulent Savannah Held the city in Flood's Grasp, Causing Loss of Life and Much Property Damage.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 28.—The reign of mud began Friday morning at day light in the streets and houses of Augusta, where for forty-six hours the turbulent Savannah had enslaved the city in its grasp.

At 6 o'clock Friday morning the city was free of water, except in the lowlands. Standing in lower Broad street at that hour no water was in sight in any direction, but in its stead mud was everywhere from an inch to many inches deep.

Streets Washed Out.

It will be days before normal conditions are restored. Streets have been washed almost away, sidewalks have in many instances completely disappeared, leaving only ragged holes and ditches to mark the place where the pavement was. The upper half of the houses and stores are white and clean, the first story yellow and covered with mud. The hand of the flood has been plainly marked by its trail throughout the city.

With the dawn of Friday came the second chapter of the greatest flood in the history of the city, and as the waters disappeared, hope and energy and relief came to the rescue of the strong-hearted people who had sat in silence and at the mercy of raging currents the day before.

It is known that six persons were drowned Thursday in Augusta.

Harry Carr, bookkeeper for the Nixon Grocery company.

John Paul, a negro fireman on the Southern railroad, while attempting to free the river bridge approach of debris was swept overboard and sank in the raging torrent of the river.

A brakeman was drowned in Broad street flood later in the day.

Two negro draymen, while engaged in carting goods at the corner of Broad street and Barbary street, lost their lives in a swift street current, and their bodies were carried into the canal.

Many Reported Dead.

Two negroes are believed to have been drowned Thursday, when the city bridge was swept away, many claiming to be eye-witnesses.

It is reported that a white man leaped from the second story of the Metropole going into the open cellar and drowning in the deep water there.

Fires Follow Flood.

Since Wednesday noon the time the waters reached Broad street and the big flood was actually on, there have been five great fires in the city in addition to a number of smaller fires.

The fire department was compelled to join the spectators during the progress of the conflagrations, as the engines and wagons were covered by water and there was no human agency available in fighting flames. In nearly all instances, the fires burned to the water's edge.

Epitome of Damage.

Many human lives reported lost—fourteen verified.

Total actual physical damage, one million dollars.

Great loss of live stock in city and suburbs and lowlands.

Damage to city property, a quarter of a million dollars.

Damage to railroads and railroad property one hundred thousand dollars.

Damage to telephone and telegraph companies, twenty-five thousand dollars.

Damage to merchant and local industries, two hundred thousand dollars.

Damage to residents, fifty thousand dollars.

Probable loss to mill operatives in the loss of wages, one hundred thousand dollars.

Great Suffering.

Interest in August centers in the dead and the relief measures to be taken for the poor. The greatest suffering is along a deep gully known as Bridwell's Bottom and Perry's bottom. Here in instances the houses were submerged to the eaves, and the people have lost their all. The damage is estimated at from one and a half to two millions by the mayor and leading men.

AUGUSTA RALLYING.

From the Effects of the Late Disastrous Overflow.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 29.—Saturday dawned cold and dreary, with a pall of heavy clouds hanging low over the desolated city, the weather adding to the suffering of the hundreds of homeless who are shivering in the east wind.

The city was again in total darkness Friday night, with the exception of a few blocks on Broad street, where flickering gaslights gave a weird coloring to the scene of wreck and ruin left in the trail of the flood.

City Rallies from Blow.

But Augusta has rallied from the staggering blow that was dealt Wed-

HIS NINE CHEESES.

An Old Time New England Story of a Stinging Parson.

Anecdotes in which the mean and grasping man is outwitted or held up to ridicule are popular everywhere and always. Few ancient towns are without their historic or traditional instances of stinginess punished or sharp practice defeated. In one village of New England, says the Youth's Companion, there is still current such a tale concerning an unpopular parson of more than a century ago.

Although a learned man of impressive manners, this clergyman was noted for undue reluctance to expend and readiness to acquire. He had a habit of pleading poverty and hinting for gifts.

The parish, although with some murmuring, had responded with fuel for his kitchen, hay for his horse, Thanksgiving turkeys for his table and a "subscription cloak" of black satin for his wife when her wedding maitreau became shabby. The murmurs increased when it was found that the parson turned an honest but over-shrewd penny by selling instead of using many of these donations. But they were not loud enough to disturb his stately calm, and he went his way without condescending to notice them.

At last, however, fortune played him trick for trick. One pleasant winter day he made a round of calls, and at each house, when just about to leave, he casually asked his hostess if she could let him have a little piece of cheese, as his wife happened to have none in the house and unexpected company had arrived. In each case the good housewife, instead of a little piece, generously presented him with a whole cheese, which he graciously accepted. As he turned from the door stone at the close of the last visit, while the mother of the family and her brood of nine children stood politely gathered to watch him drive away, he carelessly pulled the wrong rein, the sleigh tipped sharply on a drift, and out from under the ministerial lap robe rolled nine large cheeses, which spun friskily away in all directions on the icy crust.

His hostess understood the situation at a glance.

"Don't disturb yourself, pray, sir," she said politely as he made a motion to descend. "It is quite unnecessary. The children will gather them up, and none will be overburdened or will there be any quarreling for the privilege. See, it is just a cheese to a child."

So it was, and the embarrassed parson, unable to escape, was obliged to receive back his cheeses, with due thanks to each giggling volunteer as they came up in gleeful procession one by one.

Too well he knew that by the next day the whole parish would be laughing at his misadventure, although he could scarcely have guessed that the joke would be recalled a hundred years later.

Quite Enough.
"I should think you'd go slow," said a cautious friend. "You know, as the saying is, 'you can fool all the people some of the time and some of the people all the time.'"

Good For Silliness.

I took two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets last night, and I feel fifty per cent better than I have for weeks, says J. J. Firestone, of Allegan, Mich. "They are certainly a fine article for biliousness." For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Clanton, Ala., Aug. 30, 1908.
We would like to make one or two suggestions to the Commissioners' court about that road they are working from Maplesville to Clanton.

We are told they are in trouble over the new road just opened by Robert Williams' place. Mr. Jackson don't know what to do with it. The Commissioners can't receive it. We don't know what the trouble is but why not keep on the Talladega Springs road to Thorsby and then take down the Clanton road to Clanton. According to their argument this would be the nearest. That is what they said when they left the main Clanton and Maplesville road at Bill Walker's and turned north two miles, then northeast one and a half miles to the Randolph road and then to Clanton on this road. At first they had it only one and a half miles further to go around this way from Maplesville to Clanton, but after a petition went in with one hundred and forty-three names to it, to keep the main Clanton and Maplesville road, signed by the people all along the road from Clanton to Maplesville, we are told that they figured until they figured this roundabout way one and one-half miles the nearest. We can't say who done this figuring, but any way that Commissioners' court ignored that petition, and said no by Bob Williams', and granted in order to make said road by Williams' a public road, which was at that time a settlement road. I fluently did it. We understand Mr. Williams said, and what a pity it is that such an influential man should have so many trees thrown on his fence in opening the road, but who is responsible for it. We heard that Mr. Jackson said that he would give up his job before he would work a road by Lee Hayes', and that Judge Reynolds said that they ought not to work the road by Jones town because they voted against the road tax etc., but we can look that board of revenue square in the face and say that you did wrong and that you have used politics in your official duty in this case which is to be deplored by any county to have such men in office. Men should be men when it comes to their official duties, and not have any politics whatever. We believe Jackson would work a whole month in front of Lee Hayes' gate before he would give up that $60 per month job and 45 cents per day for boarding the convicts. Yes, we believe every bit of it and more too, and we think that they will have a time trying to convince the people that a circle is nearer than a straight line and we say it and stick to it that the main Maplesville and Clanton road is the nearest and would take the least work and is the best road that they could have gone, and should have been worked by all means, but we will never vote a Republican ticket to get it worked, and we further say it and stick to it, that this road would accommodate three times as many people as the route they have gone. One more say, that is, we are Democrats from principle. We know it is the only party government that a southern state can live under. We had a trial of Republicanism 40 years ago that proved to us that we could not live under any such. You have had your say and now we have had ours, so come at us if you wish.

The Testimony of Prominent Workers as to the Value of House-to-House Visitation in the Sunday School Work.

Rev. Geo. B. Stewart, D. D., Chairman of the Harrisburg, Pa., Visitation Committee says: "One Sunday school reported one hundred new scholars, as a result of visitation. One church received nearly sixty new members, and has since enjoyed a revival of interest in Church work not experienced for years. So deep was the impression upon the Christian people of the town that a permanent committee to carry on systematic work has been organized and is at work."

Marion Lawrence, General Secretary of the International Sunday School Association says: "Ohio's per cent of population in the Sunday school is 22. In Jefferson county however, it is 44 and they tell me that this change has been brought about in three years by their annual house-to-house visitation. One of the Sunday schools had, as a direct result of the visitation, an increase in membership of 50 per cent; five schools 100 per cent and one school 200 per cent."

Prof. H. M. Hamill, Field Secretary International Sunday School Association says: "In the city from which I write, a vigorous campaign of house-to-house visitation was organized. Every home was canvassed and a complete and accurate religious census taken, for the first time in the history of the city. The hearts of preachers and people were stirred by the figures and facts returned by the volunteer visitors. A sweeping revival in all churches participating followed and there was a general awakening of the entire community, benefitting greatly the churches and schools."

Tom J. Porter, Galena, Mo., President Stone county Sunday school association says: "The first year we tried the house-to-house visitation scheme we made a net gain of 1904 in the schools of the county. After our visitation this year we found our net gain to be 1,704. Two years ago the enrollment was 2,564, while this year it is 6,172, making the increase for two years 3,608. In other words the scholars enrolled in the Sunday school gave us 167 per cent upon a basis of school age in the county. We have 7 school districts out of 47 which report every man, woman and child in the district in Sunday school."

John R. Pepper, member of Inter-Denominational Lesson Committee, and Chairman of Memphis visitation committee says: "Besides increasing our church and Sunday school membership, and helping us materially in many ways it has started a work which has reached our entire county of Shelby, which has nineteen civil districts in it." Fraternally, A. Horn, County Pres.

A LETTER FROM MR. SPEER.

Editor Banner.—Please accept this, my first letter in advocacy of my candidacy.

I desire to thank the people for a highly complimentary vote in our primary and assure them that I'll be very grateful for their votes and influence in November. If elected I shall esteem it a free gift from their hands, which I shall hold sacred. I'll try ever to maintain the honors conferred, with becoming dignity, and to perform faithfully and efficiently, the duties of the office. My experience as land surveyor, together with a fairly good education, fully equips me for the duties of the office. The power of suffrage or the right to vote is the highest privilege of a citizen and is held for the public good. This right should be exercised by every citizen in reason and judgement, not from passion or prejudice. Upon these principles we hope this campaign will be conducted by all sides. In presenting my claims I have nothing to say in disparagement of the other candidates for Assessor. My life is an open book which you are invited to read. I have been a citizen of Chilton for 22 years and many of you know me. I'm not immaculate, neither am I infallible, but am willing to submit my life and character to your inspection. I hope to meet many of our citizens and make requests for your vote for Tax Assessor before the election. G. L. SPEER.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space to say a few words. Health of this community is good. Our Sunday school is very good at present, but hope that the pupils will soon wake up and come to Sunday school.

We are sorry to say that our literary school was out Friday last. We all had a fine time that day, but when the time came for the teacher to leave, we were all sorry. We hate to see our good teacher, Prof. W. Z. Dennis, leave, all the children thought a great deal of him and he seemed to think a heap of the children. We hope he will come back again to see all of us very soon.

Many people suffer a great deal from Kidney and Bladder trouble. During the past few years much of this complaint has been made necessary by the use of cheap Kidney and Bladder Pills. These are antiseptic and highly poisonous for work that backs up the rheumatic pains, inflammation of the bladder and all other annoyances due to weak kidneys. They are sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Millions to the Dixie Farmers

We refer to The "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer throughout Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some general quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and thrifless plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants. The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908
We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants; B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; J. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Doss, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R. F. D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R. F. D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—
Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,
"W. H. WESTMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. Those little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,
"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.

"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.

"Yours very truly,
"J. L. GRUBB."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you culler them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.

"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,
"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.

"Yours very truly,
"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine, good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,
"MOSES OZZER."

"I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,
"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.

"Yours, etc.,
"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,
"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.

"Yours truly, etc.,
"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,
"HENRY SIMS."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.

"Yours truly,
"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,
"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from your neighbors:

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908

Mr. O. H. Franklin—
Dear Sir: I desire to say to you and the public that after seeing the perfect work done by your Climax Cotton Seed Culler, I pronounce it a complete success and a very desirable machine for the cotton planter. We have needed just such a machine for years. Perfect seed means a perfect stand of strong, vigorous plants and a better yield of cotton.

"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,
"MOSES ROBINSON,
County Commissioner."

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908

Mr. O. H. Franklin—
Dear Sir: It is with pleasure that we testify to the merits of your Climax Cotton Seed Culler for improving planting seed for the cotton grower. There is no question but that firm, well matured seed will produce a better stand of stronger and more vigorous plants, with a consequent heavier yield of finer cotton.

"After seeing the perfect work done by your machine, we pronounce it a complete success.

"Yours truly, etc.,
"W. T. CALLEN,
"W. I. MULLINS,
"W. D. SPIGNER,
"H. M. MAHAN,

State Agent, U. S. Dept. Agr.,

"W. H. CONWAY,

The above testimonials are all genuine. We have the originals on file, which can be shown you at a moment's notice.

But why take up your valuable time reading testimonials? See the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, get acquainted with it and you will like it. Yours for success,
O. H. FRANKLIN.

A GRUESOME CRIME

Boston Authorities Investigating Shocking Murder.

HUSBAND'S UNDER ARREST

Body of Mrs. Honora Jordan, an actress, was found in a trunk and later the head and bones of the limbs in a furnace.

Boston, Sept. 4.—But few points in connection with the horrible and gruesome murder in Greater Boston of Mrs. Honora Jordan, an actress, who was known on the stage as Irene Shannon, by her husband, Chester S. Jordan, remained to be cleared up by the police Friday.

The confession of the husband to the police following his arrest after the accidental discovery of the mutilated torso of his wife in a trunk at No. 7 Hancock street, this city, was believed to be a substantial denial of the incidents of the brutal crime, but several minor details of his confession conflicted.

Examination by Police.—As a result of his examination by the police, he disclosed all the apparently important facts in connection with the murder, and gave the information which led to the discovery of the thighs and scalped head of the murdered woman, the only parts not contained in the trunk at his home in Somerville. He also gave a plausible reason in a remark by his wife in which he says he was incited by her belief that he was unfaithful.

Following her epithet he struck her, knocking her down a flight of stairs. He declared that from that moment until he awoke the next morning he has no recollection of anything. When he awoke he found the body lying at the foot of the stairs, the throat slashed from ear to ear. On this portion of his confession the police placed the least credence.

Claims Mental Derangement.—Attorney William S. Scharton, who has been procured for the defense of Jordan, by his brother-in-law, Jesse L. Livermore, the cotton market operator of New York, states that he already has evidence of Jordan's mental derangement several weeks before the murder, and in this case the murderer's insanity may account for some of the lapses in his confession, although as a whole it was remarkably clear.

When arraigned in police court Jordan pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder. The case was continued until Friday, Sept. 11, and Jordan was remanded to jail.

A Gruesome Crime.—This is said to be the most brutal crime committed in Greater Boston since the death of Susan M. Geary, a school girl, four years ago, and one much resembling it in its details.

The discovery of the torso of Mrs. Honora Jordan, an actress, of Somerville, in a trunk in a boarding house at No. 7 Hancock street, on Beacon Hill, this city, led to an investigation by the police.

Later the head and bones of the limbs were found in the furnace of the Jordan home at Somerville, and the scalp, hair and other gruesome remains were taken from the kitchen range of the house.

These gruesome discoveries and other evidence led to the arrest of the husband.

Job printing cheap at THE RANGER Office

Confidential Clerk.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1908, by C. W. Hooks.

GEORGE BLAKE was a sort of confidential secretary for old Lemuel Pettus, the money lender. Everybody knows Pettus. He is not averse to a certain sort of publicity. Three or four times a year he permits himself to be interviewed at some length and held up to the young as an example of thrift, integrity and other virtues. He has a favorite interview for early summer on the folly and wastefulness of vacations, and it must be ranked among the happiest achievements of unworldly journalism for it is based upon the serious conviction that the most worthy object of human ambition is to become a narrow, scheming, selfish skink-like Lemuel Pettus.

Blake was nearly forty and had been in the employ of Pettus for fifteen years. In the course of his connection with Pettus, Blake had become like an old man. His life was dry as dust. He had been rather a handsome fellow, with an excellent figure and carriage, but now he was thin and shuffling in gait, and his clothes were almost as shabby as Pettus'. He was a fine example of the advantages of the vacation habit.

Pettus never took any chances. He always had two dollars' worth of unimpeachable collateral for every dollar that he put out. The reader who is familiar with such phases of life will not be surprised to learn that Blake, who existed in this atmosphere of "sure thing" finance, was himself a reckless investor. He could save and sometimes make a little money, but he could not keep it. At the time of the events which form the subject of this tale Blake had $2,000 tied up in a gold mine which was nothing but a hole in the ground, scarcely deep enough to hide the man who dug it.

This man had been a schoolfellow of Blake's and had drifted about the mining regions of the west since then. He had narrowly missed several great fortunes, according to his own story. Upon the occasion of his father's death he came east and secured a very small inheritance, which he converted into cash. He did the same for the share of the estate which fell to his half sister, who was more than twenty years younger than himself. With these two lumps of money and Blake's $2,000 he went west again to develop his mine.

The half sister, Amy Lessing, remained with a distant relative in New Hampshire, but when this relative discovered that Amy had given all her money to her brother a painful harmony arose. Amy, in despair at this situation, wrote to Jack Lessing and addressed the letter to him at the Calabash mine, which the United States postal employees seemed unable to find. At any rate, Amy received no reply. After waiting some weeks she wrote to Blake, asking if he could find work for her in New York.

Blake had begun to entertain suspicions as to Lessing, and these were increased by learning that the man had taken his sister's money and had not mentioned it to his partner. It looked as if the poor girl might be in rather hard circumstances, and Blake felt vaguely responsible, as her cash had gone into a mine of which he owned one-half. With an awesome sense of assuming a burden that might be entirely beyond his powers, he wrote inviting her to come to New York.

Jack Lessing had been a good fellow in his youth, and Blake had been fond of him, but Jack was not remarkable for personal beauty. He looked like an unkind caricature of Napoleon Bonaparte, and Blake unconsciously assumed that his sister resembled him. This may have been an artifice of fate for Blake's ensnarement. The girl had not an eyelash in common with her brother; she was as pretty as a rose in June.

Blake had formerly been fond of women's society, but had grown quite away from it. Pettus was a woman hater, although a married man and singularly well married, having secured the dearest counterpart of himself that ever existed in the ranks of femininity. Blake because he knew that there were some like Mrs. Pettus the money lender.

One day, however, Blake appeared in the office clad in new raiment. He looked an inch and a half taller and ten years younger. The change had been taking place in him gradually some several weeks, but the new Blake was required to complete the transition. Pettus eyed him narrowly, but said nothing. A few days later he called in one of his spies and had the matter investigated.

"I hear," said he to Blake after receiving the report, "that you have become interested in a young woman."

"Yes, sir," responded Blake. "I am engaged to Miss Amy Lessing."

For years Pettus had had Blake under his thumb and had very nearly squeezed the human soul out of him, but Pettus had now become a pale figure on tapestry, and Amy Lessing was the one living reality and central influence of all creation. Pettus did not know this, and he proceeded to deliver a lecture against designing women. This is not regarded in polite society as the most delicate response to the announcement of a gentleman's engagement, but Pettus was a cat. His true thought was that this marriage would destroy Blake's usefulness to him, for he would never dare to trust a married man with the valuable secrets which he had been accustomed to permit his confidential clerk to know.

Blake endured a considerable length of this discourse from a mere habit of humility, the product of a gradual loss of self respect in Pettus' employ, but at last the old rascal overstepped the bounds, and Blake's temper exploded for the first time in many years. He consigned Pettus to the subcellar of the bottomless pit and walked out of the office.

Two days later Blake and Miss Lessing were married. They had less than a hundred dollars in money and no employment. Their happiness, however, was worth starving for, if such should be their fate. An intoxicating sense of freedom thrilled them with unimagined joys. Both had been buried hitherto, the girl in a gloomy home, the man under the influence of a miser.

Blake departed with profuse expressions of gratitude and esteem and promises of remuneration, which were firmly set aside by Blake. "I will take no money for this," he said. "I regret to say that my feelings for Mr. Pettus are not sufficiently cordial for either friendly or business relations."

"You wrong him; indeed you do," said Mrs. Pettus. "He is really very fond of you."

Immediately after dinner Blake sat down to his task, and for two hours he worked without appreciable result. Amy became so tired watching him that she fell asleep in her chair, and finally Blake picked her up as if she had been a child and carried her to her room.

At 4 o'clock in the morning Blake returned to that room. He was trembling from head to foot with exhaustion and excitement. His face was pale, and his eyes were sunken, but very bright.

Amy was asleep precisely where he had put her. Apparently she had not moved hand or foot. She was very beautiful in her healthy youth and staidish purity of heart.

As Blake turned up the light she stirred and spoke: "If we can manage the rent we'll be all—Why, George, I was asleep!"

"You were indeed," said he, "and a bad dream you were having. Bent, oh! Well, well, my dear, just cast your eye on this and then talk to me of beastly bills. I guess not!"

His manner was so strange that she could not think of anything else. He was obliged to force the sheet of paper into her hands and make her read. It was a copy of the letter which Pettus had written to his lawyer:

"Dear Hofnagel—I'm off to Denver. Am writing this in a cab on the way to the station. See George Blake, formerly in my employ, and buy his interest and his wife's in the Calabash mine, Braisted, Colo. They have put in about $250 between them and will sell for less. They're hard up. Suppose them. Make trouble for Blake somehow and force him to sell. His brother is the other owner. He is sick in a hospital in Denver. Was on his way east. He wired Blake at my office and I have the telegram; also a letter. I wired my man Hastings in Denver, and he says to come at once. The thing is a fortune. I may be able to get Lessing to sign something if I can fix the hospital doctors, but you must pay the other interest anyhow. Don't fail in this. Wire me Denver, care Hastings. You have his head, I understand, and can't communicate, but don't lose any time. I'll fix you all right for this. Yours, PETTUS."

"And at midnight," said Blake in an awestruck voice, "I was on the point of giving up the job. Amy, that letter is undecipherable; nobody can read it. I didn't read it; the Lord did it for me. Why, at midnight I hadn't even found out that my own name was mentioned. Then I got Calabash mine, Braisted, Colo. You see, he made a special effort to write that plainly. From that moment I was inspired."

"We must go to Jack at once. But how? We have no money."

Blake laughed. "My excellent friend Hofnagel would be glad to give me some," said he. "But don't worry about that; I'll raise it somehow, and we'll start on the 1 o'clock train."

They were in Denver on the third day and found Lessing already beginning to mend. Pettus, alarmed by wire from his lawyer, had sent back to his wife. It was a great stroke that he had lost. The wife who was in a position to know decided that Pettus sometimes paid the floor of his office holding his head in his hands, lamenting the loss of the Calabash. He needed that gold mine, poor man, for he is worth only about $50,000,000.

Blake believed that there was truth in this. It was a fact that Pettus was often unable to read his own writing and that Blake was the only man on earth who could be depended upon to perform that feat. The Pettus hand is famous.

"I'll consider the matter," said Blake, and at the moment it was his intention to see Hofnagel next day, but he was occupied with the fruitless search for work, and the matter was forgotten until too late.

Blake returned home that afternoon really disheartened, seriously alarmed. He had detected the Pettus imposture strongly against him, and his heart was full of bitterness.

To his unspeakable amazement, he found Mrs. Pettus in his sitting room. The rigid, pale old woman in her cheap black gown was sitting in the comfortable chair, and she gave an air of the usual to this extraordinary incident.

"My husband was very sorry to lose you, Mr. Blake," said she. "He would return to his employment, and I'm sure that all your differences could be adjusted upon a basis that would be very satisfactory to you. At any rate, you and I have no quarrel, and I'm sure you will do me this little favor."

Amy saw her husband's face hardening, and she hastened to the rescue of her guest.

"Mr. Pettus has gone away," said she, "and no one knows where. He wrote a letter to Mr. Hofnagel which doubtless explains everything, but it cannot be read. Meanwhile Mr. Pettus' sister has fallen very ill, and they desire to communicate with him at once."

The fiction of the illness of the sister did not impress Blake, but he lacked the hardihood to refuse this request under his own roof.

"Have you the letter?" he asked, and Mrs. Pettus produced it from her rusty black hand bag with the celerity of a conjurer.

Blake glanced at it, and his face became an inch or two longer than ordinarily. The letter looked as if it had been written in the dark on the back of a bucking horse. The lines ran together, the words trod upon one another's heels.

"This will take me all night," said he, "but you shall have it tomorrow morning if the thing can be read at all. I will send it to Mr. Hofnagel's office."

Mrs. Pettus departed with profuse expressions of gratitude and esteem and promises of remuneration, which were firmly set aside by Blake.

"I will take no money for this," he said. "I regret to say that my feelings for Mr. Pettus are not sufficiently cordial for either friendly or business relations."

HOPPIST HOP.

Are you just barely getting around by the aid of crutches or a cane? Unless you have lost a limb or have a deformity—if your trouble is rheumatism, lumbago, sprain, stiff joints, or anything of like nature, use Ballard's Snow Liniment and in no time you can throw away your crutches and be as well as any one. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Worried. "Why," asked the good man's wife, "are you so thoughtful? You look as if something disagreeable had happened."

"Perhaps," he replied, "I am foolish to feel as I do about it. My congregation has raised a purse for the purpose of sending me to Europe."

"And are you sorry it isn't large enough to enable you to take me with you? Don't let that cause you to feel depressed. It will be very lonely here without you, but I know you need the rest, and I shall be cheered by the thought that you will return refreshed in mind and body."

"It is very good of you to look at it in that way, my dear. I appreciate your feeling. But the gentleman who made the presentation speech said he was sorry the amount that had been raised was not larger so that I might be able to remain away longer, and somehow it seemed to be that the applause was more hearty at that point than anywhere else in the course of his remarks."

A Traveling Man's Experience. "I must tell you my experience on an East bound O. R. & N. R. R. train from Pendleton to LeGrand, Ore.," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whiskey. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water in it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into LeGrand, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into LeGrand she was sitting up and eating, and thanks of every passenger for my aid."

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Treatment For Smut.

The government experiment station at New Mexico has a timely leaflet urging farmers to treat all their seed for the prevention of smut and thus save next year's crops in case smut may be prevalent.

Formalin treatment is perhaps the easiest to apply and as effective as any. Formalin can be purchased at any drug store.

The smuts are destructive parasitic fungous plants. There are two classes of smut which attack our grains: the stinking smut, or bunt, which attacks wheat only, and the loose smut, which attacks wheat, oats and barley. The former can easily be distinguished from the latter in that it has a very characteristic odor and destroys the kernel only, while the loose smut not only destroys the kernels, but also more or less of the chaff.

For the formalin treatment mix one pound of formalin in fifty gallons of water. Place the seed to be treated in burlap sacks and submerge in the solution for ten minutes. Dry the seed, and it is ready for use. If the sacks are only partly filled it will be much easier to churn them around in the solution and get all the wheat in contact with it. Cor. American Cultivator.

Building Up the Soil. The manure product from a single cow, according to figures of the department of agriculture, ranged in value from $30 to $40 a year. The corresponding figures for horse manure are not presented, but it is presumed that the value would be equally great.

If not greater, since horse manure is heating and if kept from fire fang has an additional value beyond its own fertility in causing bacterial fermentation and rotting of bedding and other waste material. This estimate of the value of cow manure alone, however, indicates how very important it is to the farmer to finish his live stock on his own farm and thus build up his soil.

Mange In Hogs. Following is a recommended cure for the mange in hogs: Creosote, one and a half ounces; lard, two pounds. Mix well and apply to the affected parts. Or sulphur, one half pound; lard, two pounds. Mix and apply as suggested above. Turpentine and sulphur at the rate of ten parts of the former to one of the latter is another effective remedy. The same mixture may be used for a dog, but the animal should be carefully muzzled for the lard-creosote mixture, else he might make himself very sick by licking it off.—American Cultivator.

Stock Protection. Every little while we hear of stock being killed in the pasture during a thunderstorm by being struck by lightning communicated from wire fences, says Farm Journal. This danger can be entirely eliminated by affixing a wire to one post in every twelve or fifteen in such manner that one end will be well buried in the earth while the other has contact with each strand of wire on the post. This affords a perfect ground by which the electrical charge passes harmlessly to the earth.

Mending a Paper Roof. A roof covered with paper or felt can be quickly mended with coal tar. Paint over thickly with warm tar, then lay on a piece of fresh roofing paper, which should be fastened at the edges with roofing brads, then paint some more tar over the patch and over the edges, making a neat waterproof patch, which will last as long as the rest of the roof.

Marking Tools. Take a little tallow or beeswax, melt it and spread it over the place on which you want your name. Write your name down through the wax with a big needle or awl and pour a few drops of nitric acid over the letters you have made. Leave a few minutes. Then wipe off the wax, and your name will be on the iron.—American Cultivator.

Sheep Breeding. A successful sheep breeder says: Do not breed a dry fleeced ram. The sire is the proper improver, but in order to be such he must be a good individual and descended from the best lineage. Study sire, dam and blood lines. Have a right ideal and breed to produce it. Honesty is of as much importance in sheep breeding as it is anywhere else.

Keep After the Weeds. Do not put off the little task of cleaning out the weeds between the rows and in the fence corners, whether it be a field, a garden, little grass plot or a walk or driveway. Millions to the Dixie Farmer

We refer to the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer through out Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some gerant quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and thrifless plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants.

The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908
We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants, B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; J. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Aosa, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R.F.D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R.F.D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—
Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,
"W. H. WETMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. These little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,
"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.

"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.

"Yours very truly,
"J. L. GAUBB."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you culler them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.

"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,
"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.

"Yours very truly,
"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine, good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,
"HOMER CHAMBERLAIN."

"I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,
"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.
"Yours, etc.,
"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,
"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.

"Yours truly, etc.,
"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,
"HENRY SIMES."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.
"Yours truly,
"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,
"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from two neighbors:

"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,
"MOSES ROBINSON,
County Commissioner."

Nervous Break-Down

Nerve energy is the force that controls the organs of respiration, circulation, digestion and elimination. When you feel weak, nervous, irritable, sick, it is often because you lack nerve energy, and the process of rebuilding and sustaining life is interfered with. Dr. Miles' Nervine has cured thousands of such cases, and will we believe benefit if not entirely cure you. Try it.

"My nervous system gave away completely, and left me on the verge of the grave. I tried skilled physicians but got no permanent relief. I got so bad I had to give up my business. I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In a few days I was much better, and I continued to improve until entirely cured. I am in business again, and never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy." Mrs. W. L. BURKE, Myrtle Creek, Oregon.

When we, dear beloved fellow-laborer, Miss Nannie Duke, after a lingering illness, died on the 26th day of June, 1908, leaving in the community a void which no one could fill, we were deeply grieved. Her noble deeds, faithfully followed, therefore.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

IN MEMORIAM.

The sad and sudden death of Mrs. Fannie Parnell, wife of Dr. C. N. Parnell, which occurred Sept. 1st, was a great shock to our town and community. Soon after retiring in her usual health, she complained of a suffocating feeling; and in a few minutes her spirit returned to the God who gave it. Mrs. Parnell was a woman endowed with the many fine traits of character that adorn and constitute true womanhood. She was a member of the Baptist church and a teacher in the Sunday school, and was ever ready to do anything for her church, or for the advancement of any good and worthy cause. She will be sadly missed in the church and Sunday school, as well as in the town and community. The feeling of deepest sympathy is extended to the family in their great sorrow, but how unavailing are words of sympathy to the broken heart plunged into the depths of despair by the sudden snapping of the tie that binds two hearts together. Only those who have passed through the same severe ordeal, can realize it. The great and wise God who strikes the blow and makes the wound can heal it. He has promised that His grace will be sufficient for us and we can only trust His promises. The one ray of light in the darkness and gloom is the blessed assurance that we shall meet our loved ones again. In the bright and beautiful beyond we shall see them face to face.

"We shall sleep, but not forever.
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part no never,
On the resurrection morn."

Card of Thanks.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in the columns of your paper to thank the people of Jackson's Chapel community for the kindness shown us and my dear mother who lay sick so long. We thank the old and young men for their contribution for the pleasure of our loved one. We also thank Bro. Parrish for his excellent sermon and Dr. P. I. Hopkins for his kindness in doing all he could to relieve her from her suffering, and the old and young ladies who were so kind and ever willing to lend a helping hand in the time of need. We cannot find words to express our gratitude and gratefulness to you, but we feel sure that God, the rewarder of all things, will bless and reward you all for your kindness to her while she lived in this suffering world, but now she has gone home to dwell with Christ, the one in whom she so much trusted. Home is now desolate and sad without her, but we feel sure that God will help to cheer the vacant place that she has left. May God bless you all and prepare us to meet her as she asked us to do.

Her husband and daughter,
G. W. and LUCY BULLARD.

Stanton.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper to say that I am glad to see Mr. W. H. Foshee's name announced in your paper for Commissioner for our district. Knowing him as I do I am satisfied he will make a good one if elected. I know he is qualified to fill the office and will take care of the people's money and look after their interests. Heretofore it has not been done, for the bridges on the Stanton road have been dangerous for five or six months, so that people would have to stop and fix the holes before they could cross with their teams. I hope the people will lay aside prejudice and vote for a man who knows how to look after the interests of the county, and one who will do it, and I am satisfied that Mr. Foshee will do it. I know he is a good judge of the business, for he has had a long experience in bridge building. He knows what it is worth to build a bridge, and he will not let them out so a man can make from forty to seventy-five dollars a day for his work.

Best wishes to the Banner and its readers.

WORK DAY FOR THE ORPHAN-AGE.

Saturday, Sept. 26, 1908, Sixth Annual offering, Orphan's Home Day, Sunday, Sept. 27, 1908.

KINDLY READ THIS TO YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Dear Superintendent:—During the past 18 years we have rescued and sheltered about 600 little orphan girls and boys. God knows, and heaven will reveal the great good you are helping us to accomplish in our orphanage.

We kindly ask and earnestly beg that all our officers and teachers in all the Sunday schools of the two Alabama Conferences, will impress every class with the importance of giving one day's earnings to our little orphans. We need your help more than ever. Our needs are greater as the work grows more extensive. Every one in your community can give one day's work to this noble and glorious work.

Give all publicity possible to "Orphan's Home Work Day." Report, and send amount raised to me, I will give your school credit for same and publish all receipts in the Alabama Christian Advocate.

May God bless every one of you. Sincerely yours,

Long Necked Bottles.

Eastern standards of beauty differ, the customs, from those of the West. In Malacca, we are told, the all waist and velvet eyes do not matter, but instead the length of the neck is the criterion of beauty. The Malacca at a very early age is fitted with a metal collar, which compels her to keep her head erect, and as she grows the collar is increased in size, and by this means the neck is gradually elongated.

THROUGH THE "LAST BEST WEST."

"Home again, home again, from a foreign shore. Oh! it fills my heart with joy to be at home once more."

At the end of a long and extremely interesting journey the traveler looks back with much pleasure at the different scenes he has viewed, the various places he has visited, and the kind people he has met. He returns broadened in mind, exalted in spirit, with enlarged views of the world in general and a more wholesome regard for his fellow man—their idiosyncrasies and differences of opinion are regarded with a more tolerant eye and kindly disposition. In such a mood I will endeavor to tell of a remarkable journey through the new country of the Canadian North-West—a country practically less than ten years old where magnificent towns and cities dot the immense prairie, springing up, Aladdin-like, in an incredibly short time, and advancing by leaps and bounds to fair cities of large proportions with noble public buildings and handsome residences.

And, Oh! the illimitable prairie, seen under the glow of an August sun, the hundreds and hundreds of miles of ripening golden wheat waving to the kiss of the gentle breeze, or cut and standing in noble shocks, like soldiers on the field of battle, awaiting the advance of the enemy in the shape of big wagons drawn by four burly horses abreast, presents an inspiring spectacle of husbandry, and accounts for the numerous elevators that arise like giants above the level prairie, and also explains the rapid growth of the prosperous towns.

Having seen many of the wonders of the world I am deeply impressed with this latest journey through the north-western part of Canada—aptly termed the "Last Best West." With the grand "West" of the United States we are all more or less familiar, either by actual experience, reading, or the report of friends, but the "Last Best West" is a revelation—its vastness, its climate, its soil, its illimitable resources, the indomitable spirit of its people are alike all sources of wonderment, and yet this is but its infancy and it needs no gift of prophecy to predict that in a wonderfully short period of time the vacant spaces, that can easily absorb millions of people, will be filled with a happy and prosperous proletariat.

Seven States of the Union were traversed before entering the Dominion of Canada, and it was gratifying to note the evidences of the prosperity of the people of the States—crops of every kind looked well and promise a glorious harvest, everyone was busy, and rosy cheeks are forgotten and the whole earth smiles, rejoicing in the bounty of the Creator.

Birmingham, (Ala.), Nashville, (Tenn.), Madisonville, (Ky.), Evansville, (Ind.), we pass by and the great city of Chicago, (Ill.) is reached, but we will only stop to mention a charming automobile ride around the city of delightful boulevards, calling at the Columbian museum in Jackson park, and a pleasant visit to the "White City," while the lightning flashed and the thunder rolled and a deluge of rain came down, all in true Chicago style, than which none other place on earth can equal.

Then on to St. Paul, (Minn.), by the scenic route of the Burlington line, enjoying to the full the beautiful panorama of the Upper Mississippi, with its historical and romantic history, catching a glimpse of Dubuque, (Ia.), across the river, and resting awhile at LaCrosse, (Wis.), where we were royally entertained by the Press and citizens of that beautiful and thriving city. Their hospitality was unbounded and we long for a more extended visit.

"All aboard," and on we go again, the calm and peaceful waters of the Mississippi on the one hand, dotted with pretty islands, and soothing the weary traveler with its very tranquility, as it pursued its long journey to New Orleans, and on the other hand majestic rocks and delightful scenery. It was a splendid ride and I would gladly tell more of its beauties, but must hasten on or we will never get to Canada.

Late at night we reach St. Paul, the beautiful capital of Minnesota, and here we stay for a whole week, the annual session of the National Editorial Association being held here. The business sessions were particularly interesting to newspaper men, but not to be wearisome we will omit all mention of them here.

With noble and generous hospitality the sessions were interspersed with excursions of all kinds through and around the beautiful twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis—two of the most magnificent cities of the United States. Beautiful by nature and adorned by art St. Paul stands a monument to the energy and enterprise of its citizens and the admiration of all visitors. There is so much to be told of St. Paul and the surrounding country—Minneapolis, Stillwater, Red Wing and other places that for the present we will leave them, reserving them for a future occasion.

Leaving St. Paul we journey on to Duluth, beautifully situated on Lake Superior, which has a larger volume of business, more iron and copper ore, and more agricultural and grazing country tributary to it than any port in America. The immense docks, the huge stacks of coal, the big freight steamers, were all objects of special interest. A pretty steamboat excursion up the St. Louis river to picturesque Fond du Lac, (Wis.), was particularly enjoyable, and a drive around the city, along the fine boulevard and the neighboring mountains, from whence a magnificent view of Lake Superior, glistening like liquid silver in the setting sun, was obtained, ended a never-to-be-forgotten day, and once again we are aboard the train bound for Winnipeg in the Dominion of Canada.

On this occasion we do not stop at Winnipeg—we are coming back on the return trip—but driving on through the night we arrive at Kamsack, in the Province of Saskatchewan. In the early morning the air is fresh and invigorating, but as the day progresses the temperature becomes highly agreeable.

On both sides of the railroad, far as the eye can reach, extends the level prairie, with mile upon mile of golden grain nodding in the sun. Thousands and thousands of wild ducks are seen upon the numerous lakelets stirring the heart of the sportsman to enthusiasm, and occasionally a coyote may be noticed slinking along in the distance. Of deer we saw none, except in the government park at Banff, although we were told they are yet comparatively plentiful further north in the province. Every town has one or more elevators, in one place we counted a dozen in a row, rearing their lofty heads in defiance to the grain fields. The farm houses and outbuildings are well and substantially built and an evident air of prosperity pervades the entire country.

Thus far on our journey I am convinced of one thing, that while it would scarcely be truthful to describe the "Last Best West" as a land flowing with milk and honey, it is essentially a land of Peace and Plenty.

Editor Banner.—If you will allow me just a little space in the great Banner, I will try to tell you of the great times and sad times in the community. There have been several cases of fever, but thank the Lord, they are recovered. Very fast. And at the same time there has been one of the greatest revivals going on at Pleasant Grove church, conducted by Brother Martin and Rev. P. G. Maness. Some few of us could not go, but it made us feel good to hear people tell of the great times.

Mrs. Ella Chastain has been visiting Mrs. Williams recently.

Mr. Si Wallace and wife of Lawley have been visiting the family of Mr. Jimmie McGee lately.

Miss Ellen Lawrence spent Sunday with Birdie Hall.

Mr. Bob Lawley and family of Lawley spent Saturday night at Mr. Ambrose Klinger's.

Mr. J. D. McGee of Wylam is visiting relatives at Shepherd's Mill.

Home to the Dixie Farmer

We refer to the "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer through out Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some inherent quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and brittle plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants.

The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908
We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants; B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowen, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; J. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. E. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Joss, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R. F. D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R. F. D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—
Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,
"W. H. WRETHMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. These little sickly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,
"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.
"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.
"Yours very truly,
"J. L. GAUSS."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you cull them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.
"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,
"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.
"Yours very truly,
"B. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine, good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,
"HOMER CANN."

"I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,
"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.
"Yours, etc.,
"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,
"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.
"Yours truly, etc.,
"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,
"HENRY NIXES."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.
"Yours truly,
"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me was certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,
"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from your neighbors:

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908
Mr. O. H. Franklin—
Dear Sir: I desire to say to you and the public that after seeing the perfect work done by your Climax Cotton Seed Culler, I pronounce it a complete success and a very desirable machine for the cotton planter.

"We have needed just such a machine for years. Perfect seed means a perfect stand of strong, vigorous plants and a better yield of cotton.
"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,
"MOSES ROBINSON,
County Commissioner."

"Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908
"Mr. O. H. Franklin—
"Dear Sir: It is with pleasure that we testify to the merits of your Climax Cotton Seed Culler for improving planting seed for the cotton grower. There is no question but what firm, well matured seed will produce a better stand of stronger and more vigorous plants, with a consequent heavier yield of finer cotton.
"After seeing the perfect work done by your machine, we pronounce it a complete success.
"Yours truly, etc.,

Municipal Election.
Municipal election passed off here today and a fair vote was cast, notwithstanding there was little opposition to the incumbent ticket. Dr. Emmett Matthews, the present incumbent, the mayor's office, was re-elected by an overwhelming majority of five councilmen, J. Rendell, W. T. Callen, B. E.
F. R. Woodard, and W. A.
Matthews, running on the Matthews ticket, were also elected by majorities. Dr. Matthews incumbent banker and property owner and his present administration has been one of advancement.
Matthews and Jones were elected members of the council and vote they received today showing endorsement of the incumbent term of office. All of the councilmen elected are prominent men and thorough government-like administration of the government for the ensue-ing term is assured.

Latette, of Bessemer, made a speech at Clanton, Saturday afternoon, in the interests of the people of Bessemer and the rest of Jefferson county.
Matthews, Walker, Bibb and other councilmen, appeal to the people of the State to vote for the amendment to the Constitution, providing for the creation of new counties.
The right waged by these people in the past twenty years is a matter of history, and the State knows every occasion they have been blocked because of the fact Legislature could not get a memorial courtesy.
In order to place the matter before the people, before the council has directly interested in the local self government, the amendment to the Constitution was passed by a great majority in the last session of the legislature. This amendment must be approved by the voters of the state in November.
The people of this section, who are unanimous for a new county of their own, ask the voters to ratify the amendment, so that the matter can be placed before the taxpayers of the territory in question they may have an opportunity expressing their will in the election.

MORE GOOD NEWS
It is a good thing to always have something to be thankful for.
To have a great day of progress. To have that no more do we, the citizens of Clanton, and Chilton and other counties, have to go to a store or a dry goods store to buy anything we want in the clock or jewelry line, as we used to do in the past years, as we are now blessed with an up-to-date jewelry store, next door to the office, Clanton, Ala. owned and run by J. V. Higgins, the apprenticeshiped Jeweler, Birmingham, Diamond setter and operator in this section of Alabama.
Look at this beautiful "up-to-date" Jewelry Store, the only one of its kind in this section of Alabama.

IN MEMORIAM
On Tuesday morning, Sept. 8, the angel of death visited the home of Mr. G. W. Bullard and waited the gentle spirit of his loving wife to the great beyond. She has long been a sufferer from consumption, but God, for some purpose, has spared her many months to be with us. Mrs. Bullard joined the church when she was ten years old and at the time of her death was a member at New Salem church, to which she was so faithful. She was always kind, peaceful and obedient.
She always had a smile and cheering word for everyone. None knew her but to love her.
Her remains were taken to New Salem for the funeral, which was opened by a song, "I'll tell it to Jesus," then the Rev. Pariah preached the funeral which was very impressive. The following acted as pall bearers: Messrs.
Charlie Barrett, Maul and Hardie Parker, Eugene Alonzo and Luther Jackson. LUCY JONES.

THE CLANTON BANK
CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

Some days ago the Rev. W. J.
Ray, the state evangelist of the Baptist denomination, began a meeting in the auditorium here. Unique in his methods, winning in his person-ing, he had the attention of the people as they came thronging to hear the gospel. It was a great meeting.

When it closed last night the results were the organization of a the call of Rev. Robert Long as for the Rev. Mr. Ray, who has won the hearts of all.

EVERYONE in Clanton should make it a point to attend the Fair at Clanton next week—October 1, 2 and 3. Come and see what your neighbors have to show.

Editor Banner—I have just visited some of the crops Mr. W. H. Conway has been superintending, and I am sure that he has men that will make at least 60 bushels of corn to the acre. Just think of the improvement that has been made in agriculture (in the last few years); we only made, a few years ago ten and fifteen bushels of corn to the acre, and now under the improved method we make sixty. Every farmer in the county ought to investigate this method of raising corn. You need not say it is only tried on good land, for I have seen it on some of the poorest land in the county.

Cotton production has been increased from a bale to three acres to over a bale to the acre. Just think what our county would be in a few years if every farmer would adopt this method of farming.

I hope every farmer in the county will investigate this method of farming before he starts a crop next year. Every foot of land ought to be plowed 12 inches deep before any kind of a crop is planted.

Mr. Wilkerson and Mr. W. H. Seymour will explain the new method of farming at the County Fair, and I hope every farmer in the county will be present.

Mr. W. H. Conway is doing a great work along this line, and has been of great benefit to the farmers of the county this year, and it will be of great importance to get him for the same place next year.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

All exhibits must be delivered by Sept. 30th to W. H. Conway at the Fair Grounds at Clanton.

A pretty home wedding was held in the presence of a few relatives and friends of the contracting parties, on Tuesday afternoon when Mr. Heath Jones led to the altar, Miss Jewel Palmer. The bride was gowned in a pretty little white coat suit, and was charming in her simplicity. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. M. Woods in his usual impressive style, as the feeble old man pronounced "his blessings upon the happy young couple, who were beginning the voyage, it was a beautiful picture. May they live long and fulfill a life full of hope and promise.

THROUGH THE "LAST BEST WEST."

The possibilities of Central Sas hatchways are shown by the average of tests made at the experimental farm, where eleven varieties of the most suitable wheat sown on April the 15th, were cut in 130 days and yielded 4,314 pounds of straw and 43 bushels and 3 pounds of grain to the acre.

The country is well adapted for stock raising and large shipments are made annually.

Humboldt is a promising town situated on the main line of the Canadian Northern midway between the two Cities of Winnipeg and Edmonton, and there are many indications to the fact that Humboldt will be a city in the near future.

THE CALGARY DISTRICT.

The largest land deal to be effected in Calgary district in Canada—the newly developed Mecca toward which wealth seekers are turning—was effected by one of the Adlers of Birmingham, the amount of the transaction totalling $175,000 for 11,000 acres.

The information was received in Birmingham yesterday by T. S. Forbes in a letter from a nephew, Y. Forbes Wittichen, a former Birmingham boy, who, with his brother, George Wittichen, also of Birmingham, has purchased a ranch about four miles from the town of Calgary.

That portion of the letter referring to this deal reads: "The largest land deal which the Calgary district has had in years was closed a few days ago. The land is known as the Mamake farm and is about 50 miles east of Calgary. It has about 11,000 acres and some buildings on it, and was bought by a Birmingham man, one of the Adlers, for $175,000. This sounds to me like this is a good country. People from everywhere are flocking to this country and the majority of them are buying."

During the past few months the Calgary district has jumped into the limelight as a splendid agricultural and live stock country. A number of Birmingham people have gone there and reports from them are very encouraging.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Base Hits.

Bill Sweeney of the Boston Nationals is of opinion that third base is the hardest infield position to play.

The St. Louis Americans' hard hitting young substitute outfielder, Al Schweitzer, is handicapped by a pair of very lame legs.

"It's the college spirit instilled by Hugh Jennings that makes the Tigers play and win," says Claude Roseman, the Detroit Americans' first sacker.

Three South Atlantic league players—Center Fielder William Murdock of Macon, Catcher Moran and Shortstop Morris of Savannah—have been purchased by the St. Louis National league club.

Infielder McConnell of the Boston Americans is a little chap, but he is mighty. The diminutive ball tosser has a family that includes two youngsters, but on the field he certainly looks far from being of that age.

College and School.

History is taught to young children at a school in Brussels by means of dolls, which represent great men and women in characteristic attitudes.

The fees and boarding at Harrow school, after the £20 of entrance fees, amount to £144, and including clothes and pocket money, it costs £200 a year to maintain a boy there comfortably.

Miss Anna Fritchett of Louisville, Ky., has been appointed to the chair of economics at Wellesley college. She has just passed her twenty-fifth birthday and is the youngest member of the Wellesley faculty.

Polite to Lightning.
When a native of Quito sees a flash of lightning he reverently removes his hat.

Straw Hats.
Head wear made of straw was already in use among the ancient Greeks, but straw hats like those we wear did not come into use in Europe until half a century ago.

Inimical Plants.
Two well known English plants, the thistle and the rape, are so inimical that if a field is infested with thistles, which come up year after year and ruin the crops, all you have to do is to sow it with rape. The thistles will be absolutely annihilated.

The Life Plant.
The heat of a creeping moss found in the West Indies, known as the "life plant," is absolutely indestructible by any means except immersion in boiling water or the application of a red hot iron.

The Capture of Cateswell.

By ARTHUR DENSMORE.

Copyright, 1904, by G. H. Richardson.

IT HAPPENED to be driving past the railroad station when the train pulled in, and from the look of him I guessed who he was. I don't go to the Methodist church myself, but I'd heard them talking about it.

"You're the new minister, ain't you?" says I. "Well, it's a right smart piece over to Middletown. Get in and ride."

"Thank you," says he, smiling quite cordially. "Mr. Rogers was to meet me, but he doesn't seem to be here."

"Rogers got summoned to appear before the grand jury today to tell what he knows about Jim Sibley's selling liquor on the sly," says I, "and coming on him quite unexpected and he and Jim always being good friends, it hurt him up so he must have forgot about you."

"Then it's surely fortunate you happened along," says he, helping Cateswell, the station man, put his trunk into the back of the wagon.

He was a nice, pleasant spoken little chap that didn't give himself airs or talk about things common folks couldn't understand, and I cottoned to him right off. But all at once a horrible suspicion struck me.

"Say," says I, pulling up the horse short. "I see you come alone. Are you married?"

"No," says he, reddening some in the face and acting kind of confused, "not yet."

"Poor little cuss!" says I, as sympathetic as I knew how. "Poor little cuss! You've got a mighty tough row to hoe, and no mistake."

He laughed out loud when I said that.

"Now, why, I wonder?" says he. "It's easy enough to see, I should think," says I. "There's fifty-four eligible females in your congregation. You ain't got all the privileges Solomon had, and you can't marry but one. When you do that the other fifty-three'll get sore, and they'll go whispering around that your preaching ain't orthodox. That'll stir up a row, and you'll have to go looking for another job."

"I'm afraid you're a bit of a cynic," says he. "I didn't think I'd laid anything that gave him cause to call me a name like that, and I told him so."

"That's a term of reproach," says he. "It's merely a way of saying that you ain't sentimental."

"Well, I hope not," says I.

We was just going by the Holmes place, and I caught a glimpse of Sophie Holmes—that's forty-two if she's a day, and she can't fool me on her age because I went to school with her—peeking out from behind a window curtain at us. A little ways farther on, just as we was getting into the village, we passed the Buxton twins, sauntering along with their arms twined round each other's waists. They're pretty stuck up, and generally they don't notice me on the street, but when they got a sight of the minister they smiled most affable and bowed and said, "How do you do, Mr. Souther?" like I was their old bachelor uncle just come back to town after spending forty prosperous years or so in the golden west.

"You see how it is," says I, winking at the minister. "First time they're spoken to me in six months."

"I fancy you tend toward playful exaggeration," says he, as I set him down at the door of the hotel.

"What?" says I, suspecting another insult.

"I mean," says he, "that you get more fun out of life than most of us do."

"Well," says I, "I ain't saying but that may be so, but before you've been here long you'll find that I've sized the situation up pretty accurate. And if you feel like you wanted advice any time just ring out. There ain't nobody hereabouts that can top you off any stranger than I can."

"Thank you," says he, waving his hand as he went up to the hotel. "Good-by, and I'm obliged to you for driving me over."

"Don't mention it," says I.

When I'd drove a little ways up the street and Cateswell had got inside the hotel I saw Sibley Randall come out of Jim Sibley's store right opposite. She'd been in there, pretending to buy something, just to get a chance to rubber at the minister.

Well, I come to know Cateswell pretty intimate after a little. I guess folks had told him I was a chap that could keep things under my hat, and so he made quite free in telling me things. He had to quit living at the hotel after a week or two. Bill Twitchell, that runs it, swore so the parson couldn't stand it. Bill's got a wife that you can hear over in the next township when he's speaking as usual, and when he swears he raises it a little. So it didn't do Cateswell any good to shut himself up in his room. He could hear it up there just the same. He gave Bill a talking to about it. Bill got mad. He doesn't know half the time when he swears. It's as natural to him as eating and almost as natural as drinking.

"Something's got to be allowed for the infirmity of human nature, sir," says the minister, "but such profanity as yours is inexcusable. It is not merely that it violates the precepts of religion. It's against common decency."

"If you don't like it," says Bill, "you can move."

So Cateswell moved.

He done something like the governor did when the county attorney resigned. There was about fourteen candidates planning to get the nomination. The governor didn't want to take sides, and so not to give any of them an advantage over the others he said he'd appoint Judge Wilson, it being understood and agreed that the judge wouldn't be a candidate for the nomination. When the convention come to meet, the judge said he'd found there was such a widespread desire to have him continue in the office that he felt he'd be shirking his duty to the public if he didn't accept the nomination and that the convention would be shirking theirs if they didn't give it to him. So he's county attorney yet, and that's more than fourteen years ago.

Cateswell went on the same principle as the governor. He figured that because the Widow McLeod was most forty, with a son going on nineteen, she wouldn't be a candidate.

"She's just like a mother to me," Cateswell says to me after he'd been rooming at her house a little while, "always cautioning me about going out in wet weather without my over-shoes and worrying if I have a little headache."

I didn't say anything, just smiled. But he caught on.

"You don't think she's got designs on me, do you?" says he.

"Well, I ain't blind," says I.

But of course the widow didn't really count, and it wa'n't long before the race narrowed down to Sibley Remick and Ida Sargent. Sibley was a darkish complected girl, with large, sort of sorrowful eyes. She was pretty strong on book learning, though; could write poetry even. A real deep girl she was, but not much at putting herself forward. The Sargent girl was different. She was one of the light, fluffy haired, rosy cheeked, blue eyed kind that can talk you deaf, dumb and blind in ten minutes. Of course in a way she had an advantage, not being bashful, like Sibley. But experience counts for a whole lot in a game like that. That's where a girl's mother comes in handy. Mrs. Sargent was an invalid, and while she could post Ida at home, that wa'n't like being right on the spot and whispering instructions to the girl's ear at just the proper moment. Mrs. Remick was a pretty slick campaigner too. She'd married off three daughters, and she knew how the trick was done if anybody did.

The fellows at the store used to lay wagers on who was going to win. Most of 'em gambled on the Sargent girl, but I'd just shut my left eye and say, "You wait and see." Then they'd get stuffy and say I was always putting on airs and pretending to know more'n other folks and they guessed I hadn't got no second sight and wa'n't no prophet either, all of which I took good natured, not being given to worrying.

Cateswell used to talk the situation over with me quite frank.

"I believe I could be happy with either of 'em," he'd say. "In fact, I'm quite sure of it. But I can't make up my mind which to choose. Miss Remick appeals to the intellectual side of me; but on the other hand, I like Miss Sargent's vivacity and her unfailing good nature."

I thought to myself, "If you'd heard Ida go jawing around the house like some of the neighbors have you'd change your notion about her unfailing good nature." But I didn't consider it any part of my business to butt in and spoil Ida's game, so I kept my mouth shut about it.

"Flop up a cent," I says. "That's the easiest way to settle it."

"I couldn't think of treating such a matter in a flippant way," says he.

So things ran along that fashion till the day of the Sunday school picnic. 'Twas held over to Hexham lake that year. In them days everybody went to the Sunday school picnic, old codgers and all. You'd go jolting over six miles of not specially good road in one of them rickety old barges of Bill Twitchell's, to say nothing of having on shoes that pinched your feet and a collar that half choked you, and you'd go meandering about among the trees and get pink pith on your best clothes and get all wore out renewing your youth by chucking quoits and playing baseball, and then you'd come jolting back again in the evening, singing "The Spanish Cavalier" and making believe you wa'n't tired 'n you would have been if you'd stayed at home and mowed grass.

There was a feeling around town that Cateswell would propose to one or other of 'em at the picnic. He owned up as much to me the night before.

"I've got to have it over with," says he. "I'm longing for a quiet domestic retreat of my own, and besides, the thing's getting on my nerves and worrying me so I can't sleep nights."

Well, right at the outset Mrs. Remick slipped up. She took so much time pecking her lunch basket, she was sure to get in all the things Cateswell was fond of, not to mention advising Sibley, that she and Sibley didn't show up at the church till just as the last barge was ready to leave. And Ida Sargent and the minister had gone in the first one. That didn't worry Mrs. Remick much, though, because she knew, of course, Cateswell wouldn't propose in a crowded barge, with folks packed in as close as sardines all round him. But going around the corner by the Narrows the pole of the tall end barge broke off short. They sent down to Smith's sawmill, which ain't far away, and got some help and patched it up, but they lost half an hour doing it, and of all the dicky people you ever saw Mrs. Remick was the worst. But that wa'n't a circumstance to the way she felt when she got to the lake and couldn't see anything of Cateswell.

That didn't worry Mrs. Remick much, though, because she knew, of course, Cateswell wouldn't propose in a crowded barge, with folks packed in as close as sardines all round him. But going around the corner by the Narrows the pole of the tall end barge broke off short. They sent down to Smith's sawmill, which ain't far away, and got some help and patched it up, but they lost half an hour doing it, and of all the dicky people you ever saw Mrs. Remick was the worst. But that wa'n't a circumstance to the way she felt when she got to the lake and couldn't see anything of Cateswell.

"I've got to have it over with," says he. "I'm longing for a quiet domestic retreat of my own, and besides, the thing's getting on my nerves and worrying me so I can't sleep nights."

Well, right at the outset Mrs. Remick slipped up. She took so much time pecking her lunch basket, she was sure to get in all the things Cateswell was fond of, not to mention advising Sibley, that she and Sibley didn't show up at the church till just as the last barge was ready to leave. And Ida Sargent and the minister had gone in the first one. WORK DAY FOR THE ORPHAN.

Saturday, Sept. 26, 1908.
Sixth Annual offering.
Orphan's Home Day, Sunday, Sept. 27, 1908.

KINDLY READ THIS TO YOUR SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Dear Superintendent:—During the past 18 years we have rescued and sheltered about 600 little orphan girls and boys. God knows, and heaven will reveal the great good you are helping us to accomplish in our orphanage.

We kindly ask and earnestly beg that our officers and teachers in all the Sunday schools of the two Alabama Conferences, will impress every class with the importance of giving one day's earnings to our little orphans. We need your help more than ever. Our needs are greater as the work grows more extensive. Every one in your community can give one day's work to this noble and glorious work.

Give all publicity possible to "Orphan's Home Work Day." Report, and send amount raised to me, I will give your school credit for same and publish all receipts in the Alabama Christian Advocate.

May God bless every one of you. Sincerely yours,

The Scrap Book

Needed the Cork.

John Simmons had been a twenty years' abstainer, but fell from the ways of grace and worshipped the vine god with all the fervor of a pervert. Feeling the need of recuperation, he sent his boy to an adjacent hostelry for a bottle of whiskey.

"But," cried the hotel proprietor, "who's it for?"

"For my father."

"Nonsense. Your father is a total abstainer and has been, to my knowledge, for longer years than you've lived."

"Well, at all events, he sent me for it."

"What does he want it for?"

"To let you into a secret," said the boy, ashamed to tell the truth, "he's going fishing, and he wants the cork to use for a float."

Changed.

A street boy of diminutive stature was trying to sell some very young kittens to passersby. One day he accosted the late Rev. Phillips Brooks, asking him to purchase and recommending them as good Episcopal kittens. Dr. Brooks laughingly refused, thinking them too small to be taken from their mother. A few days later a Presbyterian minister who had witnessed this episode was asked by the same boy to buy the same kittens. This time the lad announced that they were faithful Presbyterians.

"Didn't you tell Dr. Brooks last week that they were Episcopal kittens?" the minister asked sternly.

"Yes," replied the boy quickly, "but they had their eyes opened since then, sir."

A Traveling Man's Experience.

"I must tell you my experience on an East-bound O. R. & N. R. train from Pendleton to LeGrand, Ore.," writes Sam A. Garber, a well known traveling man. "I was in the smoking department with some other traveling men when one of them went into the coach and came back and said, 'There is a woman sick unto death in the car.' I at once got up and went out, found her very ill with cramp colic, her hands and arms were drawn so you could not straighten them, and with a deathlike look on her face. Two or three ladies were working with her and giving her whiskey. I went to my suit case and got my bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy (I never travel without it), ran to the water tank, put a double dose of the medicine in the glass, poured some water in to it and stirred it with a pencil; then I had quite a time to get the ladies to let me give it to her, but I succeeded. I could at once see the effect and I worked with her, rubbing her hands, and in twenty minutes I gave her another dose. By this time we were almost into LeGrand, where I was to leave the train. I gave the bottle to the husband to be used in case another dose should be needed, but by the time the train ran into LeGrand she was alright, and I received the thanks of every passenger in the car." TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The County Teachers' Institute held its regular session at Thorsby, the 18-19th inst., and as usual many teachers of the county were noticeable for their absence. There was a small attendance throughout—and what was worse many teachers on the program failed to appear or to give notice beforehand. No criticism here, though, as they may have had sufficient reasons.

"The building and equipments of the school building" was first taken up and amply discussed by Mrs. S. B. Groves and Prof. C. L. McCarthy of Troy. Many useful ideas were exchanged with regard to the equipment of a school building, which space forbids repeating here.

After ample refreshments served right in the Institute building to the great convenience of the teachers, the institute was again called to order by Prof. J. W. Moore.

Prof. Hastings' address on "How to recover pupil's interest in studies already indifferently presented," was unusually full of suggestions that were of value to teachers. There needs to be a general reclamation of students who have "fallen from grace," as well as in some other lines. Some remedial measures were here set forth.

"Child labor" was a subject presented by Prof. S. B. Groves, in which many incidents were cited of young lives being crushed by being put to work too early, not only in the manufactory, but oftentimes on the farm. Teachers should be alive on all questions of the day, but this is one on which they should take a decided stand. The discussion was concluded by the reading of a touching poem, "The Song of the Child Workers," by Miss Nellie Johnson. After song, "America," the Institute was adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock p.m. to hear a lecture by Prof. C. L. McCarthy.

It had been planned at former Institutes to have some speaker of ability and note to appear at each Institute and deliver addresses on current events and interesting topics of the day. A beginning was made in securing Prof. C. L. McCarthy of the Troy Normal College to deliver two lectures, one on English Grammar and one on God among the stars, both of which were unusually interesting. Prof. McCarthy is a widely known educator, and wherever he is known, his lecture, "God among the stars," is not less famous. Verily it was a treat to the teachers and all present.

Saturday's session opened with not many more teachers to enroll. "Libraries for Chilton schools," was discussed at some length, and it is hoped that the movement will cause such enthusiasm as will lead to definite action on the part of the teachers and the people at large. This is one of the crying needs of Chilton county schools, and the teachers are to lead the movement if it is carried. It is proposed to put at least two volumes of the best English classics in every school building in the county. After this feature an instructive and interesting address on Education was delivered by Prof. J. Alexander Moore, a former Chilton county boy, who is now President of the faculty at the Montevallo Girls' Industrial school. Prof. Moore's address was highly appreciated and a vote of appreciation was tendered him.

Bodily refreshments are not an unnecessary factor, so the ladies of Thorsby again prepared a sumptuous meal, which was highly enjoyed by the teachers. No ducks were there swimming in their own gravy as Ichabod Crane witnessed at Mrs. Van Tassel's in the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," but sure there was the doughy doughnuts, the tender oily kolk and the crisp and crumbling cruller, the sweet cakes, short cakes, ginger cakes and honey cakes and the whole family of cakes and all this mingled biggedly, piggedly, riggedly, with steak hash, pies, fried chicken, and all other such dainties. Surely Solomon in all his glory was not decorated like those large tables were, and this convinced the teachers that along with all their bitter, a little sweet was thrown in occasionally. Hats off to the ladies of Thorsby.

In the afternoon two short but very interesting biographies of great men were read "Uncle Remus," by Miss Helen C. Jenkins, was touching, and should convince the teachers of Chilton county that they should know more of their kindly, humorous philosopher, Joel Chandler Harris. After the usual resolutions, and an order by the Institute to have a synopsis of the proceedings published in the county papers, the Institute was adjourned to reassemble on the ball ground near Thorsby.

Fairview is the place selected for holding the next Institute. Prof. J. W. Moore, Co. Sept. ORMAN HEADLEY, Sec.

Protective mimicry, that comes of nature to promote safety from their enemies, is well shown in the eggs of certain fishes, such as the California shark, known as Galeorhinus galeus. The shark has a sluggish habit, lurking among rocks and the dark egg resembles a limp or seaweed folded up upon itself as deposited among the boulders and clings to the leaves by the coils of the spiracle. The young shark upon the end of the egg and away. Another shark's egg of the rocky coast has tentacles which are seaweed and also imitate the appearance of seaweed.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland Ave., Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many old advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and croup remedies." Milwaukee to Dixie Farmers

We refer to The "Climax" Cotton Seed Culler, and the thoroughly clean and high-grade planting seed it gives to the cotton grower.

It is a common-sense proposition, understood by every farmer through out Dixie land, that the better the seed planted the better stand obtained, with stronger and more vigorous plants, and what is more to the point, a heavier and much more satisfactory yield at harvest time. And we are all interested in "What shall the Harvest be?"

The great difficulty with the cotton farmer is to keep his planting seed pure and free from faulty and degenerate seed. The experienced cotton planter knows that almost any kind of faulty cotton seed has some generant quality, and will quickly sprout and come up, producing a weakly and brittle plant, which generally dies during the summer months, but often lives until harvest, and at picking time is found to be worthless. This should not be so. Consequently old Mother Necessity has given birth to what is called the Cotton Seed Culler, a machine arranged on common-sense mechanical principles well understood, and that will separate the faulty, degenerate seed from the well developed seed of stronger vitality, thus insuring the planter a far better stand of much stronger and more vigorous plants. The Cotton Seed Culler is the invention of Mr. Byron Bowers, of Canon, Franklin county, Georgia, who is a practical farmer of considerable mechanical attainments, and a desire to do as much good as possible to his fellow man.

The machine has been in operation in a small way for two seasons at Canon, Ga., and has been patronized by some of the leading farmers of that community. Hear what they have to say about it:

Canon, Ga., June 20, 1908
We, the undersigned citizens of the town of Canon, Ga., do hereby certify that Byron Bowers, of this place, has recently received letters patent on a Cotton Seed Culler. That said culler has been operated the past two seasons at this place, and we take pleasure in saying that its merits have been fully demonstrated by the patronage and approval of the farmers generally.

F. D. Bond, merchant; Bowers & Co., merchants; B. H. Burton, president oil mill; John H. Bowers, M.D.; B. F. Bond, M.D.; J. A. Duncan, P. M.; J. C. Bond, lawyer; A. J. Owens, vice-president Canon Bank; A. N. Bowers, mayor of Canon; L. R. Osborn, merchant; Thomas O. Stephenson, teacher; L. L. Ross, planter; R. M. Wilson, marshal of Canon; John M. Bowers, publisher; S. T. King, superintendent Canon oil mill; E. H. Agnew, R. F. D. carrier; L. M. Hilliard, R. F. D. carrier; B. C. Jordan Co., merchants.

Mr. Byron Bowers—
Dear Sir: Your device for culling cotton seed for planting purposes is a good thing. I fully endorse its use. It saves much time and labor. I believe it will go a long way towards eliminating the Mexican boll weevil. Very truly yours,
"W. H. WESTMORELAND."

"I have found that the cotton seed you culler for me this spring gave me the nicest and most uniform stand of cotton I have ever had. 'Tis little suckly plants are conspicuous by their absence. I can cheerfully recommend your Culler for every planter of cotton seed. Yours, etc.,
"J. R. JOHNSON."

"I would like to ask if you are going to run your Cotton Seed Culler again next season? The seed you culler for me this spring impressed me with the fact that your invention fills a long-felt want.
"My stand of cotton this year was uniform; the plants appear to be perfect, and I believe my yield will be larger than ever.
"Yours very truly,
"J. L. GRUBB."

"I am well pleased this year with the results I obtained with my planting seed. You will remember I had you culler them with your invention, and I never had so near a perfect stand of good uniform plants as I have this year, and I believe your machine did the work.
"I think all of our farmers should have one of your machines, as it would soon pay for itself many times over. Yours truly, etc.,
"J. W. FLEMING."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand success for the cultivation and production of cotton. It gives a more perfect stand of stronger plants. It takes less seed and the plants are more uniform than those from seed uncultured.
"Yours very truly,
"R. C. JORDAN."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler came at an opportune time. Cotton planters are much more solicitous about planting good, pure seed than ever before. This is as it should be, and with your machine, good seed can certainly be obtained.

"Very truly yours,
"Moses Oakes."

"I can without hesitation say that your Cotton Seed Culler possesses merit. It made my stand of cotton much more uniform, and I can reasonably expect the staple to be more uniform. I consider the machine a splendid invention. Yours truly,
"W. M. HILL."

"Your plan for improving cotton seed is a reasonable one. I can testify to its merits from actual experience. It's a complete success.
"Yours, etc.,
"W. J. HILL."

"I conscientiously believe that your Cotton Seed Culler is a good thing. Well developed seed produce large and well developed plants, hence you will get larger bolls and longer lint. Yours truly,
"D. T. BARNES."

"The seed you culler for me certainly gave me a better stand of more uniform and vigorous plants than I ever had before.
"Yours truly, etc.,
"D. B. HILL."

"W. C. MOON."

"Your Cotton Seed Culler is a grand invention. It insures thrifty plants; no faulty plants from faulty seed to be dying through the season. I want you to make me a little machine to go by hand power, so I can cull my planting seed all the time. Respectfully,
"HENRY SIMS."

"Your machine does what you claim. I can testify from my own experience that it gives perfect satisfaction. I want one of my own.
"Yours truly,
"E. W. BROWN."

"The cotton seed you culler for me certainly was improved by the operation. Your culler fills a long-felt want. Yours truly,
"W. L. ATAWAY."

All the above testimonials are from the home of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler, where it has been in operation for the past two seasons. Now hear a word from your neighbors:

Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908

Mr. O. H. Franklin—
Dear Sir: I desire to say to you and the public that after seeing the perfect work done by your Climax Cotton Seed Culler, I pronounce it a complete success and a very desirable machine for the cotton planter.

"We have needed just such a machine for years. Perfect seed means a perfect stand of strong, vigorous plants and a better yield of cotton.
"I expect to patronize your Culler from now on if there is one in reach of me. Yours very truly,
"MOSES ROBINSON,
County Commissioner."

"Clanton, Ala., July 27, 1908
"Mr. O. H. Franklin—
"Dear Sir: It is with pleasure that we testify to the merits of your Climax Cotton Seed Culler for improving planting seed for the cotton grower. There is no question but what firm, well matured seed will produce a better stand of stronger and more vigorous plants, with a consequent heavier yield of finer cotton.

MAN ON THE CORNER
of the Rights He has, and Some He Has Not.

Years past THE BANNER, in Clanton county of the people has given space to all communications, nearly always giving up its space and time in preference to local communications, many of which are of local interest. In future THE BANNER will devote as much space as possible to local communications, but we reserve the right to abridge too lengthy articles, and trust our correspondents to tell us all they have to say in as few words as possible. Please do not write a "help us fill up" because we have always more than enough to fill up and are grateful for all communications. A newspaper man can do a certain amount of work each week, no more. This is as much as the interests of correspondents allow, and we hope it will be accepted in the spirit in which it is offered. Send us short letters.

This morning (Thursday) the first of the first County Fair are held, with as fine an exhibition of Clanton's resources as has been practically to get together, we hope to see a large attendance at the Fair, county pride should be everyone to come and view the Fair we have ever held. We hope it is the forerunner of each one's excellence in the one. Come to the Fair.

crossings of the main street are being laid in brick, giving a neat and metropolitan appearance. The ladies especially appreciate this improvement.

THE CIRCUS.
The circus has not lost any of its popularity and it probably never will. The circus is a distinctively American amusement enterprise. It has had a great hold on the minds of the people. Circus day is a great day for a multitude of people, who, of course, accompany children for the purpose of seeing the little animals properly guarded and given opportunity of witnessing all that is to be witnessed. The man who has never been to a circus is not a citizen. The boy who has not seen a circus, even if he is a block or two in order to see the price of admission—well, he is not a citizen. There are many people nowadays who go to a circus at least, against their better judgment, and it would do so good if they did not. The circus is a great amusement enterprise, one who patronize it have no reason to offer for their attendance. Robinson's Big Circus, Mes and Wild West, the oldest and richest show in the state will be here on Oct. 13. It is not in the circus trust to give one of the finest papers in this city.

MORE GOOD NEWS.
It is a good thing to always something to be thankful for. To be thankful for the fact that we are not more dead, the citizens of Clanton, and Clanton and counties, have to go to a circus or a dry goods store to buy what we want in the stock or jewelry line, as we used to do in the past ages, as now blessed with an up-to-date office, Clanton, Ala., owned by J. DEATH IN SNOWSTORM

20 Persons are Killed in Frightful Railroad Accident.

ON THE NORTHERN PACIFIC

During Blinding Snowstorm Passenger Train Crashed Head-On Into Freight Train With Most Disasterous Results. Fourteen Killed in Berlin.

Aviation, Montana, Sept. 26.—Flying through a snow storm, eastward bound, a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy passenger train running over the Northern Pacific railroad on Friday crashed head-on into a freight train at Young's Point, where the trains were to pass, and in the demolition that resulted a score of lives were crushed out and a score of persons were injured, several probably fatally.

The freight train was in the lead, the passenger train in time to prevent the collision, it is said, because of the blinding snow. The express car, too, escaped with the smoking car, and most of the fatalities and injuries were of persons in the latter car. The express car was raised over the platform of the smoking car and the superstructure swept the seats away. Not a passenger in the smoking car escaped death or injury.

Pitman Ora Babcock jumped and was killed. The smoking car's debris was hopelessly mixed with heads, bodies, legs and arms, presenting a horrible sight. In one place seven bodies were so tightly wedged together that they were separated only with great difficulty.

FOURTEEN PERSONS KILLED.

Collision of Trains on Elevated Railroad in Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 26.—Two trains on the Berlin elevated railroad were in collision early Saturday afternoon. As a result fourteen persons are dead, while many sustained injuries.

The accident was caused by a misplaced signal. One of the cars, which was crowded with passengers, was thrown to the street forty feet below and shattered. The greatest mortality was in this car. The police were quick to the scene and the work of extricating the dead and wounded was begun. Ambulances were summoned and waited close to the scene of the wreck while the injured were brought out. Then each wagon with its sufferer passengers hastened away to a hospital.

GARFIELD'S STATEMENT.

Hitchcock and the Prairie Oil and Gas Company.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock has made a statement concerning relations of former Secretary Hitchcock with the issue of leases authorizing the Prairie Oil and Gas company to lay pipe lines through Indian lands in Oklahoma. The records of his department, he declared, show very clearly that Secretary Hitchcock simply complied with an act of Congress authorizing the construction of pipe lines and that nowhere he declared or otherwise evidenced that the president at any time either overruled Mr. Hitchcock or was at variance with him in the course he pursued in the issuance of these permits.

FEARED MOB VIOLENCE.

Well-Armed Guard and Celery of Action Probably Saved Negro.

Kosciusko, Miss., Sept. 26.—A special train, a well armed guard and celery of action served Friday to get the negro Rufus Ousley safely out of Kosciusko after a jury had failed to inflict the death penalty on him for the murder of Young Love, a white man. The jury's verdict was such that the court had to pass a sentence of life imprisonment. Practically the entire community had expected a death penalty in this case, and for a few minutes Ousley was in danger. He was, however, gotten away safely.

Case Set for Oct. 21.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 26.—The case of the Montgomery freight bureau against the railroads in this territory wherein is charged discrimination in favor of Mobile and other points has been set for Oct. 21 before the interstate commerce commission in Washington. The argument will be oral, the main features having been presented at a special session of the commission held here last summer.

Work of Train Wreckers.

Spartanburg, S. C., Sept. 26.—That the wrecking of passenger train No. 41, of the Southern, at Grace's station, near Wolford, Thursday night, which resulted in the death of Engineer Penville and Fireman Brown, was the work of train wreckers there can be no doubt. The wreck was caused by the switch being thrown open, which caused the train to take a siding and plunge down an embankment.

Where Bibles Fly. David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done for me more than five hundred dollars worth of medicine. I have been cured of a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Seeds Like Pebbles. The seeds of the Philippine bean from the coast near Manila so closely resemble the quartz pebbles, among which they fall, in shape, size and color, luster, hardness and stratification as to be almost indistinguishable.

Calcutti. The Romans used little stones—calcutti—in counting, and hence the word calculate. Turkish Houses. Very little furniture is used in the bedrooms of Turkish houses. Rarely is a chair seen in any of them. A few mats adorn the room, and the bed is stretched on the floor.

To Maroon. The word "maroon," to "set a person on an inhospitable shore and leave him there," a practice that was common among the pirates of the Spanish main, is a corruption of "cimarron," meaning anything unruly, whether man or beast.

Persian Beauties. Some of the beauties of Persia decorate their faces by painting figures of animals and insects upon them. Dynamite. Dynamite explodes so rapidly that its force is exerted in the direction from which the greatest pressure comes. That is, if the dynamite be placed on the ground the explosive force is down; if it be hung against a wall its force attacks the wall; if it be hung under an object its force is upward.

Something in Abyssinia. Three good washes are received by an Abyssinian during his career—at his birth, on his marriage and at his death. At all other times he washes soap and water. Lightning Rods. Lightning rods seem to have been known in Spain even centuries ago. A writer in the Frankfurter Zeitung cites an author of the thirteenth century who refers to "some towers of our time who know how to conduct the lightning to a given spot."

Woman Interrupts Political Speech. A well-dressed woman interrupted a political speaker recently by continually coughing. If she had taken Foley's Honey and Tar it would have cured her cough quickly and enabled the orator from her system. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates and is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes. Upchurch Drug Co.

THE BANNER has been furnished some buttons from headquarters at Chicago, to present to every subscriber of One Dollar or more to the National Campaign fund. The button is a pretty one, with a portrait of William Jennings Bryan and the inscription, "I gave my dollar, did you?"

HERMAN RIDDER, editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung, has been appointed Treasurer of the National Democratic campaign committee, to succeed Gov. C. N. Haskell, of Oklahoma, who has resigned. We are sorry to lose Mr. Haskell, but Mr. Ridder is an excellent substitute.

THE Dothan Eagle is issuing a daily edition. The Weekly has always been carefully and humorously edited, much to the credit of the Alabama press; the daily is being edited along the same line and from its present appearance it seems the palm of victory is in its hand.

We notice an interesting article in the Birmingham Republican on Mr. J. Osmond Middleton, Republican candidate for Congress, in which it says Mr. Middleton has "always been a Republican." We are sorry to disabuse our Republican contemporaries of its confiding regard for Mr. Middleton, but only a short time ago Mr. Middleton was addressing a meeting of Democrats at Clanton said he was nurtured on Democratic milk and would always be found advocating Democratic principles as the only hope of the South. Mr. Middleton was elected mayor of Clanton at the time he was a member of the Democratic party, and he was also appointed County Solicitor while yet a Democrat. We have not the slightest desire to make any remark about Mr. Middleton's change politically, he has every right to make such a change, but we do object to the Republican's statement that he has always been a Republican. He honest and be fair, Republicans, that is all we ask.

THROUGH THE "LAST WEST."

The way to resume is to resume, and while last week I was debarred by a concatenation of circumstances from resuming the narrative of our wonderful trip through the "Last, Best West," we will now again resume.

Over the Canadian Northern Railway from Winnipeg to Edmonton is to be the theme of our discourse this time, and the scene is so revelant of the possibilities of the future that it is hard to say where to begin, or of what to tell. But to get down to facts, we traveled in a special train of four Pullman coaches, a day coach, a baggage coach, and last but by no means least, the biggest dining car in the world, the "Quintecentennial," an Arctec word which means "the noble eater from the royal dish," but thank goodness we have no more Arctec words to deal with, although the fare left nothing to be desired.

A daily paper, "The Daily Train Dispatch," was printed on the train en route, affording delight and entertainment to the travelers. I reckon it was the smallest daily in size (but sometimes containing more news of a kind) than any daily ever published in any part of the world. It was a dandy daily.

But, say, if I am to tell you all the details of this remarkable trip, it will take columns and columns of THE BANNER, and then leave half untold, but this will give you an idea of the big undertaking. The Pullman conductor made a report showing that in the two weeks trip 2518 bed sheets were used, 1886 pillow slips, 3344 large towels, 921 small towels, and 68 white coats for the car porters, of whom there were about twenty. Some 500 pounds of ice was used every day, and as to the gallons of water for cleanliness it is impossible to say.

In Canada they count the hours from one to twenty-four o'clock, and leaving Winnipeg about twenty-one o'clock (9 p.m.) we passed through Portage la Prairie and Dauphin in the night, while we would have been glad to have seen these notable new towns, and passing out of the province of Manitoba, arrived at Kamsack, in the early morning. Oh! Kamsack and Alberta, your life has to be seen again for wheat lands and wheat. In a somewhat extended review of the world I can recall nothing like it, although for fertility I remember the Canterbury Plains of New Zealand as about equaling it in wheat.

And what can I tell you about these amazing fields of wheat through which we traveled for the next three days. Some standing and bowing gracefully to the breeze as our train rushed along, some cut and standing in shocks, others being garnered by huge harvesting machines, but each and all speaking of a wonderfully prospering country. The West of the United States show something like it, but the immeasurable magnitude of the Canadian Northwest cannot be equaled or imagined.

The first stop was Kamsack, possibly you may never have heard of it, but it is a thriving little town of a new growth that will undoubtedly make itself famous in the future. Wheat, wheat, is its eternal cry, the same as yours is cotton, and as the world cries for wheat and cotton, Kamsack will do its part in furnishing the wheat.

Humboldt is a flourishing town midway between the two cities of Winnipeg and Edmonton. It has the very best quality of land surrounding it, and already a good class of settlers, mostly Americans and people from Ontario. You can buy improved farms from $15.00 to $25.00 an acre, and wild land from $10.00 to $18.00. The price all depends upon the quality of soil.

Saskatoon we reached about 18 o'clock, (6 p.m.) a drizzling rain was falling, which was not conducive to a fine view of this remarkable town. Less than ten years ago, we were told, it was settled by about 300 settlers from England, today it boasts a population of 7,000, with fine, broad streets, sewers, water supply and fire protection. Later on, about 8 p.m., the local band gave us a concert on the public square, destined to become a fine park, while the daylight still lingered with us. To use the words of a local scribe: "Saskatoon was not born with a silver spoon in its mouth. It had no natural advantages. It has none today. It is the product of a community of bold, determined and persistently loyal citizens who, believing in themselves and in their city, have put their shoulder to the wheel with a singleness and determination that could only end in success."

And, judging from present appearances, the limit of success is not apparent. All honor to Saskatoon for its pluck.

Rosthern, the next morning we reached about 7 and stayed for a couple of hours. It was cool, but bright and sunny, and a walk around town disclosed a new town without pretensions, but with a lively looking spot. It is bound to grow and I expect to hear more of its progress before I leave this wicked world.

North Battleford we arrived at about noon, and this is another surprising town, situated at a junction of the Saskatchewan and Battle rivers. It carries with it every evidence of a bustling and thriving community with a great future before it.

The town is beautifully situated on the high north bank of the Saskatchewan river, its elevated position gives a majestic appearance to its buildings, insures perfect drainage and admits of easy application of the best principles of city sanitation. It commands a beautiful view of the North Saskatchewan and Battle rivers that flow together at this point. Their timbered banks and valleys and deep ravines, with the Eagle Hills extending almost like mountains to the south, afford a view rarely seen in a prairie country.

Lloydminster in the early evening presents a pleasant appearance. Only five short years ago the town was founded, and after considerable hardships by the early settlers was placed on a substantial footing. Possessing an excellent country they are making remarkable progress, as is evidenced by their fine streets and buildings. Only four years old and now numbers 1200 inhabitants, has two banks and a fine school building.

In fact all these Canadian towns have fine school buildings and the young people have every facility afforded them to acquire knowledge.

The same night about 20 o'clock (8 p.m.) we came to Vermillion and if it wasn't painted red it was not our fault. The reception we had was most cordial and all were made not to feel at home, that was not sufficient, but to feel like invited guests. The town was ours, and a mighty pretty prairie town it is. It is beautifully situated on the Vermillion river, and an immense territory north of the Saskatchewan awaits settlement and development.

Leaving Vermillion we journeyed on to Vegreville, reaching the latter place at 7 o'clock morning. Vegreville has a sonorous, vigorous tone to its very name, but nothing approaching to reality. Vegreville is a live, progressive town, filled to the brim with a go-ahead citizenship that marks for its future a go-ahead-iveness that few towns on this continent can equal. A joyous welcome, a drive around its pretty environs, assure us of its coming possibilities. I would fain linger awhile at Vegreville, but onward we must go.

And now, at noon, we arrive at Edmonton, not the Edmonton made famous by John Gilpin's celebrated ride, but the modern, up-to-date city of that name. Well do I remember the old Edmonton, (a northern suburb of London, Eng.) and in contrasting the old with the new, I am bound to give credit to the modern Edmonton. Of all the cities and towns that I have visited in this world, I must say that Edmonton, Alberta, takes my fancy most. If I were a younger man I would pack up and go to Edmonton. Why? Because everything beckons me. Such an evident air of prosperity bespeaks every industry in Edmonton that is almost irresistible to anyone who once perceives it. The very atmosphere is permeated with prosperity, and the inhabitants vie with each other in promoting their prosperity. That is why! And when you meet with a community of that sort, there is only one answer: Go in with them.

Edmonton is the capital city of Alberta, and with Strathcona, on the other side of the Saskatchewan river, numbers a population of 25,000 people, and day by day it is steadily increasing. The town is built on the most modern plan, fine, wide streets, (they told me that where three years ago a lot could be bought for $50, today it will require $1500) splendid buildings and magnificent houses, all go to show an up-to-date town in every respect. The high altitude of the city (2158 feet above sea level) together with the dry atmosphere, makes it extremely healthy, and though the mercury sometimes falls to 35 and 40 degrees below zero, the cold is not felt as much as it is in damper climates. Heat and cold are relative quantities which can only be gauged by one's own personality. In the summer time the sun shines for over eighteen hours a day (think of that) and to quote from a local source "The copious though not excessive rains, together with the marvelous richness of soil, then takes place a rapidity of growth which can only be characterized as wonderful."

Taken all in all I consider Edmonton as about the most wonderful of the Last, Best West's towns. Coal is in abundance, gold is mined, and of course wheat is raised in the immediate vicinity, and I don't know of any spot on earth so bewilderingly abundant as Edmonton. And here we take leave of Arthur Hawkes, our guide, philosopher and friend, of the Canadian Northern, to whom we are indebted for much valuable information and his most congenial company. May his days be long in the land of his adoption, and his cheery presence a blessing to late visitors to the Dominion.

The day coach was frequently used as a lecture hall and were the interesting talks given. A number of towns made up of its of their produce, making a coach have the appearance of a county fair.

By the way, I met an English gentleman at Edmonton, who invited me to participate in a hunt, which he said was common in the old English style of hunting. I asked him "Yocks," "Harkaway," etc., in the English style and he assured me they were so cheerily he rode like a goat and true.

The day coach was frequently used as a lecture hall and were the interesting talks on country we were passing through. A number of towns made their produce, making the coach have the appearance of county fair.

By the way, I met an old gentleman at Edmondton, who visited me to participate in a hunt, which he said was carrying on in the old English style of hunting. I asked him "Do you know," "Tally-ho," "Harkaway," etc., in the good style and he assured me they were so cheerily he rode, like a good horse, with the hounds on ahead, and the full in view.

THE STATE FAIR

Secret societies have entered the contests for prizes at the Alabama State Fair this year. Many industrial farmers have presented big exhibits. The agricultural show at Birmingham, October 9-17, will be an educational feature which the farmers of the State should not miss.

The place to find fun and amusement will be "Let's be Live" at the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham, October 9-17. Every act a leader, and twenty of them, will be brought to Birmingham by Manager Spelman, who has his hands on the best acts in the country. Of course you are going to the Fair, and you must not forget to go "Down the Line."

Don't forget the fireworks at the Alabama State Fair. There is nothing prettier under the sun. A whole field will be turned into fire and brimstone, forests of beautiful trees, mountains covered with great scenes, and all in which the eye delights.

Personal.

Rev. F. M. Woods visited Calera Sunday.

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Dennis of Montgomery spent Sunday with relatives here.

Mrs. T. W. Tanner spent a few days in Montgomery this week.

A week's trial will convince you. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, Oct. 3, 1908
Editor Banner—Will you please give me space for a farewell address to the Populists and Reynolds-Pounds Republicans.
For 16 years I was one of the faithful to help elect their ticket every time. Four years ago so many lies were told to defeat me
in the primary, that after the primary I did not work for the ticket. This year they began their work before I asked for office. So now, boys, fare well if you can; I will never vote your ticket any more. I will vote the ticket that was nominated on the 29th of July as far as it goes. I want a change from what we have now.
G. W. EDWARDS.

To the Gallant Fire Fighters of Clanton and Vicinity.
We thank you from the depths
of our hearts for your untiring energy and bravery in saving our

it not only heals irritation of the throat and stops the cough, but it drives the cold out of the system

to cure a cold. You can't cure it

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready
to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

FIRES AT CLANTON.

On Monday afternoon about 3 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent out from the Clanton Ginney.
Some cotton in the gin house was

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, Oct. 3, 1908
Editor Banner—Will you please give me space for a farewell address to the Populists and Reynolds-Pounds Republicans.
For 16 years I was one of the faithful to help elect their ticket
every time. Four years ago so many lies were told to defeat me
in the primary, that after the primary I did not work for the ticket. This year they began their work before I asked for office. So now, boys, fare well if you can; I will never vote your ticket any more. I will vote the ticket that was nominated on the 29th of July
as far as it goes. I want a change
from what we have now.
G. W. EDWARDS.

To the Gallant Fire Fighters of Clanton and Vicinity.
We thank you from the depths
of our hearts for your untiring energy and bravery in saving our home from conflagration on Oct.
5th. Very respectfully,
MR. AND MRS. W. H. SARTOR.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is used nearly everywhere, because it not only heals irritation of the throat and stops the cough, but it drives the cold out of the system through its laxative principle by assuring a free and gentle action of the bowels, and that is the only way to cure a cold. You can't cure it as long as you are constipated.

THE CLANTON BANK CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready
to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

FIRES AT CLANTON.

On Monday afternoon about 3
o'clock an alarm of fire was sent
out from the Clanton Ginney.
Some cotton in the gin house was found to be burning and for a time it looked as if the entire ginney was in danger. Fortunately there was plenty of help on hand and a quantity of water was thrown on the burning staple and after considerable work the danger was passed.
The same evening shortly before six o'clock the home of Mr. Crit Jones on Second Avenue West, was found to be on fire by his wife who was in the back yard feeding the pigs. There had been no fire alight in the house since noon, and it is supposed that a rat must have carried a match into its nest and started the conflagration. The house and the entire contents were totally destroyed. Mr. Jones has lost everything and carried no insurance, the loss being a heavy one for this industrious young man.
The house, which is the property of Mr. W. M. Wilson, is said to have been insured.
Mr. Jones lost $50 in paper money burned up, but after the fire recovered $40 in gold, uninsured.
The residence, next door, of Mr.
W. H. Sartor, was considerably damaged, but by dint of hard work it was saved from destruction.
The home of Mr. Elias Hopkins, on the other side, suffered much in the same way, but fortunately escaped.
Last Friday night the saw mill miles east of Clanton, was totally destroyed by fire, the firm suffering a loss of about $3,000. The saw mill, planing mill and shingle mill were all destroyed as well as a large quantity of lumber.

THE BANNER has been furnished some buttons from headquarters at Chicago, to present to every subscriber of One Dollar or more to the National Campaign fund. The button is a pretty one, with a portrait of William Jennings Bryan and the inscription, "I gave my dollar, did you?"

With the election only four weeks from next Tuesday, the prospects of Democratic success in the nation are bright indeed, and it seems almost a certainty that William Jennings Bryan will become our next President. The country needs a change and will gladly welcome a Democratic administration. The campaign is being vigorously carried on by Bryan and Kern in a dignified manner.

FINE RACING AT STATE FAIR.

The racing at the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham will be a big feature, and everything that the farmer wants to see will be there. People from this country are enthusiastic. They are going to see the sights at the Fair.

"Peggy," the famous Kellerastrass $10,000 White Orpington hen, and "Fisher Louise," the celebrated $3,000 White Plymouth Rock hen, will be at the State Fair Poultry Show in Birmingham, Oct. 9-17 on exhibition. The poultry show will be well worth seeing. Many entries have been made from this section, and there are hundreds of fine chickens on the poultry circuit.

Alabama housekeepers will be well represented at the Alabama State Fair to be held in Birmingham, October 9 to 17. Their exhibits of art, needlework and good cooking will speak of comfortable homes from all sections of a progressive state. Handsome prizes will be given in each department and the Jesse French Piano and Organ company will give away another one of their handsome pianos—every lady visiting the Fair will be entered as a winner for this prize. A catalogue and all information desired will be forwarded upon request to Geo. T. Barnes, Secretary.

It is announced by the State Superintendent of Education that all county superintendents whose terms were extended by the legislature will have to make new bonds. As this was not anticipated, and as the time has gone by, there is a scramble to make bonds. The law requiring such action is in the new code.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

The State ticket will consist of nine columns—Democratic, Republican, Independence, Prohibition, Socialist, Bi-ennial Legislature, New Counties, and Good Roads.

Following is the Democratic State ticket:
Associate Justices of the Alabama Supreme Court—J. J. Mayfield and R. T. Simpson.

President of the Alabama Railroad Commission—Charles Henderson.

State Game and Fish Commissioner—John H. Wallace, Jr.

Congressman from the Fourth District—W. B. Craig.

Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit—W. W. Pearson.

Elector for President and Vice President of the United States from the State at Large—Emmet O. Neal and J. C. Pugh.

Elector from the Fourth District—J. H. Edmondson.

THE SCHOOL FUND.

The complete list of the State's common school fund apportioned to each county October list was compiled Friday by the State Department of Education. It shows that the total amount available, $1,719,590.37, was divided among the sixty-seven counties on the per capita basis of $2.49.

This per capita, it should be remembered, would be misleading if it were taken as representing all the money that is given by the tax payers to the schools. On the contrary in the majority of the counties there is a special extra school tax.

The Code of 1907 makes the poll tax, without regard to race, a county fund. Under the old code it was a district fund with each race entitled to its poll tax. The sum of the poll tax balances of both races in your county for year ending September 30th, 1908, must be consolidated with the poll tax for both races reported for the year beginning October 1st, 1908. The aggregate thus obtained should be apportioned among the various districts in your county, without regard to race or the district in which it was collected, in the same manner as the general fund is required to be apportioned.

The preliminary apportionment of the general fund should be sent to this office not later than November 1st, 1908, and the final apportionment embracing both general fund and poll tax, must reach here not later March 1st, 1909.

Chilton county has 7,077 school children and the apportionment amounts to $17,921.73.

SYRUP MAKING.

We hear about "the good old summer time," but the fall season brings with it some splendid luxuries. And when you talk to the orchard about goober parching, hog killing, with its sausage and chitlings, syrup making, &c., and leave him to judge, he would say the fall is best of all.

I heard a lady say she did not want any more old syrup, and she voices our sentiments. New ribbon cane syrup is one of the best luxuries we have, and this prompts me to say something about syrup making.

I heard Mr. McQuarrie of Florida say he got 80 cents for his syrup F. O. B. De Funiac. He gets a fancy price by taking a little extra trouble. He laid special stress on good skimming, boiling to the right stage and putting up properly. We all agree that it is necessary to skim well to get pretty syrup, but when McQuarrie says it is necessary to use a hygrometer to get all the syrup to the same thickness there will rise up many objections, but when Prof. Ross, who has made a careful study of the question, indorses Mr. McQuarrie's opinion, some of us will be more willing to yield. And when there comes up a choir of voices from the buyers of fancy syrup saying: "We want syrup of a certain specific gravity," (Mr. McQuarrie makes his to register 34 by the hygrometer) I think we will all admit that it must be a better way.

The instrument can be bought of Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago, at about 35 cents and the use of it is simple. But no matter how good syrup is made it will not hold its flavor unless it is put up properly, and there is but one way. For the same reason your wife cooks her fruit and seals it while hot, syrup is done the same way, and I think it is the only way to keep syrup with its new flavor. It is only a little more trouble and jugs at 5 and 6 cents cost only a little more than barrels.

In conclusion I will venture the assertion that the sandy soils of Chilton county will make as good syrup as can be had. Some of the people west of Clanton who have made some big yields can give us something on that side of the question. Yours for progress,
Judson Stroock

THROUGH THE "LAST BEST WEST."

On a beautiful Saturday morning at the latter end of August we arrived at Red Deer, Alberta, in the valley of the Red Deer river. The sun was shining brightly, the air was sufficiently cool to make one enjoy living, and a walk through this pretty town most enjoyable. We ascended a small eminence and enjoyed a walk through the farm of a German, who showed us a fine crop of Irish potatoes, but the tops were all dead and brown, victims to a recent frost. A genial doctor carried us through his private museum, an attractive collection, largely of curios picked up during his residence of some few years in the neighborhood, and in addition notable relics of other and different scenes. In the store of a taxidermist the ladies went wild over the beautiful furs displayed—all from animals killed in the vicinity. An excellent lunch with mine host at the hotel and we leave Red Deer with regret. The town has a population of 2000, and the surrounding country is well adapted for diversified farming. Lumbering is also a large industry here.

The same evening at 16:40 o'clock (4:40) we reach the progressive city of Calgary situated on the Bow and Elbow rivers, while some sixty miles away the Rocky Mountains can be seen in majestic grandeur. The town is well and substantially built, many of the buildings being of free stone from quarries in the immediate neighborhood. Later in the evening it was surprising to see the crowds on the streets, Eighth avenue being a moving mass of people, that it is hard to imagine a town of 20,000 inhabitants could produce, and many a town of 50,000 does not show such an animated scene. Next to Edmonton I like Calgary best of all the cities we have visited in the Last Best West. An interesting sight was the irrigation works of the Canadian Pacific Railway company which will when completed bring 3,000,000 acres under irrigation. When the work is finished it is said to be the largest irrigation system on the American continent, and will have cost nearly $5,000,000. The famous Calgary district in Sunny Southern Alberta in addition to being a great wheat country is also a fine ranching country as is evidenced by the great herds of horses, cattle and sheep. Dairying, hogs and poultry are all prominent industries and sugar beets are making good progress.

The city of Calgary believes in municipal ownership, and own their waterworks and electric light systems, and crematory, and have recently passed a by-law to spend $250,000 to install a street car system. A long and enchanting drive around the city and environs convince us that Calgary is a splendid town to live in, with a charming and hospitable populace. A good band played at the depot in the evening.

The next morning we proceed to Laggan in the Rocky Mountains, on the borders of British Columbia, the ride being through rocky defiles with a plentiful growth of trees, along and across mountain torrents, tumbling along in an ecstasy of enjoyment, the scenery wild and beautiful. A climb up the mountain of some two and a half miles brings us to beautiful Lake Louise, at an altitude of 5,645 feet. It was a delightful walk in the bracing atmosphere and the enchanting fairy-like view of the Lake almost takes one's breath away. A beautiful sheet of water, one and a half miles long, calm and placid, cold and bright, on each side the mountains towering to the skies, their snow-clad summits glistening in the sun, while at the far end a solid glacier sparkles and gleams, presenting a veritable picture of beauty, that few places can rival and none surpass. A handsome chalet stands at the head of the lake, and one would well take at least a week in these wonderful surroundings, but descending the mountain we again board our train for Banff.

Banff is one of the beauty spots where Nature has been lavish in her gifts. Nestling in the valley, guarded all around by lofty mountains, the swift running rivers, the Bow and the Spray, trembling and dashing along, form a picture ever to be remembered. Hot sulphur springs are here, and near by useful, but not ornamental, coal mines are to be seen. At this point the Canadian government has established a national park of 2,000 acres, in which a magnificent herd of eighty buffaloes are maintained, but alas! for the good old times, they are as tame as a herd of domestic cows and pay not the slightest attention to visitors. Elk, moose, antelope, deer and Angora goats also roam the wooded wilds, and confined in cages may be seen specimens of bear, coyote, timber wolves, foxes and a pair of mountain lions, all of which are very interesting in cages, but one would hardly like to meet them on the mountain side while enjoying a morning-ramble.

McLeod was our next stop, a lively looking town but recently come into notice, with great promise for the future. It is a junction point of the Canadian Pacific railway.

We were now in Southern Alberta, not a great distance from the Montana line, and at 14:45 (2:45 p.m.) arrived at Lethbridge, well built around a large square, already assuming the aspects of a park. There's some life and go about this place that will push it rapidly forward. Here we saw some eighty to one hundred men, standing in line at the Government land office, to file their claims for homesteads. It was shortly after five o'clock in the evening, and we were told these men would stay there all night until the office opened in the morning at nine o'clock, in order to keep their place. It was a cool night, but a free homestead after three years of occupancy was apparently worth waiting for. Fine, wide streets and good buildings show this to be a flourishing town. A band in the square enlivened the evening, while citizens and visitors promenaded around. Lethbridge struck me as a particularly inviting place.

And now for Medicine Hat, far famed for its weather predictions, as well as other things. I had expected to see an elegant building with all sorts of scientific instruments, from which some learned men would get the data to prognosticate the weather that was due to arrive everywhere in the United States and Canada. But, no, nothing of the sort. On the banks of the South Saskatchewan river, out in the open air, is a small globular instrument upon which the sun shines all day, and marks a record on a small piece of paper, and from this we get our weather predictions. I don't know at all how it is done, but at all events there is not much to be seen.

Medicine Hat is apparently the most extravagant place in the world, for night and day they burn gas, never turning it off. Sunlight or moonlight, the street lamps continually are alight, stores and residences the same, and all because it is cheaper to let the gas burn all the time rather than to be so wasteful as to spend time in turning it off and relighting. It looks funny to see gas blazing away in the middle of the day with the sun shining brilliantly overhead, each trying to outshine the other. Of course, it is natural gas, and is supplied to manufacturers at 5 cents per 1000 feet, and for domestic purposes at 134 cents. The city is prettily situated and has a population of 5,000, the surrounding country being largely engaged in the raising of cattle and horses, besides wheat growing where they have sufficient moisture.

But this is spinning out too long and I will endeavor to complete this Canadian trip in next issue.

BLOOD

We live by our blood, and on it. We thrive or starve, as our blood is rich or poor. There is nothing else to live on or by.

When strength is full and spirits high we are being refreshed—bone, muscle and brain, in body and mind—with continual flow of rich blood. This is health.

When weak, in low spirits, no cheer, no spring, when rest is not rest and sleep is not sleep, we are starved; our blood is poor; there is little nutriment in it.

Back of the blood is food, to keep the blood rich. When it fails, take

CHILTON COUNTY FAIR.

The first county fair ever held in Chilton county was brought to a close Saturday night, after a three days' meeting. The attendance was good and the exhibits highly creditable to the county. Considering the hurried manner in which the fair was arranged and the inexperience of the officials, it was undoubtedly a success in every way.

On Saturday morning a parade of the live stock exhibits was made around town, preceded by the band. The horses and cattle made an interesting show.

Cannon & Sons showed a good collection of agricultural machinery and the "Climax" Cotton Seed Chiller excited a great deal of attention.

The speakers during the fair were J. A. Wilkins, Commissioner of Agriculture; W. A. Morris, President of the Farmers' Union, and W. H. Seymour, President Cotton Association, on October 1st, Walter D. Seed, State Treasurer, and M. H. Howard.

A beautiful display of needle work was made by the ladies, who also showed some fine specimens of canned and preserved fruits—the prize being awarded to Mrs. P. I. Hopkins and Miss Daisy Davis for art.

Mr. Nat Watts had a good showing of corn of the Hastings Prolific variety—32 ears on 6 stalks.

Mrs. Belle George had a blue ribbon awarded to her machine, but we have been unable to obtain a list of the premiums awarded. The amusement portion of the Fair was well patronized and everyone declared the fair a great success.

The grounds were loaned for the occasion by the Chilton Warehouse & Manufacturing Company, Mr. J. E. Robinson, the general manager, taking much interest in the Fair.

It is easier to teach twenty what they should do, than to be one of twenty to follow your own teaching.

It is human nature for a man to look out for number one; put the young widow always looks out for number two.

The man who is always waiting for something to turn up, is usually too blind to see it when it comes along.

No matter how little we love our neighbor, we can see no reason why he should not have a kindly feeling toward us.

From Success Magazine
On Mr. Bryan's recent visit to Indianapolis he was asked to do if again elected to the presidency, and replied by a story as a Texan who was ejected from a ballroom while intoxicated, and was roughly handled, and was roughly kicked out. He was kicked out a third time he struggled, and this time was ejected. He gathered together, he remarked to the spectators:
"Them fellows can't kick me out—they don't want me in."

The SPORTING WORLD

Tiger's Good Football Outlook.
The prospects for a good football team at Princeton this season are very bright despite the fact that six of last year's team were graduated in June. Especially will the work of McCosnick at fullback and Harlan at half be missed.

But Princeton will not be altogether without the services of these two football wonders, as they are among the coaching staff which assists Head Coach Roper.

Princeton also lost by graduation Wister and Brown, both of whom were good end players. Consequently Princeton needs two new ends this year, and among the likely men for these positions are Dwyer and Welch. The latter played in the Yale game last year.

The position of center must also be filled. Phillips, who played the position most creditably last year, is eligible to play, but it is understood on good authority that he will not be in the game.

The tiger team will not be found lacking in the quarterback position. Eddie Dillon, this year's captain, is one of the clearest quarters that ever handled the ball.

Athletic Cracks of the World to Meet.
With the Olympic games still under discussion, plans for athletic meets of almost as great importance are under way. The purpose is to give great track and field meets in Athens and Japan two years hence a double set of world's games so that the same team of Americans can compete in each. This means a trip around the world for the Americans who will compose the team from the United States and exhibitions at many places other than in Greece and Japan. Further than this outline the plans have not been published. The information comes from President Sullivan of the A. A. U. through Porter, a member of the American Olympic team.

The Day's Work at Democratic Headquarters

What is a day at Democratic Headquarters like? At 10:30 Vice Chairman Hud-pet at Eastern headquarters takes his place at the head of a long table. Around that table are gathered the chairmen of all the various committees. Each chairman submits his report, a report that deals with all the State from Maine to Florida on the Atlantic seaboard. If it concerns speakers the committee is informed just who is on the stump, the expressions that are being made, and the demand for certain speakers or for more speeches by this man or that. These reports are made up from facts, gathered by wire, letter by newspapers, and by visitors from many parts of the country, for out in the States a great army of orators, writers, observers, district and local leaders, cross-roads politicians and the great silent, thinking masses are at work in that gigantic political game electing a President of the United States. Much, very much depends on what this great central committee learn, and how it acts on the knowledge.

At the Democratic Campaign Committee table there are seated such men as Nathan Straus, Senator Culberson, Colonel Watterson, Mr. Mack, Alton B. Parker, the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, sometimes Mr. Bryan himself, and may be a dozen National Democratic committeemen, besides the regular working bureau chiefs. After these reports and deliberations for an hour or so, the chairman or vice chairman devotes his attention to visitors. In the morning reporters of the afternoon newspapers are received, and in the afternoon reporters for the morning papers. Every task goes to its bureau, and every bureau is grinding for dear life. The Democrats are at work. From "Mr. Bryan's Third Campaign," by Josephus Daniels, in the American Review of Reviews for October.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words from this place.

The health of this community is good at present.

The farmers are almost through gathering cotton, and are rushing to town with it as fast as they get it. They are getting ready to make money.

The young people of this community seem very much interested in education. They will have a debate here Saturday night, Oct. 10th, beginning at 7 o'clock. Subject: Resolved that Alabama should have compulsory education.

Speakers for affirmative T. E. Williams and D. C. Culp, for negative G. W. Mims and J. H. Williams. Invitation to all.

Best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

A READER.

Lawley.
Editor Banner—As I haven't read anything from Lawley in some time, I thought I would write a few words.

The farmers will soon be done gathering.

Mr. Joe McGee died last Tuesday, left father and mother and several brothers and sisters to mourn his loss.

The singing at Pleasant Grove church Sunday afternoon was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. R. W. Dickinson, who has been in our community for three years, is going to leave us soon for Tennessee, where he was raised. We wish him much success.

I want to say a word to our brethren and sisters: Bring your children to Sunday school and raise them up right and they will never depart from it, and some day you will thank God that you carried them to Sunday school.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Card of Thanks

Clanton, Oct. 12, 1908
To the brave and loyal citizens of Clanton who rendered such valuable assistance in saving our house from destruction in the recent conflagration, we desire to return our heartfelt thanks.
Mr. and Mrs. E. HOPKINS.

A Request.

To the Editor of the Banner, the gentlemen of the Fair committee, the gentlemen of the fertilizer factory, the merchants of Clanton, and the Mayor and Council of Clanton:
I write to ask if you could not take steps by which the fair grounds could be used for a wagon yard for the farmers who trade in your town. Many farmers who live a long way off would come to your town to buy and sell if they had some good place to spend the night for themselves and their stock. Other towns of the size of yours furnish wagon yards for the convenience of their country visitors. You could not get along very well without their help—help them.
J. A. JONES.

A Card of Thanks.

We take this means of expressing our appreciation of what the good people have done for us in our misfortune.
We are very grateful to every one who contributed to the fund made up for us to replace our loss. While there were valuable destroyed which cannot be replaced, yet the amount given us, aids us very much in getting ready for house keeping again.
Again we thank you for every token of kindness shown us.
Yours sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. CHIT JONES.

MORE GOOD NEWS

Aint it a good thing to always have something to be thankful for in this great day of progress. To think that no more do we, the citizens of Clanton, and Chilton and adjoining counties, have to go to a drug store or a dry goods store to buy anything we want in the watch, clock or jewelry line, as we have had to do in the past ages, as we are now blessed with an up-to-date Jewelry store, next door to the post office, Clanton, Ala., owned and run by J. V. Higgins, the only apprenticeship Jeweler, Engraver, Diamond setter and optician in this section of Alabama. Call and look at this beautiful up-to-date Jewelry Store, the only institution of its kind in this section of Alabama.

OBJECTS TO SOLID SOUTH

Taft Thinks Dixie's Demerits for the Country.
Cincinnati, O., Oct. 13.—Taft is going south to make a few speeches in Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland, much with a view to convincing the states as to show their people that they are a part of the nation, and that they ought to vote for the party which will give them the independence and enterprise which they need.

Judge Taft said this to the Norman club of Cincinnati, which came to the station to see him off. His address there was an expression of interest regarding the political situation in the south. The south had made wonderful progress, and application of the republican policy of protection, and yet it remained a perpetual asset to the democratic north, to be delivered up to matter what might be the interest at stake.

OUR WEEKLY NEW YORK LETTER.

The Separate House Not Easily Set Aside—Director's Gown of Rough-Faced Materials—Fur to Be Largely Used for Trimming—A Craze for Black and White.

BY MONS. GENE DE PONTAC.

Although the blouse contrasting in color with the remainder of the costume is declared by all fashion authorities to be utterly out of the shops are still full of these garments in white or ecru, and women continue to wear them; it is too convenient a fashion to be easily discarded. Nevertheless, the waist matching the rest of the costume is better form, and many of the light-weight silks and crepes are quite suitable for the purpose. Satin blouses are being made for the autumn-trimmed suits, and many of these are very simple, with pleated yokes and long tucked sleeves, relying for decoration on the fetching jabot and stock arrangements that can be had in almost endless variety, or sometimes the waist is finished with a frill of batiste or lawn, running doubly or singly down the front to give the requisite stiffness between the coat lapels. Beautifully hand-embroidered crepe blouses, made on very plain lines, have a decided air of exclusiveness.

The Parisian designers are making the throat frill and gulf of a material to match the waist in color—colored net or lace dyed to the required tone—but Americans prefer the touch of white, and it is certainly more generally becoming. For the white blouses, net is still the most popular material, but more often than the all-white is seen net with dotted stripes, used in combination with the plain net, either white or colored. For harder service, voile or margasotte embroidered in soutache is effective, and blouses of bright plaid silk, cut away at the neck over white gulfes of net or tulle, are worn with strictly made tailor-made suits.

One of the novel features of the newest gowns is the use of rough-faced material for the Directorate and Empire modes. Even rough tweeds are made up after the same models as the satin-faced broadcloths. Another new point is the combination of very vivid tones with black—crimson and black, purple and black. These bright tones are introduced in the collar or in the spring scarf, in the trimmings or in the buttons and buttonholes.

Fur will be much used for a trimming this winter and is already seen on some of the early autumn costumes. Fur and net form the latest combination—long draped satin skirts are edged with embroidered net and fur, and braided net coats edged with fur are already being worn with velvet skirts. High close bands of fur will be worn around the throat on the first arrival of cool days.

A new frill of silk or mousseline the edges rimmed with fur. The fur and the mousseline must match in color as nearly as possible—such as white edged with ermine, or grey with chinchilla. They meet close about the throat and are fastened with loops of velvet ribbon. The frills now stand out a quarter of a yard, held by fine invisible wires.

Long flowing cloaks will appear this season, not only for evening wraps but for afternoon wear, as more adaptable to the weather than the fringed gown than any fitted coat could be. Sometimes they will be draped to continue the idea and to seem part of the gown itself. Satin in full shades of mauve and purple will be popular, and, above all, black. In Paris just now there is a vogue for the period costume of black and white, and black satin will be heavily trimmed with white and white satin will be heavily trimmed with black. White broadcloth is lined with black satin and trimmed with black velvet, sometimes edged with gold or silver threads. High collars, long ruffles, draped necks and cuffs are the conspicuous features of these garments.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

For the Home Nurse.

A simple remedy for hemorrhoids is to apply a plaster of Paris prepared the same as for table use, to the temple when the head or face is affected and to the wrist when the pain is in the arm or shoulder.

For a scald or burn apply immediately pulverized charcoal and linned oil or the raw white of an egg.

To heal an open cut apply alum water twice a day. Powdered rosin is also good. Pound it well in a clean mortar or wooden bowl and when well pulverized place in a sterilized pepper pot and sift it upon the wound. Put a soft cloth over the cut and occasionally wet it with cold water. This will prevent inflammation and soreness.

Horseshoe Plaster.

Few things in the garden afford such quick relief from pain as a leaf of common horseshoe. For sudden cramps, pain in the side or stomach, sore throat or neuralgia in the face slightly warm a leaf or two over the stove or lamp till quite limp and then apply to the body. It will not blister or leave any mark. For lumbago first bathe the parts with warm vinegar, then apply two or three leaves of horseshoe and keep quiet.—Chicago Tribune.

Potted Steak.

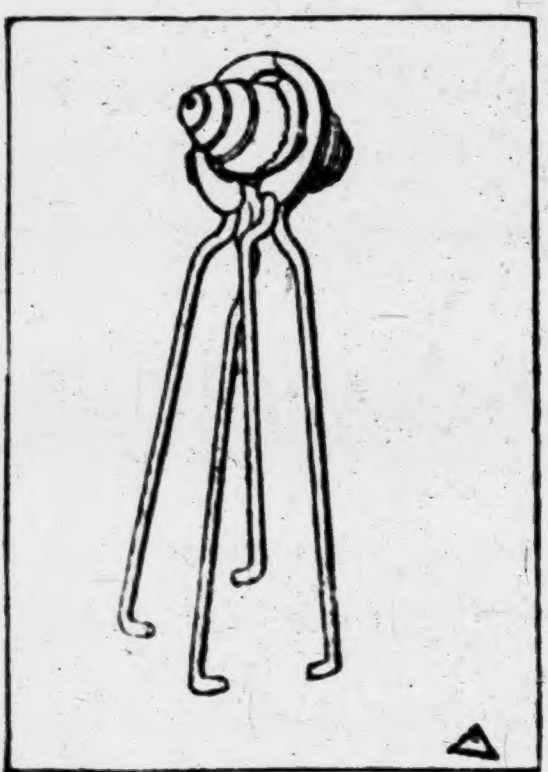

Cut up small pieces of suet in a frying pan or kettle. When the suet is hot then have two pounds of round steak cut thick and divide into five pieces. Fry brown on both sides and then add one cup of boiling water and season. Cut up two onions and one bay leaf. Let boil till tender. Keep adding hot water when it cooks down. And when the steak is done thicken the gravy with a little flour.

Homemade Salve.

A healing and most useful salve may be prepared at home by melting one-half pound of mutton tallow and adding one and one-half teaspoonfuls of carbolic acid. Pour this mixture in old cold cream jars and allow to cool. Apply this to all cuts and bruises. It allays the pain and quickly heals the wounds.

Novel Egg Opener.

A Colorado man has just introduced an egg breaker which reduces to a science the breaking of an egg and makes what was sometimes a painful operation an interesting bit of work. This device consists of an apparatus much like a pair of pliers with long wire handles and semicircular jaws.

CUTS THE EGG SHELL.

each equipped with tiny teeth at the end. Above and below the jaws are conical springs, forming a receptacle the shape of an egg. The egg is placed in these springs, and by gripping the handles of the device the jaws press upon it, cutting through the shell as easily as a man might cut a piece of fruit with a knife. The egg is thus opened not only without soiling the cloth, but without burning the hands, which was the invariable experience in the old way.

Double Skirt Braid.

When putting braid on the bottom of a skirt if the braid is first stitched double, then hemmed on the facing by the edges with the folded side projecting just a fraction of an inch below the skirt, the braid will wear twice as long as when put on with the single edge below the skirt.

Rules For Cooking Meat.

Meat for soups should be put on the fire in cold soft water the better to extract its juices. On the contrary, meat to be boiled for table should be put on in hot water, as this causes the outer surface of the meat to contract and by that means retains the juices.

Cleaning Varnish.

Varnished paint can be kept looking as bright as when new by cleaning it with whole lard. The method is to soak a bag containing the lard for some time in water and then to use it as a cloth to clean the paint.

Peach Stains.

To remove peach stain from white fabrics, to one quart of water add one tablespoonful of chloride of lime. Soak spots overnight and wash in usual way. This will remove any stain caused by vegetable matter.

Stains on the Hands.

Raw tomato is a simple and effective way of removing fruit or vegetable stains from the hands. It answers the same purpose as lemon and is much cheaper.

Yellow Removes Ink.

A good way to remove ink stains from wash material is to immerse the garment in warm water before sending it to the wash.

Mountain Creek.

Mr. W. L. Price went to Montgomery last week to the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Carter, who died on the 6th and was buried on the 7th in Oakwood cemetery in that city.

Stanfield & Roberts Lumber Co. have started a planing mill at this place.

Mr. Dennis will soon begin shipping iron ore from here.

Mr. Ed Price made a business trip to near Kingston recently.

FROM THE CANAL ZONE

Lancaster, C. Z., Sept. 24, 1908.

Editor Banner.—As it has been some time since I have written you a letter about the canal work, I will do so tonight.

The work is progressing nicely. There has been a great change in the last year. You may have heard of the question being asked: "Will the canal ever be completed?" From my view of the situation, as a railroad man, I believe that the excavation will be completed in about 5 or 6 years. The records of the steam shovels for the month of September exceed the work of any month since Uncle Sam has taken hold of the great work. I must confess it is the greatest piece of work in the history. Since the panic in the United States, there is a host of men looking for work here but cannot find employment as all vacancies have been filled. Panama is not as bad a place as some people think.

We have some pleasures here such as bull fights, cock fights, ball games, dances and all kinds of athletic sports including prize fights and wrestling. Oh, boys! what a time we do have on pay-day and Sunday going to the cities of Panama or Colon as we always have a head on collision with the Panamanian policemen, as they are all small innocent looking little fellows. It takes 5 or 6 of them to arrest an American if he puts up any kind of a fight at all, although that is not saying anything about the beauty of the Panamanian girls as they are all very handsome and do not care to get married to an American, and they are wise at that.

Mr. Editor, I guess that you think I have written enough for this time, but I would like to ask you one question and that is if you can inform me to your opinion as to who will be our next President, as we all trust that it will be Bryan. I wish that it was so that I could give him 2,000,000,050 votes, as Bryan is the man for the office. I will close.

Heart Troubles

The heart may be just the same as the stomach or other organs. It often happens that a person is born with a weak heart. Then again disease, fevers, over-exercise, anxiety, nervousness, rheumatism, etc., weaken the heart. The result is shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in the heart or in some of the nerves of the chest or abdomen. The heart should be strengthened with a tonic and for this nothing equals Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I had LaGrippe last fall and it took me a long time to get back to normal. I was tired, nervous, and my heart was weak. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and now I feel like a new man. I am able to do my work and enjoy my life. I have no more heart trouble and I am in good health."—Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of Alabama, to be fixed at the capitol, in the city of Montgomery, on this 26th day of August, 1908.

By the Governor: FRANK N. JULLIAN, Secretary of State. Montgomery, August 26, 1908.

A PROCLAMATION By the Governor. Whereas, The Legislature of Alabama, at its regular session in the year 1907, has ordered an election by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, which is herein set forth, to be held at the general election next succeeding the said session of the Legislature.

Notices of such election, together with the proposed amendment, is required by law to be given by proclamation of the Governor.

Now, therefore, I, B. B. Comer, Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that at the general election next succeeding the session of the Legislature at which said amendment was proposed and said election ordered, viz: on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1908, an election will be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State of Alabama, in the manner, form and places required by law, upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of Alabama, viz:

Section 1. An Act to propose an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, for the purpose of providing for the formation and establishment of new counties out of portions of one, two or more counties as may be desired.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of Alabama:

Section 1. That there shall be and there is hereby proposed an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama to provide for creating and establishing new counties out of portions of any existing county or counties that now exist or that may be hereafter established, to be designated and known as Article XIX, and in words and figures as follows: Article XIX. That new counties may be created or formed and established out of any portion of any existing county, or out of portions of any two or more counties in the manner following: If five hundred of the qualified electors of the State residing within the territory out of which it is proposed to create and establish the new county shall petition the judge of probate of the county from which the territory is to be taken, or the probate judge of the county from which the greatest area is to be taken in the formation of the proposed county, for an order calling an election to be held in the proposed territory for the county stating that they desire to form a new county, the name of the proposed county, the area, the proposed boundary lines, approximate population and taxable valuation of the property, which petition will be verified by one of the petitioners under oath before the judge of probate to whom the petition is presented, said judge of probate shall, if the population is sufficient to entitle the proposed county to one representative in the Legislature of the State according to the last preceding United States census reports, and the taxable value of the property shall be equal to or exceed one million dollars; and it has the constitutional area, and the area of the old counties will not be reduced below the constitutional limit, nor their population reduced so as to cut off their right of one representative in the Legislature, and the boundary line will not run within seven miles of the court house of any old county, at once order an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State residing within the territory of the proposed county, nor more than ninety days from the time of making the order for the election; provided, that if either of the old counties have two court houses one of them may be cut off into the new county. On the day so appointed an election shall be held for the vote of the qualified electors of the State residing within the territory of the proposed county. If such election be held on the day of any general election of the State the officers of the election, in each precinct or voting place embracing any part of the territory of the proposed new county, shall open a poll for the vote of the qualified electors residing in the new county territory. If the election be held on a day other than that of a general election, officers shall be appointed for holding the election by the same officers and the election held in all things in accordance with and under the laws of the State governing general elections, and the election shall in all things be directed by, held under and returns made through the probate judge ordering the election. And said probate judge shall give notice of the order or call of the election, showing the time when it is to be held and the name and the proposed boundary lines of the new county, as well as the location of each polling place, which he shall prescribe for the election by advertising once a week for four consecutive weeks prior to the election in a newspaper published in each county from which any territory is to be taken, and if there be no newspaper published in any one or more of the counties, then such notice shall be posted at the court house of such counties; and he shall also cause to be posted at least one of such notices in each township to be included in said new county. In all elections on a proposed new county the vote cast thereat shall be canvassed and tabulated, and return thereof made to the Secretary of State, and counted in the same manner in all things as in elections for representatives to the Legislature of the State; and the Governor, Secretary of State, and State Auditor shall, within twenty days after the receipt of the returns by the Secretary of State, canvass the returns, and if it shall appear thereupon that a majority of the qualified electors who voted at said election upon the question of establishing the county, voted in favor of the same, such county shall thereupon be established; and the result of such election shall be made known by a proclamation of the Governor; and the Secretary of State shall make and keep a record of the returns, result and proclamation of the Governor in his office, and shall in connection therewith make a record of the boundary lines and name of the county so established, which shall be furnished to him by said judge of probate. The courts shall take judicial knowledge of the boundaries of the county so formed. All the election officers, what the election is to be held on the day of a general election, shall receive the same compensation as in general elections, except that the probate judge, in other cases shall be entitled to fifty dollars for the services performed by him; and all the expenses of the election, including all the advertising and printing and paying the officers, shall be paid by the petitioners for the election and a sufficient sum for that purpose shall be deposited with the judge of probate upon the filing of the petition as a condition precedent, and out of which the said judge of probate shall pay all the expenses. Upon the ballots to be used at said election there shall be printed thereon at the top the words "Official Ballot," and under it printed the question or words, "Shall the new county of _____ be established?" Then following and below shall be printed the word "Yes" and directly under it the word "No" and the choice of the elector shall be indicated by a cross mark made by him or under his direction opposite the word expressing his desire in answer to the question so printed on the ballot. Upon the establishment of a new county the Governor of the State shall appoint all of the county officers, and the officers so appointed shall hold office until the next general election of such officers and until their successors are elected and qualified. And until otherwise provided by law the county shall belong to the judicial circuit and chancery division or district of the county from which the greatest area shall have been taken in forming the county, and the circuit judge and chancellor shall, by posting a notice at the county site or such places as may be provided by the county commissioners for holding court, giving notice of the time and length of the terms of court to be held by them, for at least thirty days prior to the commencement of each term of court, and may hold court as often and continue as long in their judgment as may be necessary to dispose of the business. And if the time of establishing a new county there is a court of record other than a circuit or chancery court, existing and the place of its sitting is within that part of either of the old counties cut off in forming the new county such courts shall continue to exist and hold court at such place until otherwise provided by law, and its jurisdiction, powers and authority, both as to the judge and the court, shall, upon and by reason of the establishment of the new county, be then and thereby limited to and extend over the entire limits of the new county just as fully and to the same extent as though the court had been created for the county. The county site of such county shall be located by the judge of probate and county commissioners at the town or in the community designated by the qualified electors of the State residing in the county, at an election to be called and held under the direction of the said judge and commissioners for that purpose, and which election shall be held under and governed by the general election laws of the State. All municipalities existing within the territory of the new county shall continue to exist as municipal corporations and as of the new county. At the first session of the Legislature next after the establishment of a county, it shall be the duty of the Legislature to pass an act confirming the establishment of the county by the name and with the boundary lines established.

Second. That there shall be and there is hereby an election ordered to be held by the qualified electors of the State on the day of the general election in November, 1908, to vote on this proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State; and the Governor of the State shall, by proclamation, give notice of this election with a copy of the proposed amendment and cause the same to be published, once a week for eight consecutive weeks next preceding the day of election in a newspaper published in each county of the State in which a newspaper is published, and by posting a copy of the same at the court house of each county in which no newspaper is published.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed at the capitol, in the city of Montgomery, on this 26th day of August, 1908.

By the Governor: FRANK N. JULLIAN, Secretary of State.

Why Colds are Dangerous. Because you have contracted a cold, do not for a moment imagine that colds are pneumonia and chronic catarrh have their origin in a common cold. Consumption is not caused by a cold but the cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the germ; that would not otherwise have found lodgment. It is the same with all infectious diseases. Diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough are much more likely to be contracted when the child has a cold. You will see from this that more real danger lurks in a cold than in any other of the common ailments. The easiest and quickest way to cure a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The many remarkable cures effected by this preparation have made it a staple article of trade over a large part of the world. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorby.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

SUNDAY SCHOOL. OUR WEEKLY NEW YORK LETTER

Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 25, 1908.

Discretion Exceedingly Necessary in Selecting from Up-to-date...
—Glove Fashion Revolutionized by the Long Sleeve—Exaggeration of the "Grecian" Collare.

BY MONSIEUR DE PONTAC.
While the coat and skirt suit has in no wise "gone out"—as indeed, it is never likely to do, having made itself quite as indispensable to the majority of women as the separate blouse—still there is a strong tendency toward the dress worn with ruche or bon for the autumn street costume. Long, close sleeves of cloth make this costume quite practicable until up into the first really cold days—and then comes the fur coat.

Though every skirt is narrow and more or less clinging, some variation is still allowed, for there are absolutely plain skirts and skirts slightly draped—skirts gored or with pleats introduced just below the hips—skirts with flat habit backs and others with from one to three pleats. In the centre of the back. And it behooves every woman to study with jealous care her own figure and general style before saying any one of these, for with most of the present modes it is a perilously short step from the smart to the absurd.

The princess skirt with high waistline is again a feature of many of the smart coat and skirt suits, but not, as formerly, snugly fitted to the waist like a girdle, but merely carrying the skirt up in the straightest possible lines, its object being to raise the waist. In many cases trimming runs up the front of these princess skirts, the long straight coat being cut away sharply below the bust to show the trimmed front of the skirt. This is a model seen on many of the imported French suits, which, by the way, show a great preference for rough fabrics—tweeds, diagonals and wide wale woolsens.

Black satin trims tailored, costumes of all colors, and self-color satin is also much used. The newest thing for this purpose is ottoman silk with a satiny lustre and a heavy cord, and this is being used by some of the smartest designers. The changeable ottomans deeply ribbed, are in Paris applied to revers, collars and cuffs, to waistcoats, and to deep skirt-hems. Whole tailored costumes are made up from ottomans of solid color, and long redingotes of this same silk—which is undoubtedly the fabric of the moment—are worn with light woolen skirts.

White gloves are no longer considered the smartest wear unless the costume be white likewise. The latest idea is to match the gown with glove or suede gloves a shade lighter than the material. With the long, close-fitting sleeve, the gaudied d'Artagnan glove, of chambray or white buckskin, has come into vogue for street wear. To be quite correct, it must fit loosely.

Hair barrettes have grown wide—some measure three or more inches across—and assist materially in giving the Grecian effect to the coiffure, holding the hair in closely above the nape of the neck and bringing out the "Psyche" shape of the knot. A new barrette is called the "Mary Garden" and is a latticed affair in shell, amber or Rhinestones, shaped like the jeweled net which held up the hair of "This." Flowers or allegories are now worn on the side of the head and projecting far out at the back. The object to be attained is to make the hair from the top of the head to the nape of the neck as exaggerated as possible.

THE "DOCTOR"

An Important Functionary on Merchant Vessels to the Coast.
There is one functionary on merchant vessels of all kinds who has very much more to do with the "peace and dignity" of the floating commonwealth than shore folks usually imagine. I refer to the "doctor." Why he is given this cognomen is not altogether plain, for his handiwork seldom has any therapeutic value and in the past, at least, has had much to do with sending poor sailors to a doctor. If not to Davy Jones' locker. In fact, there was a time in nautical history when the presiding genius of the galley was in such bad repute that to call a man a "son of a sea cook" was a most opprobrious epithet and one that would be emphatically resented. In those days and to some extent today the cook was covertly despised by the occupants both of the forecastle and the cabin, though the men "forward" outwardly professed affection for him and apparently were never so happy as when they could wash his clothes or do him various other favors, with the hope of getting sundry "leavings" from the cabin table or being granted such privileges as "hanging out" in the galley when rough weather at night made the watch on deck grateful for such shelter. In other ways it was found highly salutary to keep in good graces of his culinary majesty, who frequently was a more powerful person in some respects than the "old man" himself. It is almost needless to add that the more skilled as a cook the cook was the more profound was his influence both fore and aft. But he wasn't often much in the way of skill, all the same.—Shipping Illustrated.

BOUGHT OFF THE BURGLAR.

An Old Banker's Bargain With His Unwelcome Visitor.
"William Winslow Sherman, the old banker, had the coolest nerve of any man I know," said a man who knew him. "Some years ago, when Sherman was an old man and partially crippled by reason of a fall from a horse, he entered his bedroom late at night to find a masked burglar ransacking it."
"The thief had a big gun trained on Sherman in a minute. The banker just waved it aside with a tired hand. 'Put that away,' he said irritably. 'Let us discuss this matter like gentlemen.' The burglar was so surprised he laughed. 'Now, you could hurt me if you wanted to and might get away with some little knickknacks,' said Sherman. 'But you might be caught, and there's a slight probability that you could dispose of my toilet articles profitably. What would you consider a fair cash proposition to go away? They talked it over in all peace.'
"The burglar thought he ought to have $10, but Sherman, after inquiring into the man's habits, said $8 was enough. 'You see,' he said, 'you're a known thief. If this were your first offense, I'd pay your price, but now the police have your picture you ought to be glad to accept any fair compromise and run no risk.'
"The burglar finally agreed to take $8. Sherman pulled out a ten dollar bill. 'Give me $2 change,' said he. And he got it before he paid."—Kansas City Star.

American Humor.
American humor exists. It distinguishes the national character. It permeates all our affairs. It is not of aboriginal descent. It was not brought from England or Holland by the fathers. Its saving grace was lacking under Puritan rule. The humor of Dietrich Knickerbocker is all the more taking because of the absence of all sense of humor in the subjects of his chronicle. If our humor came over from Erin in the first rush of immigration it was quickly adapted to its new environment. It was modified and changed by new circumstances and conditions, geographical, ethnological, atmospheric. Wherever it came from it is a boon which saves us from a lot of needless trouble and worry.—New York Times.

Why We're Ahead.
A curious explanation of the reason why "Canada has but about 7,000,000 people against America's 80,000,000" is given in a review of the world's production of coal and iron. Canada produces but 9,000,000 tons of coal against 370,000,000 tons produced by the United States, and that is why, as long as the coal age lasts, "Canada is not likely to grow to anything like the dimensions of her southern neighbor." This is an English view, and it is not open to the charge of bias.—Boston Globe.

A Doubtful Future.
"Birmingham has developed a habit of saying rude and sarcastic things," "Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "I am waiting to see whether he is going to be recognized as a great bore or a social lion."—Washington Star.

Not Modesty.
Blot-Bimberly is exceedingly modest, isn't he? Knox—I hadn't noticed it. Blot-Well, he never talks about himself. Knox—Oh, that isn't modesty. It's discretion.—Chicago News.

A Winner.
Tommy—Ma, may I play make believe that I'm certainly another little boy? Ma—Certainly, dear. Tommy—All right, please come over for him then.—Philadelphia Press.

OBITUARY

On last Saturday night, Oct. 10, the death angel visited the home of his father, Mr. F. M. Deloach, and took away our dear beloved brother Rev. W. M. Deloach. Dear Willie, his grave, his voice, his smile, his life, he left a place he could not fill. He was short, but so beautiful. He was sick eight long weeks, but bore his sufferings without murmur or complaint. I was with him all through his illness. I knew Bro. Willie in childhood and to know him was to love him; no one knew aught against Willie, his character was without blemish. He lived all his life—from 9 years old to 22—in Autauga and Chilton counties. He found Jesus and learned to love him with all his precious soul, joining the Baptist church at the early age of 14 years. He first joined at the Springs church and lived a worthy, consistent member three years, then drew his legs from that church and joined with us at Bethany; there he lived a worthy member. We all loved Willie, he loved the house of God so well, and to worship there. He loved to work so well to save the souls of men.

He moved from Chilton county back to Autauga county. He moved his membership then to Liberty church and there he was called by his Heavenly Father to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and from then to his dying day he faithfully answered to his high calling. He lived and worked entirely for Jesus, greatly to his heart's wish and desire. He was ordained and baptized several candidates in the name of Jesus. All through the life of dear Bro. Willie his soul care was to work and live for Jesus; he worked true and faithful to win souls to Jesus, his whole heart, soul and mind was in his work. Even in his dying hour I was with him on his last moments and he talked, preached and prayed and begged souls to come to Jesus. He lived and died for Jesus and now he is gone. I long with all my heart to live the beautiful life he lived and die the happy death he died. I long to meet him in that beautiful land of love where I can sing God's praises forever with him. Oh, what a beautiful light showed to all of us! He tried faithfully to live up to all of God's Commandments. He dearly loved sinners as well as saints and treated them with every care.

Let us do all he begged us to do, help others to meet him. We cannot begin to tell all of his goodness; we never can hear him preach any more and tell God's holy love, but we can live for him and as near him as possible.

Where Bullets Flew
David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done a worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

"Drunk With Thy Beauty."
Charles Dickens once had an argument with a friend about Byron's expression, "Drunk with thy beauty," to which he made great objection. During the discussion the novelist gazed as if enraptured at his host's fair haired daughter, who was in the room. At last he sprang to his feet, struck a dramatic attitude, clasped his heart with his hands and stalked to the window, where he wrote on the white woodwork:
O maiden of the amber dropping hair,
Would I, Byronically, thy praise might utter!
Drunk with thy beauty, would that I
To breathe out passions, borne upon a shutter!

Voted Twice.
Sir Gavan Duffy, formerly speaker of the legislative assembly of Victoria, was once returned to his seat by a single vote majority. On visiting his constituents subsequently, he was received with a special warmth by an Irish fellow countryman.
"And so," said Sir Gavan Duffy to his friend, "you were one of my supporters."
"No, sir," was the reply. "I was two of them."

Woman Interrupts Political Speecher
A well dressed woman interrupted a political speaker recently by continually coughing. If she had taken Foley's Honey and Tar it would have cured her cough quickly and expelled the cold from her system. The speaker's Honey and Tar contains no opium, and is a yellow paste. MOST EXCLUSIVE CLUB.

English Joy That There is One Door Riches Won't Unlock.
The Royal Yacht Squadron is probably the most exclusive club in existence, says the London Gentleman, and, wonderful to relate in this plutocratic age, money is quite powerless to unlock the charmed portals of the caste.
One or two millionaires with splendid yachts have tried in vain to pass the ordeal of the periodical ballot, while men of no fortune or only just enough to defray the upkeep of a small yacht have been elected without an idea of a black ball.
The only apparent qualification is that the candidate must possess a yacht of his own, but there are other qualifications much more difficult of attainment by the man of money, and it is just here that the question of blackmailing comes in. It must be owned, rather refreshingly.

For really one had almost said that there is no social "holiness" into which he who is rich cannot penetrate until one recalls the pleasant circle of gentlemen who go to make up the Royal Yacht Squadron. There is, one remembers gratefully, just one institution left to which the mystic words "I am rich" do not have the effect of an "open sesame."

A JEWELER'S EXPERIENCE
C. R. Kluger, The Jeweler, 1060 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my back ache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day, and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed. Upchurch Drug Co."

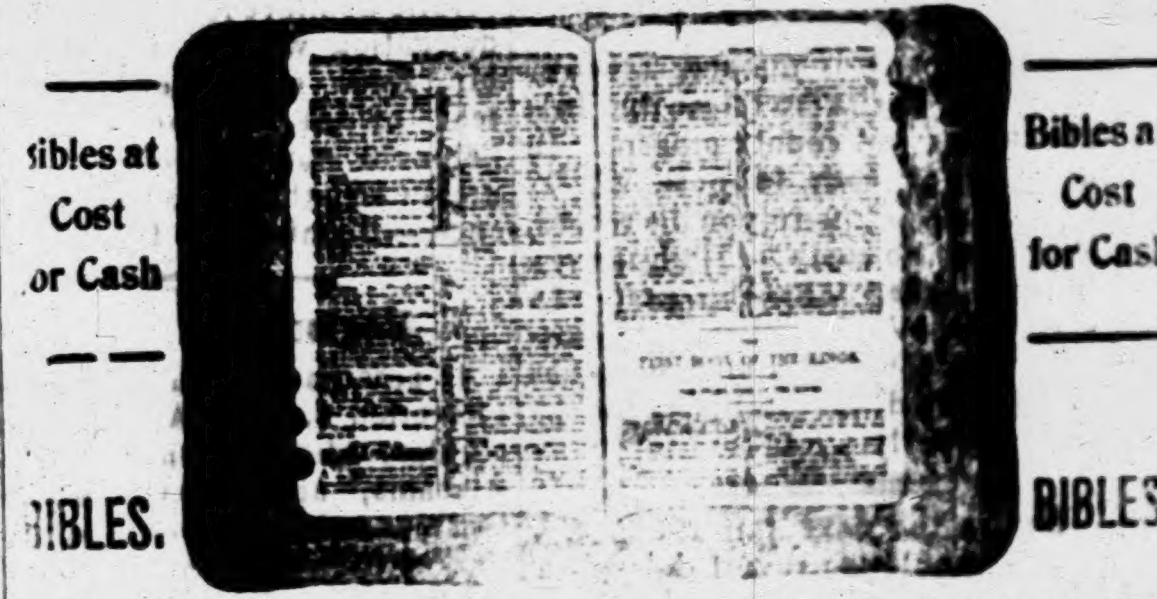

Women Inclined To Constipation

Great Care Should Be Taken Not to Use Violent Cathartics
Women, owing to their peculiar formation, are more liable to constipation and many of them use violent cathartics to get rid of their bowels. A well known physician says the majority of cases of constipation, indigestion, headache, nervousness, and female weakness are due to the constant use of violent cathartics to overcome it.
We believe women will be glad to learn of a safe reliable bowel and stomach remedy that is pleasant to take and that the first few doses will certainly produce natural daily movements without pain or gripe and in a short time establish a permanent cure. It is so effective it has cured cases of 10 years standing and yet so mild and safe thousands of mothers give it to their babies. Joseph Graham, Nashville, Tenn., says: "I suffered almost death with torpid liver and indigestion and Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave me quick relief." Sister M. Berchmans of Mt. St. Mary's Academy, Oklahoma City, says: "We have found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin satisfactory as a gentle laxative and stomach tonic." Mrs. Myrtle Mather, Chicago, says: "My daughter was troubled since birth with constipation and sick headache. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured her." Mrs. W. M. Furman, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says: "It is the best remedy for constipation and stomach trouble I have ever used." Mrs. R. H. Brown, Addicks, Ohio, says: "I gave her prompt relief from constipation and torpid liver. Mrs. Isabelle Wheeler, Freeport, Ind., says: "Twenty-three years ago I was taken with stomach trouble. Three years ago I had become so weak I could hardly walk. I took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and today am as well as ever." Druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 per bottle.
We are glad to send a free sample to any one who has not used it and will give it a fair trial. Address: Syrup Pepsin Co., 208 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

We will be glad to show you through the best line of toilet articles, envelopes, etc., in the city. —Fountain Drug Store.

More Than Enough is Too Much.
To maintain health, a mature man or woman needs just enough food to repair the waste and supply energy and body heat. The habitual consumption of more food than is necessary for these purposes is the prime cause of all troubles, rheumatism and troubles of the kidneys. If troubled with indigestion revise your diet, let reason and not appetite, control and take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Remedy and you will soon be well again. Nature Needs an Assistant

Perfect health is the result of a healthy stomach. It has been estimated that 80% of the human body is made up of water and 20% of food. The food must be properly digested and assimilated to be of any use to the body. Nature needs an assistant to help her in this work. ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator is Nature's best assistant. It is an ideal liver medicine. It is a powerful purgative and a perfect laxative. It is a safe and reliable remedy for all liver troubles. It is a powerful purgative and a perfect laxative. It is a safe and reliable remedy for all liver troubles.

PROVED A POET.

A Youthful Experience of John Greenleaf Whittier.

John Greenleaf Whittier used to declare that at a very early age he knew himself to be a real poet and was often related, writes Mrs. Abby J. Whittier, in her "Reminiscences of Whittier's Life at Oak Knoll," an amusing experience when he was a student of the Haverhill academy. Mrs. Whittier gives it in Mr. Whittier's words:

There is but little doubt that at the age of twenty I felt myself to be a real poet, somewhat unknown to the world, but sufficiently acknowledged as such by the committee directing the publication of the new academy for the purpose of reading an original poem at the occasion.

Robert Dinwiddie, an old farmer in Windham and a writer of rhyme and doggerel verse, was admitted to do the same. The honor leading the procession which came through the streets of Haverhill to the new academy was given to the poets.

I often laugh when I recall the scene to memory. The hale old Scotchman, short and plump, his uncertain gait and bearing slightly exhilarated by the generous draft of old Scotch whisky before we started, was somewhat of a contrast to me, a rather tall and slender Quaker lad in Quaker hat and coat and hair lightened up by the white of the house heaped upon me.

However, we delivered our poems right and I am thinking that I have been the time when I was called "the Quaker poet."

MAN ON THE CORNER

At the eve of the general election, I want to say a few words to the voters of Chilton county on behalf of the candidates. It seems to me that the National ticket and the ticket are well able to take care of themselves, but a few more or less is necessary to support the Democratic county ticket.

The Democratic county ticket is a home affair, and each candidate is a well-known man whose promises are made good, and in election to office the voters of the county cannot make any mistake in honoring them you honor yourselves.

In the last few years Chilton county's expenditures have been larger, in many instances the county's funds have been recklessly spent—and while there may be plenty of money in the treasury is no reason why the economy should not be observed.

Chilton county during the last years has spent thousands of dollars which might more properly have been expended at home. That people who spend money at home are always prosperous, when their money is at home it is gone, largely because of recovery.

For the Democratic nomination you are voting for good and you will see to it that your money is expended in a proper economical manner.

The State Democratic ticket will be elected as it should be. Chilton county should not be left behind around in lonesome.

For W. T. Callen for Commissioner, a man who has served the district well for one term, will serve you again with greater pleasure.

For R. A. Rasco for Commissioner of Education, a man who has served the district well for one term, will serve you again with greater pleasure.

For W. H. Foshee, Jr., Commissioner, a man who has served the district well for one term, will serve you again with greater pleasure.

For W. B. Craig for Commissioner, a man who has served the district well for one term, will serve you again with greater pleasure.

For the straight Democratic ticket and let us be winners in the Nation, the State and the county.

For J. Arkie Mahan for Collector, who will collect your taxes according to the law with politeness to all.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

Mrs. E. M. Pinckard entertained lavishly on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her charming sister, Mrs. Magendans, wife of the talented musician, Prof. Johannes Magendans, whose fame as a pianist is very widely known.

The whole of down stairs was thrown open to the guests and decorated in the autumn tints, red and gold, autumn leaves being used in profusion, domino whist was the feature of the evening. A large autumn leaf formed the background of the score card, and the score was kept with tiny acorns suspended by red ribbons. Mrs. Alice C. McKinnon of Selma won the prize, a beautiful dogwood goat leather purse. Later in the evening a salad course, delicious and delectable was served. The hostess was attired in a white lingerie gown, made lovely with lace and ribbons, and the guest of honor was indeed charming in a magnificent black lace robe.

The Banner will receive Subscriptions to the Democratic National campaign fund and urges all loyal Democrats to send in their contributions. The Banner will transmit them weekly to Gov. C. N. Haskell, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, who will issue to each contributor a beautifully executed acknowledgment printed in three colors as a souvenir of their devotion to the cause of Democracy and the principles of government by the people.

The Banner..... $1.00
Jno. A. Thomas..... 2.00

The Banner has been furnished some buttons from headquarters at Chicago, to present to every subscriber of One Dollar or more to the National Campaign fund. The button is a pretty one, with a portrait of William Jennings Bryan and the inscription, "I gave my dollar, did you?"

November 3 is the day all true men will desire to select the best candidates for county officers. In asking for your support W. T. Callen stands squarely on his record. We have no way of judging the future, except by the past. In voting for W. T. Callen for Treasurer you vote for a man who has demonstrated his ability to fill the office properly.

Vote for G. L. Speer for Tax Assessor, a man thoroughly competent, who will not require your presence at Clanton unnecessarily.

On Tuesday next the great battle of the ballots takes place and we hope to see a great victory of the Democratic party all the way round.

For the third time William Jennings Bryan has made a canvass of the United States, and with unexampled vigor has made speech after speech in different States of the Union seeking to enlighten the voters and to induce them to change the politics of the government—a change many of us think would be most desirable.

The Republican party has had a long lease of power and certainly the past year or so has not been of such a prosperous nature as to make us wish for a continuance of it.

The keeping of one political party in power for a length of time is not inducing to the best interests of the country—they are apt to think themselves indispensable, that they are the whole thing, and it remains for the intelligent voter to decide the momentous question.

And don't forget to vote in favor of the new county amendment—it is a vote for home rule and nothing else.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

The State ticket will consist of nine columns—Democratic, Republican, Independence, Prohibition, Socialist, Biennial Legislature, New Counties, and Good Roads.

Following is the Democratic State ticket:

Associate Justices of the Alabama Supreme Court—J. J. Mayfield and R. T. Simpson.

President of the Alabama Railroad Commission—Charles Henderson.

State Game and Fish Commissioner—John H. Wallace, Jr.

Congressman from the Fourth District—W. B. Gray.

Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit—W. W. Pearson.

Electors for President and Vice President of the United States from the State at Large—Emmett O. Neal and J. C. Pugh.

Elector from the Fourth District—J. H. Edmondson.

Shortage of Small Coin.

In its September circular the National City Bank of New York says: "Somewhat contrary to expectations there is an early and strong demand on the treasury for small bills, particularly one dollar silver certificates. The ability of the department to supply the latter is about exhausted. These certificates can only be issued against free silver dollars held in the general fund or in exchange for silver certificates or treasury notes of 1890 of the larger denominations. The free silver has fallen from $4.043-000 at the beginning of August to $765,000 at the end of the month. The demand for the one dollar certificates is probably due in part to the reviving retail trade and crop moving and in part to the fact that the silver dollar is no longer transported at the expense of the government. As express charges average on the whole $4 per $1,000 taking shipments from the mints at Philadelphia and San Francisco—at both extremes—into consideration, it is apparent that the certificates are likely henceforth to supplant in favor the actual coin, if not with that portion of the public which has been accustomed to the use of coin, at least with the banks which are required to pay transportation charges.

Doctors say take Cod Liver Oil—they undoubtedly mean Scott's Emulsion.

It would be just as sensible for them to prescribe Quinine in its crude form as to prescribe Cod Liver Oil in its natural state. In the oil is emulsified and made easy to take—easy to digest and easy to be absorbed in to the body—and is the most natural and useful fatty food to feed and nourish the wasted body that is known in medicine today.

Scott's Emulsion

Nothing can be found to take its place. If you are run-down you should take it.

Send this advertisement, together with name of paper in which it appears, your address and four cents to cover postage, and we will send you a "Complete Ready Atlas of the World."

The enrollment of the Jacksonville State Normal school is the largest in its history, there being more than 800 in attendance this fall than were present the same date last season. Forty-eight counties are represented. Divided by grades there are 31 holding first grade who are studying for diplomas, 77 holding second and studying for first, 96 holding third and studying for second and 43 studying for third grade certificates. Two students, graduates of last year's class, and holding first grade certificates are taking the advanced professional course. The present building is taxed to its utmost capacity, but this crowded condition will be relieved very soon as the school will move into the new building in November where there will be room for all who apply for entrance.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the blood is in proper condition. Correct any condition by giving small quantities of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a safe, reliable, and effective medicine.

Clanton, Oct. 26, 1908.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words to the true citizens of Chilton county.

May the Lord of Lords help us to realize the condition in which Chilton county is to day politically.

True citizens, are you going to sit still and let the things that exist to day continue? Are you going to vote for a man who drinks whiskey? Are you going to vote for a man who has never done anything that is inclined upward? Are you going to vote for a man who has not the interest of our county at heart? It matters not whether you are a Democrat, a Republican or a Populist. If you are true to your self, to your county and to your God, you will lay down partyism and vote for a true and upright man regardless of party. Let us realize that we are a part of everything we come in contact with, and when you go to vote, vote for a man who will make laws and carry out the laws that will be an example to our rising generation. Best wishes to the true citizens of Chilton county.

DEATH OF MR. ENNETT DAVIS.

On Saturday last, October 24, 1908, this young man died at Mobile after a short illness of malarial fever. His death was quite unexpected, his mother and relatives at Clanton, not being aware of his sickness. Only twenty-two years of age he had the promise of a long and useful life before him, but the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. The sympathy of the town is extended the bereaved mother and family.

The remains were laid away at Mobile Monday.

He Knew His Business.

An open moving van, piled high with furniture, was proceeding slowly up Third avenue in the Harlem section. The driver, whose face denoted contentment and an inclination to doze, sat cross knee, holding the reins loosely. The driver had arranged a comfortable support for his back. This was nothing less than a framed oil painting about 3 by 4 feet in size, uncovered, and with the painting unprotected from the coatless, warm weathered shoulder blades. A citizen hailed him from the curb.

"Hey! Don't ruin that picture leaning against it that way!"

"Ah, g'wan!" said the driver. "Dis ain't do first time I drove furniture. I know me business."

And the van passed on.—New York Globe.

VOTERS OF ALABAMA.

Birmingham is trying to HOLD DOWN BESSEMER, the growth and certain the rights of a sister city for selfish reasons. Bessemer is twelve miles from Birmingham, has a population of 15,000, and is the NATURAL, LEGAL AND COMMERCIAL CENTER of a territory in which there are sixty thousand of low citizens. And yet Birmingham, merely to swell her own ranks, is stubbornly resisting the cry of the people of Bessemer for FULL AND FREE SELF GOVERNMENT.

You can relax this iron grip by voting for the NEW CONSTITUTION AMENDMENT to the Constitution on the 3rd of November. We hope you will do it.

As Alabamians, you are all asked to consider the claims of Jefferson county as THE POWER in the State government. A Senator and seven representatives in the Legislature and delegates in our State conventions, Jefferson's demand for special legislation are already irresistible, not to say intolerable. day she has the GOVERNOR AND LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, that is, the whole of the executive department—a State Railroad Commissioner, the Chairman of the State Democratic Committee, a Congressman—AND HALF OF THE STATES REPRESENTATION IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE. What will she do with the census of 1910? Entire control with the removal of the capital to Birmingham.

Vote for the amendment in justice to ALL ALABAMA.

THE FIRE AT CLANTON.

The fire at Clanton on Sunday morning, Oct. 18, which destroyed the handsome new residence of Dr. E. A. Matthews, which was nearing completion, was insured in the Liverpool & London & Globe Insurance Co. Before the fire was over Mr. Matthews wired his company of their loss and followed same by report on first mail. The adjuster for the company reached here on Wednesday following, Oct. 21, just three days after the fire, and paid the claim, $6,000. If you have property to insure, you will do well to call on C. Miser Tom.

By FRANK E. SWEET.

Copyright, 1928, by American Press Association.

THE wind came fitfully over the broad sheet of water known as Salt pond. It was a "weather breeder," the farmers said, and they made their horses go a little faster and began to calculate how much work they could get in before the storm came. Off in the northeast sunken masses of clouds began to gather and spread out over the sky. When they crossed the sun they cast the dilapidated buildings of the town farm into alternate shadow and sunlight. And with the shadows the wind became suddenly sharp and raw, but grew warm again when the sunlight reappeared.

"Drat th' peaky wind!" grumbled an ancient pensioner as he rose stiffly from the bench in front of the almshouse and hobbled toward the door. "When I was young th' weather had some sort of consants an' didn't fiddle round like a seven minded gal. I'm goin' in 'side th' fire."

"Begorra, an' that's me idee preactin'!" agreed a blind Irishman as he rose cautiously and held out his hand for some one to lead him.

One after another the rest followed until at last there was but one old man left on the bench. He sat staring at the ground as though unconscious of what was going on around him, but as upon as the last footstep died away in the entry he rose and glanced about sharply. Then he shuffled across the yard, stopping here and there as though he had no special object in view, but all the time edging in a certain direction. When he reached the good pile he stopped and looked about abstractedly, then moved on to the pigsty and appeared to study the habits of the grunting inmates. After awhile he straightened up and glanced keenly from under his bushy eyebrows. No one was in sight. A moment later he disappeared through the doorless opening of the great, tottering barn.

At the same instant two keen old faces appeared from behind the entry door, followed presently by two bent, decrepit forms.

"Th' ole fox's gone t' peek at his money, boys," croaked one of them. "Consarn his plecter! He's slier'n an ole turkey hen a-hidin' her nest. 'P I've watched him once I have a hundred times."

"An ain't I watched him fr'm th' haymow an' fr'm th' stables an' fr'm under th' waggins?" chimed in the other. "An' didn't he go a-pokin' an' a-planderin' round like an ole fool as didn't have nothin' t' dew 'cep keep folks a-waitin'. I b'lieve he'd scent a man like a dog does a rabbit. He's got piles o' money some'er, but we ain't got t' see it."

"Who's got piles o' money?" and the old men started guiltily as the overseer came striding into the entry. He was a big, rough man, who towered head and shoulders above them. Just now his hat was pulled down over his eyebrows, and he was striking his boots impatiently with his heavy riding whip. The old men glanced at him and shifted uneasily.

"Why, you see, 'tain't nothin'," deprecated one of them. "We're jest a-talkin' 'bout Miser Tom an' his keepin' his money hid. Ev'rybody knows 'bout it." The overseer's face cleared a little, and he pushed his hat back from his eyebrows.

"Yes, I know somethin' about it," he said more affably, "but not enough."

"ME-GOT MONEY?"

I've had an eye on him the past six months, but didn't seem to make much headway. I'd like to sift the whole thing to the bottom soon's possible. If Tom's got money, of course he can't stay on the town farm. If he ain't, why, the sooner these stories are broke in the better. But he's such a fool I can't seem to get anything out of him by questions.

"He ain't sech a fool's he 'pears," objected one of the old men drily. "When I'm a-watchin' him I gin'rally have an idee 't I'm th' fool. An' as t' the money, he's got it—piles an' piles. I know that, 'cause he ever come t' git on th' town farm's a mystery t' me."

"He was brought here before you came," said the overseer. "Some men stopped at his hut in th' woods an' found him almost dead from starvation. He didn't want t' come at first;

said he'd lived there all his life an' couldn't bear th' change. But after awhile he got round an' liked it just rate. Don't s'pose he'd ever had enough t' eat before in his life. Now you couldn't hire him t' leave th' farm."

"But how'd he come t' git all his money?"

"'Tain't sure he's got any. His father died in th' hut before him an' had th' name o' bein' a miser, so Tom comes nat'rally by it. Both was thick witted an' flighty an' kept t' themselves, an' o' course folks talked a good deal. After Tom come here he used t' go back t' th' hut sometimes, an' folks said he brought his money away in th' night an' hid it in our old barn. At any rate, he stopped goin' all t' once, an' now you can't scassy git him out o' sight o' th' barn. That's what got me t' thinkin' there might be somethin' in th' talk. But you said jest now t' you knowed he had money. What'd you mean by that?"

"I mean t' I've heard him say so himself time an' time-agin. His bed's next mine up in th' attic, an' he's a gre't way o' talkin' t' himself after he's 'sleep-drops-off soon's he tetches th' bed an' then talks like a house afire th' whole endurin' night; gabbles 'bout his pretty babies an' his little darlins' an' his beautiful shiners. Last night he got t' chucklin' t' himself an' kep' a-sayin' he'd got a fortin' an' nobody didn't know; t' he'd alters keep his little tin box shet so t' nobody couldn't see. Now, t' that don't mean that he's got money hid away, then I ain't sayin' any more."

The overseer looked serious. "Yes, the fellow must have money," he said. "Well, I will have a talk with him at once an' let him know th' town farm ain't a free boardin' house fer millionaires."

Settling his hat once more over his eyebrows, he turned and left the entry abruptly. The old men looked at each other and grinned.

"Th' ole feller's sorter riled," one of them said, with a chuckle. "But I'll lay a dollar he don't git nothin' outen Miser Tom. S'posin' we foller on sorter easy like an' see th' fun."

But Miser Tom was not easy to find. The old barn was a great, rambling structure that had been intended to meet all the requirements of a large stock farm. But the stock farm itself had been only a dream of an impecunious man of ideas. Long before it was completed the small capital had been used up, and the farm passed into other hands.

During all these years it had gradually become a vast storehouse for the useless articles of the large farm, crowded together in reckless disorder. There was another story under the roof of the barn, but this was left mostly to the pigeons and bats and to such roving hens as had not yet settled down to the unambitious ways of their kind.

To the boys who lived on the farm the old barn was always a place of wonder and delight. On hot summer nights the more courageous stole from the house and gazed their way up to the piles of hay and listened all through the long hours of darkness to the strange moaning and whistling and rapping that came from the dark corners. And they shivered with delighted horror at the thought of countless ghosts flitting about them.

The overseer paused in the open doorway and glanced around. No one was in sight. Then he called sharply, but no one answered. Two or three hens flew heavily from stolen nests among the wagon bodies and disappeared through a hole in the floor. A cloud of dust rose from the debris and after a few moments settled back again softly. The overseer pulled his hat farther down over his eyebrows. "The feller's skulkin' round here somewhere," he muttered angrily. "Jest like a cat he's watchin' me from behind some waggin body."

But a thorough search failed to reveal him, and at last the overseer left the barn wrathfully.

As he stepped outside he saw Miser Tom come leisurely round the corner of the barn.

"Why, you—you scoundrel!" he called. "Where you been all th' time? Didn't you hear me call?"

Miser Tom looked up vacantly. "Hey?"

"Didn't you hear me call?" fiercely. "Yes, I b'lieve I did hear somebody callin' Tom," the old man answered deliberately. "But how's I t' know 'twas meant fer me? Thar's lots o' Toms on th' place."

"Well, 'twas meant fer you. Now, look here, you an' me has some business that's got t' be settled right straight off. How much money 've you got, an' where is it?"

"Me—got money?"

"Yes, you. I know all about it. I don't want t' be hard on you, but this thing's got t' be settled right now. If you stay on th' farm you must pay your board. If you don't you've got t' clear out. Do you understand?"

Into the dull eyes of the old man came a troubled look.

"But I ain't got no place t' go," he said tremulously, "no place in th' whole wide world. An' I'm too ole t' work. I wouldn't hev no place t' sleep an' nothin' t' eat."

"That's your lookout, not mine," replied the overseer curtly. "You have money, haven't you? Come, tell th' truth."

The old eyes roved unconsciously toward the roof of the barn.

"Yes, I've got some," he said slowly, "but not t' spend. 'F I spent it, 't would be gone, an' 't wouldn't come back no more."

The old eyes roved unconsciously toward the roof of the barn.

said he'd lived there all his life an' couldn't bear th' change. But after awhile he got round an' liked it just rate. Don't s'pose he'd ever had enough t' eat before in his life. Now you couldn't hire him t' leave th' farm."

As he stepped outside he saw Miser Tom come leisurely round the corner of the barn.

"Why, you—you scoundrel!" he called. "Where you been all th' time? Didn't you hear me call?"

Miser Tom looked up vacantly. "Hey?"

"Didn't you hear me call?" fiercely. "Yes, I b'lieve I did hear somebody callin' Tom," the old man answered deliberately. "But how's I t' know 'twas meant fer me? Thar's lots o' Toms on th' place."

"Well, 'twas meant fer you. Now, look here, you an' me has some business that's got t' be settled right straight off. How much money 've you got, an' where is it?"

"Me—got money?"

"Yes, you. I know all about it. I don't want t' be hard on you, but this thing's got t' be settled right now. If you stay on th' farm you must pay your board. If you don't you've got t' clear out. Do you understand?"

Into the dull eyes of the old man came a troubled look.

"But I ain't got no place t' go," he said tremulously, "no place in th' whole wide world. An' I'm too ole t' work. I wouldn't hev no place t' sleep an' nothin' t' eat."

"That's your lookout, not mine," replied the overseer curtly. "You have money, haven't you? Come, tell th' truth."

The old eyes roved unconsciously toward the roof of the barn.

"Yes, I've got some," he said slowly, "but not t' spend. 'F I spent it, 't would be gone, an' 't wouldn't come back no more."

MRS. W. T. BURNS

National Correspondent of W. R. C. Suffered from Nervousness and General Breakdown—Caused by a Cold.

Restored to Health by Vinol.

"I caught a severe cold which it seemed impossible to get rid of. I became much run down, lost my appetite and flesh and felt nervous and irritable. Vinol was recommended and certainly worked wonders for me; it increased my appetite and cured my cough and nervousness. I consider Vinol a wonderful remedy." Mrs. W. T. Burns, Memphis, Tenn.

Many people are in just her condition—all run down, hardly able to drag about, don't know what ails them. This is probably caused by a cold or cough which is hard to cure, overwork or too close confinement to business, and such people need Vinol.

Vinol is not a patent medicine, but contains the medicinal curative elements found in fresh cod's livers, with all the oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

We ask every run down, nervous, debilitated, aged or weak person in this place, and every person suffering from stubborn colds, hanging-on coughs or bronchitis, to try Vinol on our offer to return money if it fails to give satisfaction. Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala.

SENIORITY IN CONGRESS.

Experience Carries Influence—Old Members Relied on For Work.

A man's standing in Congress is gained by seniority. His influence there comes from length of service, provided, of course, that it is the right kind of service.

New men, no matter how ambitious and zealous, have very little influence. They do not and cannot begin their work where their predecessors left off. Speechmaking does not bring them influence. Work brings it—committee work.

Members rank in their committees by seniority. Besides, new members do not get and cannot get in the usual course of things appointments to the more important committees. These appointments go to the tried men, who by length of service coupled with ability are chosen in the house for the vacant places.

Some constituencies know this and act accordingly. Some constituencies ignore the fact and gain nothing by ignoring it. In fact, they lose weight in the councils of congress by frequently changing their representatives simply to gratify the ambitions of local politicians.—Boston Herald.

WHY I AM A BRYAN MAN.

I have a Republican friend whom I am trying to convert into a Bryan man, but I fear, like Ephraim, he is wedded to his idols.

I am a Bryan man because, first, I regard him one of the greatest men in the country, and the most influential public man, Roosevelt possibly excepted, in our country. In great news I think he measures intellectually and morally, with any man we have.

Second, he has sought his support from the masses, and from a mandate of the voice of the people, received his nomination. The late Sam Jones styled him "The Great Commoner."

Third, I like the platform on which he is running—especially the tariff plank, guaranteed banks and making public the amount and names of campaign contributors, in which it is peculiar to the Republican platform. Guaranteed banks have been demonstrated a success in Oklahoma. It has been objected to the publication of campaign funds, that the people might be prejudiced thereby, and therefore should be kept in the dark. I resent the objection as an insult.

Fourth, I was a Populist in 1892 and I notice that in supporting Bryan I am in line with the states that went Populist in '92, viz., Colorado, Idaho, Kansas and Nevada. These states elected Populist electors in '92. In '96 and 1900 they went for Bryan, with the exception of Idaho in 1900. The fact is this: The Populists in having to make a choice of between two old parties, cast their lot with the Democrats which was headed by Bryan. They did this because he came nearest representing the principles for which they had been fighting.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Small Wonders.

Strange things are found among the plants and vegetables. A student of nature once tested the growing force of a squash. When it was eighteen days old and measured twenty-seven inches in circumference he fixed a sort of harness round it, with a long lever attached. The power of the squash was measured by the weight it lifted. Two days after the harness was put on it lifted sixty pounds, and on the nineteenth day it lifted 5,000 pounds.

The seed of the globe turnip is about one-twentieth part of an inch in diameter, and yet in the course of a few months this seed will be enlarged by the soil and the air to 27,000,000 times its original bulk, and this in addition to a bunch of leaves.

It has been found by experiment that a turnip seed will under fair conditions increase its own weight fifteen times in one minute.—Nature Study.

How a Town Got Its Name.

Some geographical names have a peculiar origin. One in California, the name of a town, has been referred to now and then as unique. It is Yreka, and it is not unlikely that some etymologist in the future may say that it came from the Greek word "yereka," (I have found it). But, alas for this classical explanation, the real origin is not only commonplace, but ludicrous.

It seems that a bakery in the town, or mining camp, as it then was, sported a window curtain on which was painted the word "Bakery," but it was painted so as to be read from the inside of the shop. To one standing outside, therefore, the letters were reversed, but as the B was hidden by the sash the word appeared as "Yreka," and from that came the name of the town.—Chicago News.

Origin of the Term Pig-back.

This term means carrying a child on your back, with its arms around your neck and its legs under your arms, says Chicago News. It is variously spelled pig-back, pig-back, pig-back, pig-back, pig-back and pig-back, preference being given by modern dictionaries to the last two forms. It is at least a sort of slang, but it will be used as long as children enjoy that mode of transportation, which means forever. Some persons think that the allusion is to the way in which a butcher carries a pig, but that can hardly be, for a butcher carries a pig with its head hanging down. It is more likely that it came from pigs, the Anglo-Saxon for child, from which original form it was perverted to pig-back, etc., alluding to the way a pack is carried.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Sheppard Will Retire.
Melvin W. Sheppard, the great middle distance runner, will quit the athletic path. The Olympic hero made this announcement recently in New York. He is tired and wishes to rest. Whether he will ever again be seen in action is doubtful. Sheppard is one of the greatest athletes that ever wore a spiked shoe, and many believe he has the great Kilpatrick beaten. He is a natural born runner, having a bound that is simply wonderful.

MELVIN SHEPPARD

At 103 He Drives Harness Racers.
At the age of 103 Charles Taylor, the youngest old man in the world, is still driving trotters and pacers, record breakers, strong of jaw and high of mettle.

Recently Taylor, at the Newburyport fair, in White River Junction, Vt., drove Tommy R. 1:02 3/4, for a half mile against My Star, 1:03 3/4. He is the only man alive who ever won a trotting race at the age of ninety-six and the only one who ever drove a champion over a track at the age of 103.

"I expect to live to be 125 years old," says Taylor, "and any man can live to be 100 if he lives right."

The veteran driver has slept for six to four years at a time with horses and has participated in 1,500 races.

Dugan May Ride Abroad.
C. E. Durnell makes the announcement that he has received a telegram from A. J. Joyner, trainer for Harry Payne Whitney, inquiring at what figure Durnell would like to contract on Eddie Dugan, the jockey.

Durnell says he sold only first call on Dugan for the present New York season to Mr. Whitney a year ago and that his contract on the boy runs until May 15, 1908. He has telegraphed to Joyner that he would take $7,500 for the remaining time the contract has to run. Durnell believes that Joyner is planning to take Dugan to England with him.

Moran Wants Another Chance.
Owen Moran's manager was not satisfied with the outcome of the battle with Abe Attell recently. In which the men fought to a draw, and is seeking another go with the featherweight champion. This time he wants the fight to be at forty-five rounds. He thinks the Englishman can dispose of the American in a longer battle. Attell is willing to sign articles again, but refuses to agree to battle more than twenty-five rounds, which he says is sufficient for him.

An Exercise Game.
A good exercise game is made by scooping a hole in the ground and placing in it an upright stick. On the top of the stick place a stone or similar substance. The player then retires to a distance and flings at the stone with marbles or small balls. The object of the game is to get the stone as far as possible from the stick. Mark circles around the stick and number the circles 1, 2, 3, etc. The game is reckoned by counts.

MORE GOOD NEWS

Aint it a good thing to always have something to be thankful for in this great day of progress. To think that no more do we, the citizens of Clanton, and Chilton and adjoining counties, have to go to a drug store or a dry goods store to buy anything we want in the watch, clock or jewelry line, as we have had to do in the past ages, as we are now blessed with an up-to-date jewelry store, next door to the post office, Clanton, Ala., owned and run by J. V. Higgins, the only apprenticeship jeweler, Engraver, Diamond setter and optician in this section of Alabama. Call and look at this beautiful up-to-date jewelry store, the only institution of its kind in this section of Alabama.

LEGAL VERBIAGE.

A Kick From a Layman Against Its Solomonic Senselessness.

"As fond as I am of reading," said a merchant, "I never peruse a legal document without feeling irritable over my inability to grasp the real meaning of such a paper at a glance. Like many other persons not engaged in the legal profession, I sometimes have to read contracts and other agreements drawn up by lawyers, and I often wonder why in this age of common sense the 'whereases,' 'aforesaid,' and 'parties of the first part' are not relegated to oblivion. The technical verbiage employed is a relic of the age when that which was mysterious and could not be understood was esteemed to be beyond the comprehension of the common herd. The use of uncommon English in purely business circles would not be endured. Why, then, should the transfer of a piece of property be a process so labyrinthian and so mysterious that a man of sound sense cannot fathom it? It has been estimated that the clipping of the letter 'u' from such words as humour, labour and the like has added to the world each year what is equivalent to the productive capacity of 500 able-bodied men. What would we not gain if from every legal paper and from every legal suit there should be removed that vast mass of superfluity, that antique verbiage, that bulk of repetition and solemn senselessness that now envelops them as the shell envelops the clam?"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

READ AND CONSIDER!

GENTLEMEN: As it is customary for every aspirant for office to read an address or set forth his platform or qualifications for office, I take this opportunity of saying I do not know of anything I can say or do except that I promise to execute the duties of Treasurer to the best of my ability and will strive to have no similar office in the State of Alabama nearer or better kept and with credit to myself and honor to the county. And you know I will feel very grateful for your birthday present of your vote for me without my telling you so, for I do assure you, one and all, I shall deeply appreciate it, and it will amount to much to me. Votes are a good requisite, but not always count. I am depending on something higher, for should it be the Good Master's will for me to have the office I will be elected. I have gotten it when votes lost. If you will excuse me I will tell you how in two, twelve years ago, I was a candidate for County Treasurer. My opponent, Mr. W. L. Sampey, withdrew some little time before the election. I had no opposition and was elected by a very large vote. Then I set out and canvassed the county for two weeks—hard work—to make my $15,000 bond, and came home on the Saturday evening of second week and was still a few thousand short of having my bond complete. About dark, word came to me from Probate Judge Honeycutt that my time was out at 12 o'clock that night. I went to the office and found it as stated and found parties already there trying to get the appointment and had their bondsmen with them. I went at 12 o'clock to induce them to make my bond, promising to make them an indemnifying bond, but all to no avail. I was hacked; I was disconsolate, I was dejected, and regretted losing the office more on account of my friends who had given me such a handsome vote than I did for myself, as we had lost our last Treasurer elected by his failing to make his bond, and W. L. Sampey was appointed.

As above stated, I went home with a very sorrowful heart and still brooded over it all next day, Sunday as it was. My office was gone from me and I had disappointed my friends. On Monday morning I thought I would go to Clanton, anyway. On my way friends told me such and such parties would make my bond, but when I got to Clanton parties told me they would make my bond; that Judge Honeycutt said he would hold up the appointment to see if I could make bond. I went to see a merchant—a Democrat—who I knew wanted a book-keeper, asked him if he had anything I could do for him in his store. I told him I was no salesman. He said yes. I told then I wanted my bond made, and had my bond made in short order. Other parties followed me up and down the street, wanting to make my bond for me, but I told them they were too late, I had promised other parties and could not therefore accept of their aid.

Now, gentlemen, do any of you believe it was human agencies brought about that great change in 36 hours? Was I more competent or any way better than I was 36 hours before? God works in human affairs in a mysterious way. I do not and I know you do not. I believe that if in His divine wisdom He thinks I should get my desire, He will grant it, votes or no votes. The ticket I was nominated on is a good ticket, and I hope my friends will hunt it out and vote it. We have been hampered in this election, having no newspaper in which to place our nomination and announcement. But you will find our ticket somewhere on the official ballot. But hunt it out and don't forget your birthday present in commemoration of my 72d birthday. We have made no canvass, though we delight being with our friends. But had we been elected by our own endeavors, might cause us to be puffed up or proud, and take the credit of it unto ourselves and not place it with great thanks where it properly belongs.

Now, in conclusion gentlemen, we will leave the matter with you and our Great Father to determine in wisdom and great mercies.

Yours respectfully,

MAGAZINE BLOWS UP

Massive Explosive Occurs at Gadsden, Ala.

ONE KILLED, MANY INJURED

Fire, Which Started in a Small Mining House, Soon Reached Powder Magazine—Eight Cases of Dynamite Blew Up.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 23.—The damage done by the blowing up of the magazine of the Hammond Mining company, at Gadsden, Wednesday night at 9 o'clock, was as follows:

One man killed, Henry Kivi, a shoe factoryman; Gus Woodliff, chief of the fire department, scalp wound.

Property damage to mining company $60,000; plate glass in city broken, $3,000. Arthur Hood, who was reported missing, has been found. The fire started in the wash room of the mining company, ignited the blacksmith shop and then the little frame powder magazine building.

Eight cases of dynamite blew up, the ground around the fire scattering in all directions. It was thought for a few hours that the fatality list would be very serious.

The fire department, with forty men, had responded to an alarm, a house being on fire near the mine magazine.

With hundreds of spectators standing near, the explosion suddenly occurred and everyone within a wide radius was hurled to the ground. Those who were blown through the body of Kivi, miners and been drawing explosives from the magazine, but no one seems able to account for the explosion.

A number of women and children standing in the vicinity of the fire were more or less injured.

Woman Killed by Negro Boy

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 23.—While seated in a rear room of her home at Pooler, 10 miles from Savannah, on Wednesday, Mrs. W. E. Turrence, wife of an engineer, was fired upon and instantly killed by Solomon Riley, a negro boy. The boy was arrested. A party of thirty men, bent upon lynching the negro, left Savannah by train for Pooler. Arriving there, however, the crowd found that the boy had been carried to Savannah by Deputy Sheriff R. W. Watcott. The officer had captured the boy in a trap set and taken him to the city in a buggy. Riley is in jail here.

Wanted by Night Riders

Decatur, Ala., Oct. 23.—Fleming Brandfield, who conducts a mercantile store at Portland, has received an anonymous letter advising him to sell his stock of goods and otherwise dispose of his other property in thirty days or else he will be seriously dealt with. Last Friday Brandfield's store was nearly destroyed by fire, but by the aid of neighbors who discovered the blaze in time, the flames were extinguished before much damage had been done. Coal oil had been scattered on the walls of the store on the outside and set on fire.

Killed Negro School Teacher

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 23.—A special from Tuscaloosa says: Burton Hyche, deputy sheriff and game warden of Tuscaloosa county, shot and killed a negro school teacher named Nathan Jackson, near the county bridge. Hyche arrested some negroes last week for fighting and he received word that he would be fixed the next time he was seen. Jackson met Hyche in the public road and started toward him when the deputy shot him twice, the first shot proving fatal.

Epidemic of Mad Dogs

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 23.—That there is an epidemic of mad dogs is indicated by the fact that the state Pasteur-treatment department, established less than a month ago, has eight cases for free treatment, being people who are not able to go where they have to pay. The number of dogs with rabies is very much larger than usual.

Columbus, Ga., Oct. 23.—It has been practically decided to invite the South Georgia conference to meet in Columbus in 1909. It has been many years since the conference has met here.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENTS

In States of Georgia and Alabama Are Many and Varied

Columbus, Ga., Oct. 23.—The most important industrial event of the week just ending was the announcement by President Harding, of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron company, that his company is to build a $1,000,000 steel mill at Gadsden, Ala. Mr. Harding, whose office is in New York, has just been on a visit to the company's properties and made announcement in Gadsden on last Saturday of its plans. He spoke quite optimistically of the future of the iron and steel industry in Alabama.

Industrial developments in Alabama were by no means confined to its great mineral belt, however, for down in the southeastern corner of the state a company was formed with a paid-in capital of $30,000 and authority to increase it to $1,000,000 to develop the water power of the Choctawhatchee river. The name of the company is the Choctawhatchee River Light and Power company, and its plans, which are quite ambitious, contemplate furnishing light and power to several cities and towns in that section of Alabama. Its headquarters will be at Dothan.

Among the interesting contracts awarded was one by the board of education of Floyd county, Georgia, for the equipment, in full or in part, of 52 school houses with desks and other furniture. It was just a few years ago that such a contract would have gone to the north as a matter of course, and the changing conditions are illustrated by the fact that the contract which involves several thousand dollars, was captured by a Columbus, Ga., school desk company. The South is now filling nearly all of its wants along that line.

One of the biggest timber deals of the year was consummated when an American, C. A. capitalist bought for $211,000 71,000 acres of timber lands, along the Georgia-Florida line, and a company will be formed to develop it. An interesting deal was that of a farm near Ocala, Fla., for $20,000, which was $75 per acre.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 23.—Mullins, a thriving town in the tidewater section of South Carolina, which was visited by a fire which destroyed tobacco stores to the extent of $100,000, was again visited by fire Tuesday which resulted in an additional loss of about $50,000.

A tobacco warehouse belonging to W. C. Scott, valued at approximately $25,000, with insurance of $16,000, was wiped out.

A sales stable was also destroyed, which loss was covered by insurance.

Spanish Debt Liquidated

Spain has been paying annual interest on the amount since the treaty, and this year the Spanish government transmitted $500,000 in liquidation of the debt. The principal has been paid over three times in interest.

Eminent Surgeon Dying

New York, Oct. 23.—The condition of Dr. William T. Bull, the eminent surgeon, who is suffering from cancer, remains unchanged. It is stated that the attending physicians hold out no hope for recovery and are only attempting to alleviate the patient's suffering. The proximity of the cancer to the main artery of the neck made an operation impossible and the X-ray treatment is, therefore, being used.

Want Conference in 1909

Columbus, Ga., Oct. 23.—It has been practically decided to invite the South Georgia conference to meet in Columbus in 1909. It has been many years since the conference has met here.

KILLED IN JAIL CELL

Prisoner Resisted Mob and Was Shot to Death

TRAGEDY AT KINGS, TENN

Mobbed Men Entered the Jail and When Prisoner Resisted One With a Revolver They Opened Fire on Him, Killing Him Instantly.

Kingsport, Tenn., Oct. 23.—A mob of about thirty men attacked the Boone county jail Thursday night and killed George Cook, held therein as a prisoner on the charge of murdering John King, ferryman at Southwest Point, a few weeks ago.

Of the members of the mob all save two were masked and these unmasked men were strangers to the sheriff. The identity of none of the mob is known.

It is presumed the men intended to hang Cook, as they had a rope in their possession. However, when his cell was reached, he offered resistance and produced a razor which was concealed in his cell. With this weapon he defended himself against one of the men in the mob. This, it appears, enraged the invaders and Cook was shot to death in his cell.

Four bullets entered his body, one penetrating the breast, one the left arm and two the abdomen.

Governor Patterson will offer a reward for the leader of the mob.

AT POINT OF PISTOL

Servicely Dressed Young Man Relieves Woman of Diamonds

New York, Oct. 30.—Gaining admission to the home of Mrs. Eben Adams in New Rochelle, under the pretext that he wished to inspect the premises with a view of subsequent purchase, a young man, dressed in a tuxedo, compelled Mrs. Adams at the point of a revolver to remove her diamond earrings and present them to him.

The affability of the burglar and the fact that he left without taking with him other booty than the earrings, which were of comparatively small value, is taken by the police as an indication that he was a novice. No trace of him has as yet been found.

ELECTROCUTION IN VIRGINIA

Negro Attempted Criminal Assault on a White Girl

Richmond, Va., Oct. 20.—Wisconsin Green, a negro youth, was electrocuted in the state penitentiary Friday for attempted criminal assault upon a young white girl of Chesapeake county. After his conviction he made a full confession.

ELECTION IN ALABAMA

Outlook Good for Passage of the New Amendments to Constitution

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 31.—With the end of the week closing in the political fight in the state the outlook is good for the passage of all three of the proposed amendments to the constitution, the first to be suggested to the new organic law, now seven years old.

They seek to make any territory with 40 square miles, capable of supporting a million and voters enough to give a report in the legislature, eligible for organization of a new county, to have biennial sessions of the legislature instead of quadrennial and allow the state to build and maintain the roads from the funds secured in the taxing of the convicts.

The new county movement is in the interest of that part of Jefferson county which is called Pelham. After the late mayor Pettus. This would mean a great decrease in the values now going to Birmingham as the county seat, and divide up the largest county in the state to the great benefit and population loss of Jefferson. That end of the county about Birmingham is making a state-wide fight to prevent the proposition carrying.

BLEW POSTOFFICE SAFE

Burglars Secured $300 in Cash from Athens, Tenn., Postoffice

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 31.—A special to the Sentinel from Athens, Tenn., says the postoffice at that place was robbed Friday night. About $300 in "stamps" and postal cards and $300 in money order funds were stolen. The burglars entered by picking the lock of a rear door, and the vault, which was recently installed, was blown open with nitroglycerine.

The postoffice was audited by an inspector Friday and the funds and accounts were found correct.

There is no clue as to the identity of the burglars.

Bloodhounds have been sent from Chattanooga to trail the burglars.

HER HAIR TURNED WHITE

Strange Result of Accident to Woman in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 31.—In one day after a broken trolley pole fell on the head of Mrs. Julia Kenold, her hair, naturally a chestnut brown, was turned completely white, and the expression of her face changed from the bloom of middle age to that of a woman 15 years her senior.

The accident occurred on Dec. 21, 1904. In Judge Tuttle's court Friday, a verdict for $17,500 was rendered in her favor against the Union Traction company, owners of the line on which she was injured.

The verdict is one of the largest ever returned in favor of a woman in a personal injury case in the history of Chicago.

Boston, Mass., November 1.—What was probably the greatest parade of a religious character in the history of New England, brought to a close today (Oct. 31) a religious procession of the Holy Name Society of the Roman Catholic diocese of Boston, which began on Wednesday last. It is estimated that fully 40,000 men, representing the Holy Name Societies of the Roman Catholic diocese in the five counties which constitute the diocese, with over 150 priests, participated, marching to the music of 150 bands. Thousands of spectators lined every point of vantage along the line of march.

Passing before the arch episcopal residence on Bay State road, the parade was reviewed by Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop William H. O'Connell, together with a number of visiting prelates from a revolving stand.

The day was begun with a solemn pontifical mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, with Archbishop O'Connell as celebrant, and Cardinal Gibbons occupying the pontifical throne within the sanctuary. Tonight in the same edifice the Te Deum service was held.

Pitts, Ga., November 1.—Much mystery surrounds the death here early today of Pines Hall, whose body was found on the Seaboard Air line tracks near the Gulf Line junction with the head completely severed and with an ugly knife wound in his side. New York.—A spirit of confidence in the present and hopefulness for the future was present in the financial district last week and found its reflection in the firm undertone of the stock market. The action of that index of the financial opinion was affected by the near approach of the national elections, owing to the fact that that event has been looked forward to as marking a definite period of recession and withdrawal of orders in all departments of industry, which would be reflected in the market.

Woman Carried Death Sentence Down Town

New York, Oct. 31.—A woman, a seamstress, is dying in the Hospital, having contracted a successful effort to save the life of a score of people, who occupied a tenement house on Forty-third street.

While Miss Parson, who was on the top floor of the building, preparing supper for a party, which she was cooking dinner for, she was overcome by the flames from the burning stove, which she had just lit, and she fell to the floor, crying out in the agony of her pain. She was carried to the hospital, where she was placed in a room, and she died there.

Don't Offer To Condemnation or Neglect and Sufferers to Cure

"The knife is not always necessary to cure eye diseases and the use of 'plaster' is a proposition where years and expense make him an authority. 'Indeed, he says further: 'I have known some very aggravated cases of bone cancer cured by a simple home remedy that restored the bowels every natural daily movements.'"

And the doctor is right, as many letters from cured people in various parts of the country prove. It suffers from the medical support, and others would try

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin they would often save themselves the terrible pain, expense and serious operation.

Piles are often due to constipation and are always aggravated by it. Excessive eating of rich and fatty food, a natural cause of constipation, is often cured by the use of this powerful laxative without pain or injury and much to restore a normal, happy condition of the bowels.

W. H. Miller, Mowenque, Ill. says: "I have been troubled all my life with piles brought on by constipation. I tried many doctors but could not be relieved. I have now no relief until I used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I have used it as a laxative and stomach remedy for nearly nine years and it has cured me of all troubles with piles."

W. H. John, Minneapolis, Kan. says: "I suffered for four years with piles which were so bad that he could not cure them. Four bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin cured him, and he says he has not been troubled since."

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a safe and reliable laxative, restoring sure natural and easy movements in the worst old chronic cases, yet so mild as pleasant to take mothers give it to the babies with untold results. It is so both for the mother and baby. For both bottles, Painin Syrup Co., 302 Calverly Bldg., Monticello, Ill., will send a free sample to anyone who has not used it and will give it a fair trial.

OLD TIME PRICES.

Glimpse of the Days When Living Was Cheap in England.

Old time hotel rates in England were low. For instance, in the days Queen Elizabeth the charge at George Inn for a feather bed and night was a penny. Dinner cost twelve (12 cents) and offered choice "beef, mutton or pig or fish." Stagnant times each room owned a small number of a number, chiefly those in the inn, such as the Cross Inn, London. The bell chamber, the Adam

Formerly the custom in Imperial cities during festival times was to let the price of food and lodging stand at the rate of the previous year's statute. In Canterbury during the celebration of the bicentenary of Becket's translation (1372) the price of herring was fixed at two loaves for a penny (2 cents), a fairly high figure considering the comparative value of money then and now, and wine brought 12 cents a gallon.

A century or so later the scale of prices in Edinburgh all the year round was equally moderate, sheep being at prices ranging from 12 cents to 15 cents, according to quality, "best beef" at 1 cent each and Rochelle wine 1 cent a pint. Any vendor departing from these prices ran the risk of forfeiture of his goods.—Chicago News.

Same old country.
Same old weather.
Same old Republican administration altogether.

Keep smiling. Keep on hoping for the best. We're no worse off than we were before.

Fare thee well, William Jennings Bryan, you made a splendid fight and deserved success.

It was a big ballot and took lots of counting. At the Clanton box 328 votes were cast, and it took the managers from 5 o'clock Tuesday evening to 7:30 Wednesday morning to do the counting.

It is the same Bryan tidal wave, a tidal wave that has swept William Howard Taft into the White House, just as it swept William McKinley thither in 1896 to 1900. Mr. Taft's majority in the electoral college will be 139 according to the New York Herald.

Gov. Hughes has been re-elected in New York by a plurality of approximately 45,000.

The House of Representatives is safely Republican. Even "Uncle" Joe Cannon, despite the efforts of Samuel Gompers, has snatched himself, like a brand from the burning, and is re-elected in the Danville, Ill., district by a plurality between 6,000 and 7,000.

The victory for the administration and Roosevelt policies is overwhelming. In a word, Mr. Taft has carried practically the entire east from Maine to Virginia and from the Atlantic to the Alleghenies. He has carried the entire middle west. His victory in Illinois is so great that one almost fails to credit the reports. Cook county, in which the city of Chicago is situated, and in which Mr. Bryan firmly believed he had started a political revolution, was carried by Taft by upwards of 40,000 plurality. In the state Taft beat Bryan almost two to one.

Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota have all gone heavily for Taft. Both the Dakotas are Republican on the national ticket. Kansas is Republican by at least 30,000. Taft has easily given the Democratic nominee a close contest in the border state of Kentucky.

The election is big with significance because it spells disaster for the supreme efforts made by Samuel Gompers to deliver the labor vote of the country to a political party. Mr. Bryan is defeated and badly defeated. Speaker Cannon is re-elected. Representative Payne is re-elected. Everywhere that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Gompers made a special effort to defeat the man he had placed on the unfair list, he came to grief. It was the first effort of organized labor to align itself with a political party, and it will probably be the last, in the opinion of seasoned politicians.

Another significant thing in the election is its probable effect on the fortune of Tammany Hall. Tammany has failed utterly to make good its promises to Mr. Bryan regarding the Democratic vote in that city.

The vote in New York City for President has caused the greatest surprise. That Bryan's lead should dwindle to nothing and Taft should finally get a small plurality in the city, causes astonishment even to the Republican managers.—Advertiser.

KIPPING A CAREER.

Young W. S. Gilbert's Brief Interview With Charles Kean.
At the early age of fifteen, according to the author of a biography of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, the future dramatist showed his theatrical bias to his own undoing.

Embraced with a splendid performance of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Princess theater, then under the management of Charles Kean, young Gilbert picked up a few clothes in a hand bag and actually succeeded in making an entrance to the theater with a view to going on the stage. Greatly elated at receiving the message that Kean would see him in his room, the boy lost courage when he was face to face with the great actor.

"So you would like to go on the stage," said Kean.

"Yes, sir," replied Master Gilbert, trembling in every limb.

"What's your name?"

"Gilbert, Gilbert!" reiterated Kean, with a sharp glance at the embarrassed boy.

"Are you the son of my old friend, William Gilbert?"

"Yes."

Kean turned to an attendant. "See this young gentleman home," said he.

THE UPPER AIR.

Danger in the Chill That Comes With the Fall of Night.

Few people who visit Denver realize that it is located only a few feet above the sea level. At such altitudes the climate is always treacherous. The midday sun may be broiling hot, but after dark the air is soon chilled and one is liable to contract a cold.

Several of the Spanish cities stand upon the crests of tall hills, where such climatic changes occur after nightfall. When, as a boy at the grand opera, I saw Spaniards in "Carmen" or "The Barber of Seville" toss their long cloaks or capes about their faces I assumed that the act was intended to disguise them—to hide their faces. Nothing of the sort. The Spaniard, like the Italian of the Alpine regions, always covers his mouth after sundown to minimize danger to his lungs from the night air.

Curiously the women haven't any fear of the chill that follows the darkness. They may be seen in low cut bodices at all hours of the evening in the cafes, at balls and on the streets. The men, however, are in terror of cold night winds. Pneumonia and tuberculosis carry off a great many victims in Spain and northern Italy.—Julius Chambers in Brooklyn Eagle.

Not a Dead One.
The hour was long past midnight, but the young girl had not yet retired. Meaning, wringing her hands, she walked the room distractedly.

"Oh, father!"

A stately, white haired figure in evening dress had entered.

"Father, speak. Has Winterbottom killed himself? I heard a commotion without at midnight—a crack as of a revolver, a fall, and a cry of pain."

I refused Winterbottom early in the evening and as he staggered from the room, despair writ large upon his pale brow, he swore wildly to take his own life."

The old man's eye gleamed as with some secret joy.

"Refused him, did you?" he chuckled. "Refused Winterbottom, eh? Well, I'm glad you did. He's just cleaned me out of $7 in a poker game at the club."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

No Chicken Himself.

Miss Sweetner—Isn't it laughable to see the youthful air Fan Billwink gives herself? She must be at least ten years older than I am, Miss Caspary—Fully. And you wouldn't tear under the wing, you know, either.—Chicago Record-Herald.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's Emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

Yale Menace For Young Taft.
In the house last recently announced at Yale university appears the name of Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the Republican presidential candidate, who received a philosophical oration for work in the first half of his junior year. Since his freshman entrance young Taft has frequently been named as an honor winner. After the June examinations it was announced that he led his class in ranking.

The Yale annals show that members of the Taft family have always ranked high at the university. Judge William Howard Taft, father of the young man, stood second in scholarship and won the salutatory oration in the Yale class of 1878; an uncle, Peter R. Taft.

ROBERT ALPHONSO TAFT.

who died some years ago, was first in scholarship in the class of 1867, winning the valedictory oration, and his grandfather, Alphonso Taft, who later was attorney general of the United States, was a high scholar in the class of 1833. Robert is Judge Taft's oldest son and is nineteen years of age. He hopes to become as famous in the legal profession as did his father and grandfather before him.

Angloized Bourke Cockran.

Congressman Bourke Cockran is of Irish extraction. It was not so long ago that he hated the English with a passion that was almost criminal. But time brings about many changes. Mr. Cockran not only does not despise the Britisher any more—he affects his manners, his accents, his dress, writes Bud Byer in the Boston Globe. One may see the orator from the Twelfth New York district any bright morning in Washington galloping over the asphalt streets astraddle of an English saddle, the mane and tail of his steed trimmed as at Bristol. His riding suits are of corduroy velvet; his boots are from the finest and most expensive shops of London. On his head is a peaked cap of gray, and his hands are gloved with mittens. Mr. Cockran rides before breakfast. Returning, he has a barber to shave him, a boy to brush his hair for the house, a secretary to call his attention to important matters of state. Leaving his home, he walks rapidly toward the capitol, stopping to look at nothing, never seeing those whose faces are familiar when observed, eyes over on the great dome that shines for all.

New Head of Williams College.

The recent installation of Harry A. Garfield as president of Williams college, Williamstown, Mass., was remarkable for the large attendance of educators, seventy-five of the best known colleges and universities being represented by their presidents. Professor Garfield was chosen about a year ago to succeed Professor Henry Hopkins, whose resignation took effect last June.

Like his father, the late James A. Garfield, and his two brothers, Professor Garfield is a graduate of the institution of which he is now the head. After leaving Williams in 1895 he spent a year at Columbia Law school and also studied at Oxford and the London Inns Courts. From 1900 until his elevation to his present position he held the chair of politics at Princeton. Professor Garfield is the eldest son of the late president of the United States and is forty-five years old.

Home For Half a Million People in the Peace River Country.

Northwest from Edmonton, in the Province of Alberta, Canada, at a distance of several hundred miles, is the great Peace river country, in which occasional settlers have been locating for many years, but which is too remote from railways for large numbers. The climate of the district is said to be influenced by its proximity to the Pacific ocean, and it is certain that in this regard it compares favorably with the balance of the Canadian Northwest.

The territory is not as yet surveyed, but the surveyors are working there now, and it is probable that a portion of it will be put on the market during the fall. Few people realize the immense amount of land drained by this river. The river itself is navigable for about a thousand miles, and is as large as the Missouri, while the territory known as the Peace river country is said to be as large as the State of Texas. Though it lies so much farther to the north its soil is as well adapted to wheat raising as that of Manitoba, and the climate is excellent. At Fort Vermilion, which is seven hundred miles north of Edmonton, there are three grist mills, and the settlers in that district raised, a year ago, thirty thousand bushels of wheat. An experimental farm, conducted by Frederick Lawrence, who has been in the country for the past thirty-seven years, has been established, and when the railways are put through it will doubtless develop into one of the most valuable and important parts of the Dominion.

RICH IN MINERAL RESOURCES.

The greatest drawback to its immediate settlement is the difficulty of getting into the country. The distance from Edmonton to Athabasca Landing, one hundred miles, has to be done by team; thence by water to the Lesser Slave lake; then another portage down to the Peace river, and thus down to Fort Vermilion.

The surrounding country is remarkably rich in minerals. Along the Peace river, in the summer, it is said that asphalt oozes out of the banks and may be obtained in almost any amount. Natural gas is found in abundance. On the shores of the Great Slave lake, there is a jet burning which became ignited years ago, and has been burning ever since the oldest Indian in the district can remember, and no one knows how much longer.

This gives some idea of the resources of this great, almost unknown region, but for some years it will be impossible to populate it thickly, owing to the difficulty of reaching it and of communicating with the outside world. When such splendid accessible land is available in this province, in Saskatchewan and Alberta, there is no necessity for going so far out of the way.

Wonder how many 24-inch pistols can be found in Alabama?

The Montgomery Advertiser takes the weekly press of the State to task for not publishing the returns of the election quicker. As a matter of fact we could not obtain the official figures before Tuesday of this week, just one week after the election.

Seven southern states were represented at the opening session Wednesday of the conference of growers, merchants and others whose interests are allied with growth and marketing of cotton, called by President Harvie Jordan of the Southern Cotton Growers' association, to discuss the present downward tendency of the spot price of the staple and the recent spread of the operations of so-called "night riders," and agree to measures as well as a remedy to present conditions.

The keynote of the conference, as brought out in the several addresses and discussion Wednesday, is that the delegates are strongly in favor of holding back the balance of the present cotton crop, marketing it gradually from month to month, thereby hoping to enhance the price. Resolutions to this effect have been submitted to the proper committee.

Mr. Jordan, in his address, urged 10 cents as the minimum price for which the present crop should be marketed and declared that by concert of action the price could be forced to this figure before the close of November. He advocated the formation of a chain of warehouses, whose receipts would be accepted as collateral for short time loans. He denounced "night riding" and urged the adoption of resolutions condemning all forms of lawlessness.

The conference will be in session for three days.

Bessemer nominates Sidney J. Bowie for governor. It is a good nomination of a good man. There is no man in the state more popular, or more fit to be governor. Fearless, free spoken, always busy, yet always finding time to respond to the calls of his friends. He is known from one end of the state to the other. Mr. Bowie would be a towering candidate in the contest, which will probably be a battle between the greatest set of candidates ever presented to the people of Alabama.

The Birmingham Ledger thinks the nomination of Mr. Bowie worthy of his serious consideration and the serious condition of the people of the state.

With Gray, Mallory, Spragins, O'Neal, Bowie and perhaps Overton there is a wide range of individual choice and not a cloud of danger to the people. The nomination is a good one.—Birmingham Ledger.

"Spoken English Very Good."

From an advertisement of a Danish hotel: "The hotel charmingly situated, surrounded of a nice garden the cuisine, the kindly accommodation with moderate charge and good surroundings, with easy access to the sea and trout fishing, the surrounding mountains has this place well-known and praised by all travelers. N. B.—The landlady speaks English very good."—Lancet and Military Gazette.

Mobson's Choice. "Here is an egg for breakfast," repeated a landlady to her lodger. "Do you prefer?"

"I prefer the preference when you offer an egg?" "Yes, you can have an egg or a hen," was the sharp reply.—London.

FARMERS' UNION.

The Chilton county Farmers' Union will meet with Pilgrims Rest Local, No. 418, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Dec. 3, 4 and 5, 1908. Pilgrims Rest is 3 miles south of Fletcher. Anyone coming by rail to Fletcher should write Bro. W. L. Chandler, Plantersville R. F. D. No. 2, so as to be met with conveyance. Let us look forward for the best meeting of our convention to date. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year. As ever for the Union cause. J. M. SMITH, County Sec.

Resolution adopted by the Chilton county Farmers' Union, in session at Clanton, Nov. 7.

Resolved, that after hearing a partial report from Bro. W. H. Conway, on the work done by his demonstrators under the supervision of the United States government that we tender our sincere thanks to the government through our friends, H. E. Savely, R. S. Wilson and W. H. Conway, and we recommend that the government give Bro. Conway's entire time to this work in Chilton county. That a copy be sent Bros. H. E. Savely and R. S. Wilson, also be published in our county papers. G. A. CONVILLE, Pres. J. M. SMITH, Sec.

Letter From F. A. Gullidge.

Verbera, Nov. 9, 1908. Editor Banner—I am in receipt, for past few days, of numerous letters from farmers of Chilton Association meeting at Memphis on 10th, 11th and 12th, inst. I have also been asked by letter to attend the Farmers' Union Convention on 11th and 12th, at New Orleans, La., and to do all I could for the farmers in trying to increase the price of their cotton. I want to say to all such, that nothing would give me greater pleasure, but I feel I have done my part along this line. Have spent hundreds of dollars attending the past conventions. At the meeting in Birmingham, January 1907, I gave in the name and honor of the farmers of Chilton county one hundred dollars; paid five dollars at another time last year; gave weeks of my time and paid my own expenses. As a return for all this work, expenses and cash outlay the farmers have given me back $9.00; and I say and think the public who read this will say I have at least done all I can afford, beside I say the farmers of Chilton county are due me as above $96, and if they never pay will always owe it.

I am with them even unto the end but I want them to be with me too. Our county President was present when I pledged it; I paid it at once as my check book and bank account will show. Had I been the president at the time I would never have rested until the dues of the county were paid. I gave notice of it as soon as paid it, but no heed was taken of it. I hope both meetings will result in great good to the cotton farmers of the south and hence general good to the whole country. We should be getting good prices since the success of the prosperity party always brings not good but big prices. Trust it may come true in the good year 1908. F. A. GULLIDGE.

When appetite fails, it restores it. When food is a burden, it lifts the burden.

When you lose flesh, it brings the plumpness of health.

When work is hard and duty is heavy, it makes life bright.

It is the thin edge of the wedge; the thick end is food. But what is the use of food when you hate it and can't digest it?

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the food that makes you forget your stomach.

EX-SENATOR, E. W. Carmack, was shot and killed at Nashville Monday afternoon by Robin Jones Cooper.

The shooting is supposed to be the result of bitterness engendered during the campaign. Former Senator Carmack made a brilliant reputation when representing Tennessee in congress and also in the Senate, and his tragic end has wrought Tennessee up to a high pitch of excitement.

The tragedy was the absorbing topic in Nashville and many sensational rumors have been in circulation.

Robin Cooper, who fired the fatal shot, and who was himself wounded, is under arrest at a local hospital. He is doing well, but his physician stated to-day that the wound, which is near the collar bone, is in a dangerous place and complications are not unlikely. Col. D. B. Cooper, who was with him when the shooting occurred, was transferred from police headquarters to the jail to-day. He has had nothing to say. Friends of Carmack are loud in their condemnation of the Coopers and the Tennessean, of which Mr. Carmack was editor, this morning, both editor, ally and its news columns, makes the unqualified charge of murder.

A DUSKY CYNIC.

He Gayly Admitted That the Joke Was on Himself.

A lady was walking along Fifth avenue a couple of weeks ago when a big negro stepped up to her politely and asked her to give him a quarter.

"I am a shipwrecked sailor," he told her. "Three days ago the ship I was on went ashore outside Sandy Hook. Ever since then I've been wandering around without being able to get a job."

The lady gave him a quarter and passed on. A week later while going by the same spot on Fifth avenue she was approached once more by the same negro.

"I am a shipwrecked sailor," he began. "Three days ago—"

She let him finish. Then she remarked:

"Two weeks ago when I gave you a quarter you told me that same story. Then you said that you had been wrecked three days before. Now you say the same thing."

And she looked at the negro severely.

He threw back his head and burst forth into roars of laughter.

"Did—did I give you dat story last week?" he chuckled. "Did you give me a quarter? Well, if dat ain't a joke on me!"

And she left him standing on the sidewalk convulsed with laughter.—New York Times.

To Wed a Real Prince.

Miss Katherine Elkins, who, rumor says, is to become the bride of the Duke of the Abruzzi, is the daughter of Stephen B. Elkins, United States senator from West Virginia. Miss Elkins made her bow to society in Washington three years ago and is one of the most popular girls of the younger set at the capital.

She is fond of outdoor sports and is a noted horsewoman, having begun this exercise as a pony at the age of five. Miss Elkins is described as tall and handsome, with a brilliant outdoor complexion and fair hair.

The Duke of the Abruzzi is the third son of the late Prince Amedeo, duke of Aosta, younger brother of King Humbert. He is therefore a cousin of King Victor of Italy. His father was for four years king of Spain. The Abruzzi is thirty-five years old, and holds the rank of rear admiral in the Italian navy. He is a man of scientific and scholarly attainments and an interesting writer. The duke has won considerable fame as an explorer.

GOOD HORSEMANSHIP.

An Old Hunter's Illustration of the Gift of "Hands."

Your heart and your head keep up.

Your hands and your knees keep down.

Your knees keep close to your horse's sides.

And your elbows to your own.

This old bit of advice for the world be horseman is quoted by a writer in Bally's Magazine and declared to be perennially sound.

He quotes another old hunter on the subject of what he calls "the divine gift of hands" in riding. This old hunter, John Darty, used to attach two pieces of twine to the back of an ordinary chair and draw the same tighter until the chair balanced on its fore or hind legs, according to his own position.

Then when balanced he would keep it, so to speak, on the swing by gently manipulating the twine or reins he held in his hand. A rough pull would,

of course, have upset the chair one way, whereas the fact of not checking it in its movements at all would have caused a total loss of control over it in the opposite direction.

"And that," when the exhibition was concluded he would add, "is hands, gentlemen."

Jogging to the covert, continues the writer, you may notice one fine horse,

the owner fully equipped, throwing its head up and down like a pump handle, another sweating profusely, although the pace has not exceeded five miles an hour since it left the stable, and a third snorting and wringing about all over the place.

Why is this so? Simply because the riders of neither of them is possessed with the divine gift of "hands."

A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT

that may happen to one is no worse than a severe attack of rheumatism.

Her Indorsement.
"Madam," said the teller of a bank in Baltimore to a woman who had handed him a check to cash—"madam, you have forgotten to indorse."

A worried smile came to the woman's face, but she took back the paper and wrote something on the back thereof.

When again the teller looked at the check he found that the woman had indorsed as follows:

"The bank has always paid me whatever it owed, and you need have no worry. Therefore I indorse this check. Very truly yours, Anna M. Blank."—Harper's.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready
to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man a feeling, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

EIGHT KILLED; TEN HURT

REPORTED OUTLAW KILLS GRISPRY
AND SEVEN OTHERS AND WOUNDED TEN.

Oakridge, Oda., Nov. 14.—Eight persons were killed and ten others were wounded yesterday in a fight between James Grisspry, a negro desperado, and others.

The disturbance began at the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad station, where Grisspry engaged in a fight with an Indian boy, Steve Johnson, and beat him into unconsciousness with a rock.

Friends of Grisspry notified the police and when Policeman Kiefer went to the station, Grisspry led to his house near by, barricaded himself in, and when Kiefer approached, Deck and shot and instantly killed him.

Sheriff Robinson gathered a posse in a few minutes and hurried to the scene. Part of this posse was made up of a group of negroes, whom the sheriff commissioned as deputies. As the posse approached the house, Deck opened fire with a rifle, firing as rapidly as he could load his weapon. The sheriff fell first, instantly killed. Then five of the negro deputies were slain.

Deckard's house was soon surrounded by a throng of men of armed men. Fire was set to a house just north of Deckard's. Volleys were poured into Deckard's house and he was shot down. He was seen to roll over on the floor strike a match and set fire to his own house, which was soon a roaring furnace, in which his body was baked. Deckard evidently had a large quantity of ammunition stored in his house, for many cartridges exploded while the house was burning.

Governor Haskell, at Guthrie, was notified of the battle and of the bad feeling between whites and negroes that had grown out of it, and threatened a race riot. The governor at once ordered the military company at Muskogee to prepare to go to Oakridge, if needed.

Dowager Empress of China Dead.
Peking, Nov. 16.—The Hai An, the dowager empress of China, the auto-critical head of the government, which she has directed without successful interference since 1911, died at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Liberals Victorious in Cuba.
Havana, Nov. 16.—Practically complete returns of the election show that the liberal victory was even more decisive than supposed. Official returns from 1,000 out of a total of 1,493 polling places, show that General Jose Miguel Genua received 153,333 votes against 118,329 for General Mario Menocal, the conservative candidate. The liberals carried every province in the island. Havana province went liberal by 25,000 and the city by 12,000.

Tennessee Weeps for Carmack.
Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—In a large number of towns and cities throughout the state services were held Sunday in memory of the late E. W. Carmack, former United States senator from Tennessee, who was killed here Monday by Robin J. Cooper. Resolutions highly eulogistic of the former senator were adopted by the various gatherings, and in several instances the manner of Carmack's taking off was severely condemned.

Henry Assassin a Suicide.
San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Maurice Haas, who Friday attempted to assassinate Francis J. Heney, Saturday committed suicide by shooting himself through the middle of the forehead with a pistol he had concealed about his person. Haas went to bed at 1 o'clock at the county jail, and covered his face with a blanket. At 3:40 o'clock a shot was heard from his cell and when the guards entered it was found that he had rolled out of bed and was lying dead on the floor with a bullet hole in his forehead.

Funeral Services Changed to a Mob.
Coldwater, Miss., Nov. 16.—One hundred young men, who had gathered to attend the funeral of their friend Ross Veazey, were suddenly converted into a mob Saturday afternoon by the news that the officers had arrested one of the negroes who had assassinated Mr. Veazey. Coming out from Arkabutla, they overpowered the officers, took their prisoner, Nick Veazey, from them, and, carrying him to the scene of the murder, hanged him to a tree.

Extra Session Congress After March 4.
Washington, Nov. 16.—That a special session of the sixty-first congress will be called soon after the 4th of March to take up the matter of tariff revision became positively known to day. William H. Taft, president-elect, stated that he intended to call the special session.

EMPEROR CHINA DEAD.

REPORTED OUTLAW KILLS GRISPRY
AND SEVEN OTHERS AND WOUNDED TEN.

Peking, Nov. 16.—The emperor of China was reported dead at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At that hour, however, no official confirmation of his death had been received.

His Majesty was transferred to the death chamber at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At that hour he was still breathing.

It is reported that the dowager empress is also dying.

This rumor would explain the two edicts issued late this afternoon regarding a regency of the empire.

The death of the emperor of China, if it is true, brings to an end the reign of a sovereign feeble in mind and body, who has been dominated all his life by the all-powerful influence of the dowager empress. Kuang Hsu's reign.

The emperor was born in 1870. His accession to the throne was one of the many arbitrary and illegal acts of the dowager empress, who adopted him into the succession from a generation the same as that of his predecessor, although the constitution of Manchu dynasty and precedent provide that the succession shall go to the next following generation.

The New Ruler.
Prince Chun is a brother of the emperor. His name is Tsai-Fung and he succeeded to the title of his father, Prince Chun, in 1911. He is a lieutenant general of the plain white banner corps and visited Germany in 1901 as a special commissioner of the throne.

District Attorney Henry Shot by Juror.
San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 14.—The San Francisco bribery graft case had a dramatic climax when Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney, who has been in charge of the prosecution during the tortuous course of two years, was shot and seriously wounded in the crowded court room by Morris Hama, an ex-convict.

The shooting occurred during a brief recess in the third trial of Abraham Ruef on a charge of bribery, now in its eleventh week.

Mr. Heney is now resting easily in the Lane hospital, and the physicians say his wound is not fatal. Hama is in the city prison.

The would-be assassin is a saloon-keeper, who was drawn upon the jury panel in the second trial of Ruef, and who, after having been temporarily passed by both sides, was exposed in a dramatic manner by Mr. Heney as an ex-convict and discharged from the jury. Hama declared after the shooting that Heney had ruined his life by the exposure and that he had determined to kill him for that reason.

Mail Clerk Gone Wrong.
Columbus, Ga., Nov. 14.—Roy F. Bagley, chief mailing clerk of the Columbus postoffice, arrested, charged with robbing the mails. Money had been frequently extracted from letters passing through the Columbus office, and Bagley was suspected. Marked bills were mailed in decoy letters by a postoffice inspector, and two special officers shadowed Bagley during the day. When arrested Bagley denied, and it is claimed that he made an attempt to destroy the money which he had on his person. The officers identified bills which were taken from Bagley as the marked money sent in the decoy letters.

Atlanta, Nov. 14.—The actual survey of the electric line from Union City to Atlanta, was started on yesterday at 1 o'clock, when W. T. Roberts, of Fairburn, drove the first stake which was the beginning of this great work that will open up and develop one of the finest sections in the vicinity of Atlanta.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 14.—The new divorce law, increasing the period of residence from six months to one year, was carried on November 3 in South Dakota by a vote of two to one, according to unofficial figures compiled yesterday.

BIG COTTON WAREHOUSE.

FARMERS' UNION PLAN TO BUILD A LARGE WAREHOUSE TO HOLD MILLION SALES OF COTTON.

New Orleans, Nov. 13.—The building of a large central warehouse at New Orleans, where the planters of half a dozen or more states can store their cotton and hold it until they choose to sell, is now practically assured.

The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union endorsed the scheme by an almost unanimous vote, and authorized their committee appointed to proceed with the plan.

The idea of the Progressive Union's committee is to make the warehouse a public one, controlled by a commission. Governor Sanders has endorsed the plan. He says that he will give all the aid desired and will call a special session of the legislature of Louisiana, if necessary, to make provision for the project.

The gist of the resolutions passed by the farmers is that the surplus supply of each crop of cotton should be kept at home, and for the account of home owners. Instead of in European warehouses for the account of foreign owners, it being clearly evident that cotton is worth more when marketed in the trade demands than when sold while there is no demand.

The committee representing the union in the warehouse matter follows: T. J. Brooks, Tennessee; G. R. Hightower, Mississippi; J. Z. Greene, North Carolina; J. W. Boyett, Jr., Louisiana; L. H. O'Martin, Georgia, and L. H. Morris, Alabama.

It was stipulated that the committee representing the Farmers' Union should have at its disposal a million bales of cotton to sell whenever it deems the market capable of absorbing that much. The matter of securing warehouse certificates for the cotton and making them negotiable at local banks was also placed in the committee's hands.

Ex-Sheriff Sharp Arrested in Carmack Case.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 13.—The situation in Nashville, growing out of the killing of former United States Senator Carmack by Robin Cooper, has grown more intense with the arrest of John D. Sharp, former sheriff of Davidson county, and more recently a representative in the legislature. The ex-sheriff was arrested by Sheriff Sam H. Borum, one of Sharp's old deputies, on a warrant sworn out by Attorney General Jeff McCann before Justice Jake Levine.

Prohibition Does Not Prohibit.
Washington, Nov. 13.—The wave of prohibition, which has spread over the country, apparently has had little influence on the consumption of alcoholic liquors and spirituous drinks, according to evidence brought out at hearing on the proposed tariff revision before the house committee on ways and means. It was apparent, too, that the liquor interests are, on the whole, well satisfied with the present tariff on spirits, wines and other beverages, as the wine growers and importers were practically the only interests represented at today's hearing.

Over 300 Miners Killed in Explosion.
Hamm, Westphalia, Germany, Nov. 13.—The greatest mine disaster in many years in Germany occurred yesterday morning in the Radbod mine, about three miles from this place. There was a heavy explosion in the mine about 4 o'clock and almost immediately the mine took fire. There were 380 miners working under the ground at the time, and only six escaped without injury. Thirty-five were taken out slightly injured, and thirty-seven were dead when brought to the mouth of the pit. The remaining 302 have been given up for lost.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Postmaster General Meyer announced that the total deficit for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, amounted to $16,910,379. The receipts were $291,400,000 (being $7,393,657 greater than the previous year), and the expenditures $308,310,379. The deficit is the largest in the history of the postoffice department.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 13.—A special from Waynesville says that David B. Vaughn, a traveling salesman for Umbarger & Co., New York, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by James Moody, son of the late Congressman Moody, of this district. The shooting is said to be the result of a political quarrel some time ago.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 13.—The introduction of evidence in the trial of Ray Lamphere, for the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children by setting fire to the house, has begun a jury having been secured late this afternoon.

Eleven Killed; Score Hurt.

PASSENGER TRAIN BOUND FOR NEW ORLEANS WRECKED.

New Orleans, Nov. 12.—Eleven persons dead and a score or more injured as a result of a wreck yesterday morning on the New Orleans and Northern central railroad, at Little Woods, twelve miles from New Orleans.

Between Slidell and New Orleans the tracks of the New Orleans and Northern central railroad are used by the Great Northern railroad and it was a passenger train of this road from Covington that crashed into the rear of a local Northern central train from Hattiesburg, Miss., telescoping the rear rear coaches.

List of Dead.

C. B. LOWERY, of Lexington, Ky., southern representative of American Crotone works of Chicago.

PROF. C. E. ROOS, of New Orleans university.

WILLIAM A. MARTIN, of Slidell, La., local merchant New Orleans.

WILLIE ATTAWAY, three-year-old son of Mrs. Alphonse Attaway, Slidell, La.

HOLMES HARRISON, Slidell, La., representing Bradstreet's agency.

O. W. TRAVIS, address unknown.

J. P. SHOWS, delegate to convention of Farmers' union from Florida.

C. A. CRAWFORD, Seminary, Miss.

AUGUST HEITKANEP, merchant, Slidell, La.

Two unidentified men.

The injured:

Jake Salomon, of the Salmen Brick and Lumber company, probably fatally.

Peter McCarthy, fireman of N. O. and M. E.

G. B. Harris, of McGee, Miss.

D. B. Calhoun, of Polson, La.

Mrs. Alphonse Attaway, of Slidell, La., cut and bruised.

Miss Florence Lyde, of Lumberton, Miss.

Mrs. Robert Hinton, Sr., of Lumberton, Miss.

Mrs. Robert Hinton, Jr.

J. A. Quirk, of Hattiesburg, Miss., badly bruised.

Mary, five-months-old daughter of Mrs. Attaway.

Although but twelve miles from New Orleans, Little Woods, on Lake Pontchartrain, is so surrounded by swamps that the only approach to the scene of the wreck is by way of railroad.

It was some time before the news of the catastrophe reached the city, but as soon as it was learned here a relief train was hastily made up and rushed to the aid of the passengers and their dead and dying.

When the rescue party reached Little Woods the scene that met their eyes was one of terror, desolation, death. The wreck had caught fire and the first efforts of the passengers and the few fishermen and hunters lounging around the Lake Pontchartrain camp were directed toward subduing the flames.

Just who is responsible for the wreck has not been ascertained.

A dense fog covered Lake Pontchartrain and its surroundings and obscured the view of everything a few yards away.

Henry Waterson's Son Killed.

New York, Nov. 12.—Harvey W. Waterson, a lawyer, and younger son of Henry Waterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, plunged to his death from the nineteenth floor of his office building at 25 Wall street yesterday. His body shot downward about one hundred and ten feet and landed on the roof of a ten-story building adjoining. Almost every bone was broken, and the head crushed, and death was instantaneous.

While there were no eyewitnesses to the tragedy, evidently it was entirely accidental.

Funeral of Edward Ward Carmack.
Columbia, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Business was entirely suspended and the people of this city and county, together with large delegations from many other Tennessee counties, turned out in force yesterday to do honor to the memory of the late Senator Edward Ward Carmack. Public buildings were draped in crepe out of respect for the memory to the man who met such a violent death on the streets of Nashville Monday afternoon, and a deep gloom pervades this entire community.

Southern Doctors Meet.

MEETING OF THE SOUTHERN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AT ATLANTA.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—Twenty members were gathered members of the medical fraternity from the southern states, in attendance upon the annual meeting of their Southern Medical association.

Registration books at the entrance of the ball room in the New Kimball hotel were used to record the names of the attending physicians. The first general session of the association was held there, commencing at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Other general sessions are to follow, with intervals of sectional sessions in the afternoon and evenings. The general body, for greater convenience and facility of work, is split up into three sections—surgery, medicine, and ophthalmology. The first division will hold its separate meetings in the Piedmont hotel and the two others will convene in the New Kimball. The whole convention will continue during Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Secretaries V. M. C. A. Meet.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—Thursday and Friday of this week there will be an important meeting of the secretaries of the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association on the Southern railway system. H. O. Williams, of New York, railroad secretary of the international committee, will be here to participate, and also State Secretary J. V. Read, of Georgia. The secretaries of the following associations will be in attendance: G. B. Lowrey, Monroe, Va.; B. F. Stevenson, Spencer, N. C.; A. C. Van Campen, Knoxville, Tenn.; E. O. Karnes, Oakdale, Tenn.; J. D. Meadows, Meridian, Miss.; and W. C. Matthews, Selma, Ala. W. A. Waggoner, general secretary of the local railroad department, and Assistant Secretary E. E. Cavalieri, with J. P. Jackson, of the Atlanta city association, will constitute the home representatives.

Another Victim of Open Grate.

Payetteville, Ga., Nov. 11.—Little Mary Frances Lester, the 3-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Lester, who was seriously burned Monday morning at 8 o'clock, while playing before the fire, died Tuesday morning at 3 o'clock.

The child, with her two little sisters, was playing in the room, and Mary held a piece of stove wood, which was splintered at one end. She probably held it over the fender, where it ignited and fell back against the fender, where the child was standing. The flames caught the child's dress.

Suicide of Widow Rush.

Talbotton, Ga., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Mattie Rush, widow of Dr. Frank Rush, of Columbus, and daughter of J. Kellum, a prominent farmer of Jackson county, committed suicide yesterday morning at 5 o'clock at the boarding house of Mrs. M. Callier by shooting herself through the head with a pistol.

She left two children, a boy of 7 years and a girl of 4, that she requested be sent to an orphan's home.

Better Times Expected.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—As an indication of increased prosperity and the return of good times throughout the south, J. S. B. Thompson, assistant to the president of the Southern railroad, announces the work of completing the double track on the Southern between Dumit, 3 miles south of Lynchburg, and Sycamore, 30 miles nearer Atlanta, is being pushed to completion; that over 300 men, who were laid off during the panic, have been returned to work at the various shops, and that while freight traffic is still below that of a year ago it is on the increase again and better times are looked for by the roads as well as the country-at-large.

Bryan's Defeat too Much for Him.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 11.—H. L. Smith, joint station agent for the Norfolk and Southern and Raleigh and Southport railroads, of Varnes, twenty miles from Raleigh, committed suicide yesterday morning by discharging both barrels of a double-barrel shotgun into his head. He had a string attached to the trigger to shoot.

He left a note that he was perfectly sane, and contemplated suicide for some time but could not bring himself to the point until now.

It is reported that he was despondent over Bryan's defeat. He was 22 years old. He had been at the station eight months.

C. U. D. Convention Meet.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—The fifteenth annual meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy convened yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the Cable Piano concert hall, 82 and 84 North Broad street. The general convention was presided over by Mrs. Coraella Branch Stone, of Texas, who arrived in the city Monday evening and presided over a meeting of the executive board Sunday night at the Piedmont hotel, the headquarters of the convention.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

SHIPS CRASH N. Y. BAY.

200 PERSONS FACE DEATH BUT PROMPT ACTION OF CAPTAIN PREVENTED LOSS OF LIFE.

New York, Nov. 21.—The lives of more than 200 persons were imperiled yesterday when the fruit steamer Mount Desert, crashed into the Admiral Dewey, a battleship, off the coast of New York. The Admiral Dewey, coming from Bay Ridge for the fishing harbor, the Mount Desert, coming from the coast of Maine, was on a collision course with the battleship. The Mount Desert was on a collision course with the battleship. The Mount Desert was on a collision course with the battleship.

There were 450 passengers, including twenty women and six children, on the Mount Desert, and the Admiral Dewey carried fifty-five passengers. In addition, the crews of the two steamers.

Panic immediately followed, and it was due to the prompt action of Captain Davidson, of the Admiral Dewey, that a catastrophe was averted for the passengers on the fruit steamer. The Admiral Dewey was on a collision course with the battleship. The Admiral Dewey was on a collision course with the battleship.

It was believed the Mount Desert would sink, and the passengers fought frantically to get to the deck of the Admiral Dewey. A number of persons were slightly injured in the stampede. Men and women crowded over the guard rails onto the Admiral Dewey so rapidly that they trampled upon each other.

In the space of fifteen minutes, fully 350 passengers of the Mount Desert sprang to the deck of the Admiral Dewey.

Nearly all the passengers of the Mount Desert had been transferred and the panic had subsided, so Captain Davidson signaled to have the engine stopped, and a few minutes later the boats drifted apart.

Later the Mount Desert steamed to South Brooklyn, where she docked to permit the rest of her passengers to go ashore. Meantime the Admiral Dewey had been taken up the river to her pier, where her own and the passengers from the Mount Desert were landed.

Noted Chinese Visitors Arrive.
San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 21.—Coming to the attention of the government for the purpose of a visit to the United States, the Chinese people for the purpose of a visit to the United States.

Three in the history of the oldest nation has there arisen occasion for the appointment of such a commission, and never has a foreign power been so strongly represented through diplomatic channels during the period of a crisis of world-wide importance.

In his honor the dragon flag flew from the masts of a score of vessels in the bay, guns mounted on the harbor front boomed out a salute and thousands of his countrymen, all robes of silk hatted, thronged the dock where his escort landed.

Mrs. Belle Guinness Said to be Alive.
LaPorte, Ind., Nov. 21.—Attorney Worden, who is defending Roy Lamphear, now on trial for the murder of Mrs. Belle Guinness and her children, made public yesterday a letter which he declares was received today by special delivery by his law partner, Mayor Leonard Darrow.

The writer, whose full name and address is withheld by Mr. Worden, says that Mrs. Guinness is alive, and that he was the man who accompanied her to the Guinness farm on July 9, the date on which D. M. Hutson and his daughters say they saw Mrs. Guinness and a man drive away in a buggy.

Mr. Worden said that he had been trying all day to reach the writer by telephone in order to have him come to LaPorte Monday to testify, but so far he had failed to find him.

From present indications the case will go to the jury by Wednesday.

TWENTY MEN KILLED.

GAS EXPLOSION IN EXCAVATION FOR SEWER IN BROOKLYN KILLED 20 AND WRECKED 50 HOUSES.

New York, Nov. 21.—More than twenty persons are believed to have lost their lives as the result of the explosion of a gas main at Gold and Front streets, Brooklyn, yesterday.

Practically the whole street from the stop line between Gold and Front streets was tumbled into a fifty-foot excavation in which fifteen or more men were working and several persons who were walking along the street are believed to have been carried down.

It is believed that every person who went into the excavation was killed instantly or smothered or drowned.

Fifty tenement houses on the block are in such danger of falling into the trench that the occupants have been ordered out by the police.

The workers were digging a trench through Gold street for the installation of a thirty-six-inch sewer pipe. The excavation was to be nearly forty feet deep and as the laborers removed the earth the walls had been shored up by large timbers.

With Charles Schlimmer, a city inspector of sewers, overseeing the work this forenoon, the men were working at the bottom of the trench when an accumulation of gas from a main which had been accidentally broken during the course of the work, exploded with tremendous force.

Gompers Labor Leader Handsomely Remembered.

Denver, Col., Nov. 21.—There has at so time since the opening of the convention of the American Federation of Labor been any doubt that President Gompers was not in complete control, but it was thought possible that a part of his report might be materially amended or his political course condemned. The report was before the convention for a day and a half, and although for a while there was a vigorous discussion of some of its contents, the report was adopted yesterday afternoon and Mr. Gompers thereby fully endorsed.

At this point Delegate T. L. Lewis, of the miners, interrupted the proceedings and in an eloquent speech presented on behalf of the convention, to President Gompers, a handsome silver loving cup and to Mrs. Gompers a handsome diamond ring. Mr. Gompers was overcome by the good will of the delegates, coming as it did at the end of a hard fight, and could scarcely control his feelings as he thanked the convention.

Shot From Auto into River.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Two persons were drowned and six others rescued from the water yesterday when an automobile in which they had been speeding toward Chicago, swerved from its course at the approach to the Torrence avenue bridge over the Calumet river. The occupants of the machine were four chauffeurs and four young women, all living at 2106 Armour avenue. The car plunged over an embankment and struck a platform 15 feet from the shore, the occupants being shot as from a catapult into the water. The bridge tender and three companions plunged into the water and rescued three girls and helped three of the men to reach shore. Joseph Meyer and Margaret Atkins, however, were drowned.

St. Louis to Georgia in Balloon.

Clayton, Ga., Nov. 20.—After sailing through the air 500 miles, the greater portion of the voyage being made at night, the balloon Yankee descended in this (Rabun) county early yesterday morning.

The Yankee came to the earth about 10 miles southwest of Clayton on the farm of Hyle Baker. The balloon left St. Louis at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and descended 8 o'clock this morning. The trip of 500 miles was made in about 15 hours.

The Yankee was piloted by Albert Bond Lambert, who is a St. Louis millionaire and an alderman in that city. Mr. Lambert was assisted in managing the Yankee by E. W. Honeywell, also of St. Louis.

Lambert started for New York, but the winds blew strongly to the south, and the Yankee drifted in this direction. About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the aeronauts descended at Lloyd, Ind., and took supper. Then re-ascended, and were in the air during the night.

The Yankee was burning in Kentucky and Tennessee, the Yankee was kept at a great altitude to avoid the suffocating smoke.

Many persons saw the balloon as it sailed in the early hours, and it created a great sensation. Some negroes were thrown into a panic, thinking it was a supernatural visitor.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Major Tom L. Johnson, who, for years, has been credited with the possession of a very large fortune, yesterday announced that he had lost everything, and would be forced to give up his beautiful home on Euclid avenue and move into smaller and less expensive quarters. The mayor also stated that he would give up his automobiles and other luxuries, because he could no longer afford to keep them.

His fortune was wrecked, the mayor declared, by his devotion to the affairs of the estate of his dead brother, Albert, who was heavily interested in traction properties in the east.

Taft Wants Tariff Revised.

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 20.—That President-elect W. H. ROCKEFELLER AS WITNESS.

IN STANDARD OIL CASE JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER APPEARS AS WITNESS.

New York, Nov. 18.—John D. Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company, made his appearance as a witness for the defense in the federal suit to dissolve the so-called oil trust yesterday. Former Judge Franklin Parris, master of the proceedings, had ordered that no spectators be permitted to enter the chamber and policemen posted at the door turned back an insistent throng that besieged the room where the testimony was being taken.

John D. Rockefeller left the office of the Standard Oil company shortly before 9 o'clock and went to the custom house, where he was to appear as a witness for the company in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil company.

Relating his story with the story of a country gentleman of kindly mien, engaging a host of friends with incidents of days long past, Mr. Rockefeller told of his start in the oil business, and how, under adverse conditions, that business grew to the proportions of the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Rockefeller's eyes sparkled in reflection on that early financial organization, and speaking of the million-dollar capitalization with almost boyish enthusiasm, he said:

"I seemed very large to us, who began with only $4,000 in 1862."

Thus the proceedings lost, in a sense, their official aspect, because of the engaging manner which Mr. Rockefeller displayed in his answers, which now and then contained flashes of kindly humor.

The new concern will be called the Independent Fertilizer Company, and will be controlled by interests identified with the Tennessee Copper Company. The chief subsidiary of the new corporation will be the $10,000,000 chemical company recently organized to handle the sulphuric acid output of the Tennessee Copper Company.

T. C. Meadows, vice president and treasurer of the Buffalo Fertilizer Company, arranged details. Lewis Soltz Brothers, New York bankers, have charge of the financial end of the deal.

Also four cottages close to the hotel. The owners, Messrs. J. A. Shattuck and J. A. Shattuck, stated that a deal had just been consummated for the sale of the inn property for a consideration of $125,000, and that for the fire would have been closed yesterday. There was but $25,000 insurance on the hotel and its furnishings.

Aside from the hotel, four cottages and their contents were destroyed, on a loss estimated at $14,000.

The lookout tower, which was badly damaged and the trail on the face of the bluff was ablaze for a considerable time.

W. J. Bryan and Wife in Texas.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Bryan were in San Antonio yesterday on route to Mexico. They were accompanied by a heavy welcome.

Regarding the future of the democratic party, he said:

"I am not at all discouraged as to the future of the democratic party. There must be a democratic party in every country, and I want our party to be democratic, and I believe no doubt that the country will see the necessity for the adoption of reforms advocated by the democratic party. It is already a great educational force, and I have no doubt that conditions will so vindicate the party as to make the voters turn to it as the best instrument for the accomplishment of the necessary reforms."

"Will you allow yourself to be elected a United States senator from Nebraska?" he was asked.

"They do not elect a senator this year," he said, with a smile.

"My friends do not require me to prejudice the future, and I shall not take the advice of my opponents on this subject. I shall continue to write and speak in defense of the things which I believe to be good for the American people. I hope that it may never become necessary to run for an office again, but I will not attempt to decide that question until the time comes to act. I do not see any necessity to say more on the subject."

WAYS FOR THE CHILDREN

Two Good Tricks. Take a quarter of a dollar between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, then by a rapid twist of the fingers twist the coin by the same motion that you would use to spin a top, at the same time rapidly close your hand, and the coin will disappear up your coat sleeve. You can now open your hand, and, much to the astonishment of your audience, the coin will not be there.

The Impossible Cat. Let's have another game. Here is one that is both amusing and instructive. Two captains are chosen, who choose their sides, and then all take seats, facing each other. It is determined by lot which side shall begin the game, and the captain who wins says, "Our cat is ambiguous." The captain on the other side must then, before the first captain counts ten, say, "Our cat is agile," or if not "agile" he must use some other adjective beginning with "a." No one is allowed to use an adjective that has already been used in the game, and if he fails to name one before the opposite player counts ten he is "out." The captain who starts the game may make a change in the letter with which the adjectives have to begin by giving notice. It is customary to use the letters of the alphabet in regular order, but this is subject to variation. It is a fixed rule, however, that every adjective used after the captain starts must begin with the letter he used until a change has been made by him.

Games of Savages. Most people are well aware that the popular Canadian game of lacrosse originated, goodness knows how many centuries ago, among the North American Indians.

Spilling Salt. Boys and girls have all heard perhaps that it is unlucky to spill salt, but that the evil effects may probably be averted by throwing some of it over your right shoulder. It is wonderful how old some of these superstitions are. This one about the salt, for example, came to us from the ancient Romans. Salt was regarded by them as an emblem of purification, and they always placed some on the head of a victim in sacrifice. If the salt were spilled in doing this it was looked on as a bad omen. It is said that the Romans got the custom from the Jews, and after while the spilling of salt on any occasion was regarded as unlucky.

Conundrums. If you should see a dude riding on a donkey what fruit would you think of? A pair (pearl). What word of six letters contains six words besides itself without transposing a letter? Herein—be, her, here, ere, rein, in.

With Paper and Pencil. Try to draw the head of some well known person the next time you have a few friends at your house. Provide each one with pencil and paper and tell him to do likewise. After the drawings are finished collect them, mix them up and distribute them, and let the ones receiving these works of art guess for whom the picture was intended. This is a good game and will be liked by your friends. To vary the game you can draw some, or several scenes or as illustration of some poem.

Keep Your Bowels Open

A Safe Certain Home Remedy that is Sold By All Druggists

A fact any doctor will verify is that constipated people suffer most from disease. Regular bowel action is absolutely necessary to health. People who are constipated either part or all of the time must use something to make their bowels move.

Children and delicate women should never be given strong physic for it not only weakens the bowels but the entire system. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin serves as a tonic and as a laxative as well as a laxative that is certain in its effect upon the most obstinate old cases and yet safe and pleasant for a baby.

A CURIOUS WORD.

Twists That May Be Given to "Be" in the Chinese Language.

In the Chinese language the same word may be given several different meanings by the modulation of the voice. The same thing may happen to the English "Yes," which may be pronounced so as to mean "I assent to that," or "I am doubtful," or "Indeed?"

An eminent authority on philology gives an amusing illustration of these modulations in the Annamitic language, a monosyllabic tongue spoken by the people of Tonquin and Cochinchina.

In this language the syllable "ba" pronounced with a grave accent means a lady, an ancestor. Pronounced with the sharp accent, it means the favorite of a prince. Pronounced with the semi-grave accent, it means what has been thrown away. Pronounced with the grave circumflex, it means what has been left of a fruit after the juice has been squeezed out. Pronounced with no accent, it means three. Pronounced with the ascending or interrogation accent, it means a box on the ears.

Thus the word "ba," in the order given above, is said to mean, if properly pronounced, "Three ladies gave a box on the ear to the favorite of the prince." Chicago Record-Herald.

CIRCUIT COURT.
The fall term of Circuit Court convened at Clanton on Monday about ten o'clock. Judge W. W. Pearson presiding, who expeditiously set the machinery of justice in motion.
His charge to the Grand Jury was clear and impressive, the various points of law were explained in a clear manner, much to the edification of the jury and the audience.
P. C. Dennis was sworn in as foreman and W. F. Cloughton as bailiff and the jury retired to their room. They are still in session this Wednesday evening.

A FAMOUS CARPET.
The First One That Was Used in Old New York City.
"I haven't learned everything about my business yet," said the young carpet salesman, "but I've picked up some information that's interesting even if it isn't new."
"For instance, not everybody knows that it isn't so very long ago—only about 200 years—that nobody had a carpet in New York city. They didn't use rushes strewn around for floor covering, as they used to do in England, partly, I suppose, because rushes, whatever they are, were not plentiful and partly because they preferred sand. Certainly sand sprinkled on a bare floor seems cleaner and better than rushes, and it has some advantages over a regular carpet. Anyhow, that was what they used in the houses of the aristocracy."

"But carpets came in fashion in New York at the very end of the seventeenth century, and the man who introduced the fashion was Captain Kidd. He wasn't a pirate then. He was captain of the Antigua, a packet ship, plying between here and London, and was a citizen, and a householder in this city. In 1692 he married Sarah Fort, the widow of another ship captain, and set up housekeeping in Hanover square, then an aristocratic quarter."

"In that house on the floor of the 'best room,' as they called it in those days, was the first carpet known to have been used in New York. It was valued at $25, which doesn't seem extravagant even as money was then valued. That may not be an important fact, but it's interesting."—New York Times.

On Vacations.
It is related in Stewart Edward White's book, "The Mountains," that once upon a time a man happened to be staying in a hotel room which had originally been part of a suit, but which was then cut off from the other by only a thin door, through which sounds carried clearly.
It was about 11 o'clock when the occupants of that next room came home. The man heard the door open and close. Then the bed shrieked aloud as somebody fell heavily upon it. There breathed across the silence a profoundly deep sigh.
"Mary," said a man's voice, "I'm mighty sorry I didn't join that Association For Artificial Vacations. They undertake to get you just as tired and just as mad in two days as you could get yourself in two weeks."—Youth's Companion.

Stevenson and the Beggar.
While walking in London one afternoon Robert Louis Stevenson and Edmund Gosse met a stalwart beggar whom Gosse refused to aid. Stevenson, however, wavered and finally handed him a sixpence. The man pocketed the coin, forbore to thank the benefactor, but fixing his eyes on Gosse, said in a loud voice, "And what is the other little gentleman going to give me?" "In future," said Stevenson as they strode coldly on, "I shall be 'the other little gentleman.'"

MADE A BIG HIT.

A Speech That Hanlan, the Oremans, Delivered in England.
Edward Hanlan, once champion orator of the world, related a good story of how he delivered a speech after winning his second race in England. His first victory had found him unprepared. He was ready for him by a newspaper friend neatly copied out on paper and stored away for use in his coat pocket.
When the crowd outside the clubhouse insisted upon seeing and hearing the winner he was helped out upon a window ledge by his friends and held there by the coat tails and the legs. The crowd cheered him wildly. He was too confused to speak. They cheered him again. He threw out his hand in a gesture of helplessness and moved his lips in some inaudible mumbling of apology for his inability to deliver a speech. They could not hear on account of the noise that they were themselves making, but they encouraged him with generous applause. He saw his escape and proceeded to shake his head and work his lips in a fine frenzy of oratory, gesticulating eloquently and smiling his thanks. The noisy and good natured crowd cheered him to the echo, and his friends drew him in from his precarious position on the window ledge.
"You carried that crowd along in style," they congratulated him. "What did you say? We couldn't hear you."
"Yes. Give us an idea of your speech," the reporters put in, drawing out their notebooks.
Hanlan took the manuscript from his pocket. "Here's the whole thing," he said. "Do you want it all?"
"Well, rather," they answered. "That speech made a hit!"

AN ANCIENT YOKEL.

Not Quite Sure of His Age, but Knew It Was Something Fearful.
During a Saturday stroll in the country a pedestrian came upon an ancient rustic engaged in breaking stones. Drawing him into conversation, the pedestrian eventually asked the old fellow how old he was.
"Oh, I dunno," was the reply, "but I know I be a fearful age!"
"But you must have some general idea how old you are."
"No, I dunno, but I know I be a fearful age," was the only estimate that could be drawn from him.
"All right; we'll try to get at it in another way," said the pedestrian, bringing out his pencil and notebook.
"Now, how old were you when you left school?"
"I be nine, sur, when I finished school!"
"And what did you do then?"
"Well, I was boy fur Farmer Giles fur fifteen year."
"And after that?"
"After that I worked fur Squire Nonkes fur seven and thirty year."
"And what next?"
"Well, I was wagoner fur Crunker the carrier, fur four and forty year."
And so on, and so forth, until the final fact was elicited that he had been engaged on breaking stones for a quarter of a century. Then the inquirer observed, with withering sarcasm:
"So you do not know how old you are? Well, I'll tell you. You're 379 years old on your own showing."
"I desay," murmured the ancient yokel, with undisturbed serenity, "I know I be a fearful age."—Liverpool Mercury.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Downfall of a Financier.
The recent contracting of Charles W. Morse to fifteen years imprisonment in the federal prison at Atlanta by Judge Mough of the United States circuit court at New York marks the end of a remarkable career in finance. Morse was convicted of violation of the national bank laws by misapplication of its funds and permitting false entries to be made in the books of the National Bank of North America.
In his prosperous days Morse was known as the "ice king" and as the "admiral of the Atlantic coast." These titles are explanatory of the two enterprises in which for a time he dabbled.

Wall Street by finance which was daring even in that home of speculation. He was one of the prime movers in the formation of the American Ice Securities company and conceived the idea of a great steamship trust, the Consolidated Steamship Lines. He was also in control of nine banks and trust companies in New York, three in Maine and two in New Hampshire.
In 1906 he was in control of corporations with an aggregate capital of $300,000,000 and with a private fortune reputed to be $22,000,000. The panic of last year caught him hopelessly overloaded. He was compelled to resign from all his banks and trust companies. His steamship lines reverted to their old owners and in some cases passed into the hands of receivers. His indictment soon followed, then his trial and conviction.
Charles W. Morse is a native of Maine and is in his fifty-third year.

A Rockefeller Story.
John D. Rockefeller is not ordinarily credited with a sense of humor, but here is a story of his own telling:
"Two Irishmen met on the street, and, one having failed to borrow a quarter of the other, the following dialogue occurred:
"Do you know, Pat, that the Rockefeller chap is the richest man in the world?"
"No. You don't say so?"
"It's the truth, me blay, and every time that clock ticks off a minute Rockefeller is $1,000 richer."
"Be jabbers, git me an ax and I'll smash the clock!"—Buffalo News.

General Wood of the Army.
Major General Leonard Wood, U. S. A., who recently assumed command of the department of the east, with headquarters at Governors Island, New York, entered the service as a surgeon in 1880. With the exception of a few weeks in the United States in the summer of 1905, General Wood has been on almost continuous duty in the Philippines since 1902, and the department of the east command, the most important in the gift of the war.

department with the exception of that of chief of the general staff, in the first big assignment he has had in the United States proper since he became a general officer.
General Wood first attracted public attention when he became colonel of the rough riders during the Spanish war. From that time his advancement in the service was rapid. He was military governor of Cuba from 1900 to 1902, when he went to the Philippines as governor of Moro province. In 1906 he was appointed commander of the Philippine division. General Wood is a native of New Hampshire and reached his present grade in the service in 1905.

MEAT IN ITALY.

The Way the Slaughter Houses Are Operated by Law.

Slaughter houses in Italy are public institutions. The law prescribes that every town of more than 6,000 inhabitants shall build and maintain a municipal slaughter house, where all butchers are compelled to bring their live stock to be killed. The slaughtering itself is done by the individual butchers and their assistants. The conveyance of the cattle, the removal of the carcasses and the dressing of the meat are likewise the affair of the butchers. The city provides the building, keeps it clean and furnishes veterinary inspectors to examine and pass upon the carcasses.

The Milan slaughter house is situated within the city and occupies several acres of ground. It consists of a number of long, single story buildings made of cement and stucco. The buildings consist of either a single large hall or else a row of small box stalls about twenty-five feet wide and either fifteen or thirty feet deep. Each stall has a wide double door in front and a window behind. The buildings are arranged in parallel pairs, each pair being connected by a covered passage thirty feet wide, whose roof is raised many feet above that of the buildings, being supported by pillars rising from the roofs on either side. The air thus circulates under the roofs of the passages or corridors and over the buildings.

In a Hurry.

Thwarting The Freeze

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1935, by American Press Association.

"O H, mother, they're gone, every one of 'em," and Nelly Blair rushed into the kitchen, where her mother was preparing a deliciously fragrant soup, and threw herself into a chair by the one window.

Mrs. Blair took a spoonful of soup from the pot and tasted it critically, then added more salt and pepper. "What's gone, Nelly?" she asked at last as she lifted the pot and set it on the back part of the stove, where it could simmer on leisurely to the perfection for which her soups were always noted.

"My melons, an' I know it was them Carr boys that took 'em. They killed my chickens an' shot my pigeons, an' now they've stole my melons. Oh, dear! I just hate 'em. I don't see how boys can be so mean."

Two red spots burned in her cheeks, and her eyes shone angrily. Mrs. Blair glanced in her work.

"I don't like that word 'hate,' Nelly," she said gently. "It's an awful word, especially when one comes to think about it."

"But, mother, I've been watchin' them melons every day an' thinkin' how much they'd bring an' how good some of 'em would taste if we could afford to eat 'em. An'—there's the chickens and pigeons. Folks can't help buttin' such things."

"I know, Nelly, I know. But there's other things to think about. Them Carr boys never had no bringin' up; their pa's in prison an' they've been allowed to run wild, with no schoolin' nor nothin'. Mrs. Carr's a nice woman, but she's an invalid an' can't get out an' foller 'em up like she would if she was strong. But they're awful good boys to her, Nelly. They look after her wants just like they were girls."

"Huh!" Nelly turned abruptly to the window and gazed out across the white, sandy fields to the Carr cabin, half a mile away. The melons were too fresh in her mind for her to be so easily placated.

"There's good in most folks if it can only be brought out," Mrs. Blair resumed persuasively. "The boys ain't all bad, an' I'm awful sorry for poor Mrs. Carr." She hesitated a moment, then added: "I made this soup for her an' was designin' for you to carry it over, Nelly, but I reckon I can walk that far. You can sort o' look after the fire now an' ag'in."

"Oh, I'll take the soup," said Nelly breezily. "I ain't nothin' ag'in Mrs. Carr."

But as she passed through the small track patch and across the palmetto and wire grass dotted fields the frown still remained on her face. She had planned to do so much with the melons—to buy a new dress for her mother and curtains for the kitchen windows and perhaps a pair of shoes for herself. She was only thirteen, but already the necessities of life had brought to her something of the experience of mature years. She and her mother planted an acre or two of the track and raised a few chickens and gathered and sold huckleberries in their season. But the nearest market was three miles away, and, do the

THEY COULD, THEIR UNLIT EARNINGS

they could, their unlit earnings was a small part of the necessities. If it had not been for the Carr boys they would have been forced to sell the palmetto and wire grass. A regular grower would have made a good thing of it. It consisted of only four or five stalks, but they were always an object of admiration. Many people had planted the palmetto and wire grass, and they would ever prove the mainstay of some of the descendants. The Carr boys all had, very tall and very thin, and very thin, very thin.

years each of them bore as many as twelve or fifteen stalks of choice fruit. As Nelly approached the Carr cabin she noticed several boys shrinking behind a disheveled shed. Her face brightened, and she turned indignantly toward them.

But a short talk with the placid, even-tempered invalid cooled her down somewhat; only when she left the cabin she started on a run toward home. She was afraid that if she looked around she would see the boys and say something angry.

Mrs. Blair had been in the habit of occasionally employing the Carr boys to help in the track patch, but Nelly was now so violently opposed to this that after a few ineffectual protests the mother yielded. Now and then Nelly carried soup or some other delicacy across the fields to the invalid, but she was careful to make those visits at times when she thought the boys were away. And on their part the boys seemed equally glad to avoid her.

As summer lengthened into fall and the clear, crisp days of October and November appeared the oranges grew larger and larger and finally began to turn yellow. Nelly watched them so anxiously and tried to count the number of oranges on one limb and from this small basis to estimate the number of boxes on each tree.

"Do you s'pose there'll be fifteen boxes apiece, mamma?" she asked one day after she had made a long calculation on a piece of brown paper. "I wouldn't be surprised, honey."

"That would be sixty boxes," said Nelly after a few seconds' work with her pencil. "Well, call it fifty. Fifty boxes at $2 a box makes $100. An' you know, mamma," triumphantly, "we reckoned up that $60 more would keep us through the year. Now, mamma, impressively, 'if we make $40 extra can't you have the new dress and curtains an' me some new shoes?'"

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Blair gayly, "an' you shall have a new wool dress, too, Nelly, an' select it all by yourself."

At length the oranges were ready to pick, but Mrs. Blair hesitated. There were rumors that the markets had been glutted by unwise shipments of fruit and that some forwarders would hardly make expenses. So she waited and listened eagerly to such meager market reports as came to her from the neighbors.

One afternoon Nelly went to the village with some eggs. When she returned there was suppressed excitement in her face.

"I heard 'em talkin' in the store 'bout a cold wave comin'," she said excitedly. "Mr. Tibbs said he 'lowed there'd be a good many oranges froze tonight. An' it's gittin' awful cold, mamma. My hands fairly ached."

Mrs. Blair was cooking and had not noticed. She now went outside. Yes, it was certainly growing cold. The wind actually stung her face as she stepped past the corner of the house.

An hour later it was still colder, and by the time the sun sank behind the pines she was as anxious as Nelly.

Neither of them thought of supper. They had occasionally saved tender vegetables from frost by a smudge fire so placed that the smoke would float across the endangered plants. Mrs. Blair was not very sanguine about its saving an orange grove in case the cold became excessive, but there seemed nothing else they could do. So piles of brushwood were made along the west side of the trees and covered with green boughs and anything that could prevent the fire from burning into flames. For the most part they worked hurriedly and silently, Nelly bringing the material and her mother arranging it on the piles.

But when the fire was kindled the smoke refused to meet their desire. It rose thick and black, but drifted this way and that under the branches and over the branches and off to one side, but never covering the trees with the dense canopy they were longing for. And this failure only made them work the more desperately. It was getting colder and colder, and they realized with growing dread what the loss of the oranges would be to them.

Nelly was gathering up an armful of grass and weeds, reckless of the sand spurs which clung to her fingers, when she heard approaching footsteps. Looking up, she saw Bill Carr and his four brothers.

"Hello, Nelly," said Bill, rather sheepishly. "Hello."

"Been you s'posin' an' thought we'd come over an' sort o' help. Mighty cold, ain't it?"

"Yes." Then, after an embarrassed silence: "Well, why don't you go to work? Plenty of it here."

"Shut! No use workin' that way," contemptuously. "Smoke don't scarcely tech the trees. 'Sides, smoke ain't goin' ter scare this freeze. No, s'pose! Bill's too big. Say, Nelly, we was plumb sorry 'bout them melons an' things. You an' your maw have been right good ter we uns. Maw and we uns have horse sense ter know hit. We'll be mighty glad to help."

"Well, why don't you then?" desperately. "Every minute's needed now."

"Not in makin' fires. That's fool work, s'pose. Nelly, why don't you uns pick them melons?"

Nelly, who was said, almost breathlessly: "That ain't time." But she was too shy to say a word more.

"We uns kin work," she said, almost breathlessly: "That ain't time." But she was too shy to say a word more.

"We uns kin work," she said, almost breathlessly: "That ain't time." But she was too shy to say a word more.

pile. An' now, feller,umble later the house eras bags an' lighters. Remember, this is a set off for them melons. Now cut!"

The next few hours were active ones in the Blair grove. Signs and lanterns containing from a peck to half a bushel of oranges were being constantly let down from the trees, and Mrs. Blair and Nelly were kept busy hurrying back and forth between the grove and house.

At last Bill dropped lightly to the ground. "I reckon that's 'bout all," he said comically. "There's some few left on the ends o' the branches, but they're hard to get, an' we ain't no long ladders. Come, feller, I reckon we uns had better be pushin' fer home."

But Nelly caught him by the arm. "We're awfully obliged to you, Bill," she said earnestly. "I shan't ever forget it."

"Oh, that's all right," then hesitatingly: "If you uns don't mind we uns'll go up the trees an' fill our pockets with oranges. They'll likely be spoiled 'fore mornin'."

"Take all you can carry home," interposed Mrs. Blair, "an' don't go up the trees arter 'em. An' say, Tom, come in the house 'fore you go. I've got somethin' for your maw."

During the next few days reports of the freeze came in from various parts of the state. The destruction was general, and the prices of oranges went up and up and up. When it was learned that Mrs. Blair had saved her half a dozen buyers hastened to her with offers. Nelly was in the room during the conversation. When they left she danced wildly about the house.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, "we'll have the $60 to live on an' can get the dresses an' things, an' there'll be $100 left to put aside! Ain't it just splendid?"

The full extent of the freeze was learned gradually, but by the end of the week it was generally known that old trees had been only slightly injured. The Blair grove escaped with the loss of its leaves.

In the good old days when the child was "seen, not heard," it was the younger generation which received instruction. Nowadays adults are under high pressure in a strenuous attempt to live up to the intellectual requirements of youth.

A reasonably intelligent woman was out in the fields with a little girl of about seven years. "Oh, the lovely butterfly!" exclaimed the woman. "Isn't it a beauty?"

"Yes," replied the small maid, rather patronizingly. "But isn't it a moth?" Mr. Jephson, one of Henry M. Stanley's officers in Africa, writes of his encounter with well-informed childhood in "Stories Told in an African Forest."

"I was on a ship bound for the United States. One day I saw a sailor draw some water from the sea in a bucket, and I asked a bystander what he was doing it for."

"A small American boy of eight years was standing near. Hearing my question, he pityingly said:

"Oh, don't you know? We are now in the Gulf Stream, and that sailor was drawing water in order to take its temperature and write it down in the logbook."

"I immediately took a back seat, ashamed that my ignorance should have been so apparent."

Just as Easy.

"How to Get a Position and How to Keep It" is the title of a small book, issued by a large publishing house and sold to the unemployed and others for 50 cents.

That is cheap enough if the rules laid down will work like a patent chain without putting a dollar's worth of intelligence along with each suggestion. Any man out of employment and starving would gladly give the 50 cents he didn't have for the book if he could stand off the restaurant man until he had read it.

Doubtless, moving along the line of the simple rules will make a man president of a bank or manager of a moving picture show, provided he can understand all of the big words on the pages.

However, there is one unending rule we will not let the author never mention, and that is to be born a millionaire. Then the reader won't care whether he keeps the position or not.

One man with an odd hobby isn't a person who gets much mail, and what he has or expects to have he can keep in mind very easily. Probably he never had a letter which went astray.

Yet every time he sees in the newspapers the list of advertised mail sent out from time to time by the general postoffice in New York, he turns at once to the list of letters under which his name comes and runs carefully through the list. He never yet has found any letter that might be supposed to be for him and, furthermore, hasn't found any that might be for any of his relatives.

He takes an odd pleasure in doing it, however, something with that eagerness which impels a man to grub through a packet of old letters in hopes that he may come upon some rare variety of stamp. Really, if ever he found his name in the list it probably would kill his enjoyment of the hunt forever thereafter.—New York Sun.

Two Previous.

A Richmond woman has in her employ a little darky, MIE Oole. One day MIE became confidential and told his mistress he was "goin' to the cemetery next Sunday."

"But, MIE, that's a long walk. You know it is more than five miles."

"Oh, missus, I ain't goin' to walk. I's goin' to ride."

"How is that, MIE?"

"I's goin' in a karridge 'r my uncle's funeral."

All day Saturday MIE could talk of nothing but the approaching affair. Sunday his mistress excused him, and she expected that on Monday she would be regaled with a full account of the funeral. But MIE turned up with a most mortifying face. In answer to her inquiry he said:

"I didn't go, missus. He ain't dead yet."—New York Herald.

Not Working.

Logized for the action of by syster by saying, "You n't got any sense yet." Her cted to such an idea, and d, "Oh, of course she's got it ain't working yet."—De-

Foley's Hovey and Tar clears the air passages, stops the irritation in the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. Sore and inflamed lungs are cooled and strengthened, and the cold is expelled from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Upchurch Drug Co.

Meats Freezing.

One and a half cups of confectionery sugar and one-fourth cup of butter creamed together. Add one heaping teaspoonful of cocoa, one teaspoonful of vanilla and two table-spoonfuls of cold coffee. Beat hard all together. If too soft add more sugar. This makes a nice white frosting also for the cake in making.

To Clean Marble.

Marble can be cleaned by rubbing it with a cloth dipped in turpentine and then polishing it with a clean dry cloth.

Beetroot Fritters.

Cut stale bread into moderately thin slices, remove the crusts and cut the slices into two or three pieces. Drop them into fresh milk and let them soak a couple of minutes. Have ready slices of bacon with the rind removed and place each slice between two pieces of bread. Press the pieces of bread firmly together, dip these sandwiches into a thin fritter batter, drop them into very hot fat and fry them to a delicate brown. Remove the fritters from the fat and dust them with a little pepper. Drain the fritters on brown paper in the mouth of a hot oven until all are ready; then pile them on a heated platter and serve at once.

Mandy Carpet Stretcher.

A simple and inexpensive device to effectively stretch a carpet and temporarily retain it in place while the edge is being tacked to the floor is herewith shown. It comprises a rectangular block of sufficient size to support the foot or feet of the operator. A set of comparatively short and dull teeth are attached to the under surface slightly in advance of the center of the block. The teeth, being short and dull, will grip the carpet without passing through to the floor. Another set of teeth to hold the carpet temporarily after it is stretched is placed at the two lower corners. Pivotally connected with the forward end of the block is a hand lever provided with a stud to take hold on the surface of the floor in the operation of the stretcher. In using the stretcher the operator places one foot on the block to force the forward set of teeth into the carpet. He then applies the lever to draw the carpet to the tension and position desired, the operator throws his weight on lower end of the block, causing the teeth to enter the floor to hold the carpet temporarily until the edge is permanently tacked in place.

Wash For Carpets.

Put in pieces a bar of soap, put in two quarts of water and let it stand on the back of a stove overnight. In the morning put in a pail of warm water in which 10 cents' worth of salts of tartar has been dissolved. If there is green in the carpet put in a cup of vinegar. Wash a yard at a time with soapy water with a scrub brush and rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water. Open a window and it will soon dry.

Cough Syrup.

Put a large lemon in the oven and allow it to remain until thoroughly baked. When done it will be soft all the way through. Add enough honey to the pulp to make a thick syrup. Keep the syrup warm and take a teaspoonful every half hour. It will relieve hoarseness in a short while and is useful where there are small children.

Relaxes.

FEEDLE OLD LADY Has Strength Restored by Vinol.

Mrs. Michael Bloom of Lewisburg, Pa., who is 60 years of age, says: "For a long time I have been so feeble that I have had to be wheeled around in an invalid's chair. I had no strength and took cold at the slightest provocation, which invariably settled on my lungs, and a cough would result. I soon learned of the cod liver preparation, called Vinol, and procured a bottle for me. It built up my strength rapidly and after taking three bottles I am able to do most of my work, and can walk a quarter of a mile easily. Every aged or weak person who requires strength should try Vinol. I am delighted with what it has done for me."

Watched Fifteen Years.

"For fifteen years I have watched the working of Bucklen's Arnica Salve; and it has never failed to cure any sore, boil, ulcer or burn to which it was applied. It has saved us many a doctor bill," says A. F. Hardy, of East Wilton, Maine. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

His Hobby.

One man with an odd hobby isn't a person who gets much mail, and what he has or expects to have he can keep in mind very easily. Probably he never had a letter which went astray.

Yet every time he sees in the newspapers the list of advertised mail sent out from time to time by the general postoffice in New York, he turns at once to the list of letters under which his name comes and runs carefully through the list. He never yet has found any letter that might be supposed to be for him and, furthermore, hasn't found any that might be for any of his relatives.

He takes an odd pleasure in doing it, however, something with that eagerness which impels a man to grub through a packet of old letters in hopes that he may come upon some rare variety of stamp. Really, if ever he found his name in the list it probably would kill his enjoyment of the hunt forever thereafter.—New York Sun.

Two Previous.

A Richmond woman has in her employ a little darky, MIE Oole. One day MIE became confidential and told his mistress he was "goin' to the cemetery next Sunday."

"But, MIE, that's a long walk. You know it is more than five miles."

"Oh, missus, I ain't goin' to walk. I's goin' to ride."

"How is that, MIE?"

"I's goin' in a karridge 'r my uncle's funeral."

All day Saturday MIE could talk of nothing but the approaching affair. Sunday his mistress excused him, and she expected that on Monday she would be regaled with a full account of the funeral. But MIE turned up with a most mortifying face. In answer to her inquiry he said:

Meats Freezing.

One and a half cups of confectionery sugar and one-fourth cup of butter creamed together. Add one heaping teaspoonful of cocoa, one teaspoonful of vanilla and two table-spoonfuls of cold coffee. Beat hard all together. If too soft add more sugar. This makes a nice white frosting also for the cake in making.

To Clean Marble.

Marble can be cleaned by rubbing it with a cloth dipped in turpentine and then polishing it with a clean dry cloth.

Beetroot Fritters.

Cut stale bread into moderately thin slices, remove the crusts and cut the slices into two or three pieces. Drop them into fresh milk and let them soak a couple of minutes. Have ready slices of bacon with the rind removed and place each slice between two pieces of bread. Press the pieces of bread firmly together, dip these sandwiches into a thin fritter batter, drop them into very hot fat and fry them to a delicate brown. Remove the fritters from the fat and dust them with a little pepper. Drain the fritters on brown paper in the mouth of a hot oven until all are ready; then pile them on a heated platter and serve at once.

A simple and inexpensive device to effectively stretch a carpet and temporarily retain it in place while the edge is being tacked to the floor is herewith shown. It comprises a rectangular block of sufficient size to support the foot or feet of the operator. Pivotally connected with the forward end of the block is a hand lever provided with a stud to take hold on the surface of the floor in the operation of the stretcher. In using the stretcher the operator places one foot on the block to force the forward set of teeth into the carpet. He then applies the lever to draw the carpet to the tension and position desired, the operator throws his weight on lower end of the block, causing the teeth to enter the floor to hold the carpet temporarily until the edge is permanently tacked in place.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Simple Hints.

Stains and discolorations on trousers can be removed by dipping a damp cloth in common soda and rubbing briskly, then wash thoroughly and wipe dry.

If the wooden chopping bowl is stood upside down when not in use there will be no danger of its splitting.

Lemons that have become hard from long standing can be made usable by covering them with boiling water for a few minutes.

If you have used gasoline to clean any fabric and find that it leaves a ring hold the cloth over a steaming kettle and the ring will disappear.

When using stale bread for puddings always soak it in a cold liquid. Bread that has been soaked in cold milk or water is light and crumbly, whereas that soaked in hot liquids is heavy.

Thwarting The Freeze

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyright, 1935, by American Press Association.

OH, mother, they're gone, every one of 'em," and Nelly Blair rushed into the kitchen, where her mother was preparing a deliciously fragrant soup, and threw herself into a chair by the one window.

Mrs. Blair took a spoonful of soup from the pot and tasted it critically, then added more salt and pepper.

"What's gone, Nelly?" she asked at last as she lifted the pot and set it on the back part of the stove, where it could simmer on leisurely to the perfection for which her soups were always noted.

"My melons, an' I know it was them Carr boys that took 'em. They killed my chickens an' shot my pigeons, an' now they've stole my melons. Oh, dear! I just hate 'em. I don't see how boys can be so mean."

Two red spots burned in her cheeks, and her eyes shone angrily. Mrs. Blair glanced in her work.

"I don't like that word 'hate,' Nelly," she said gently. "It's an awful word, especially when one comes to think about it."

"But, mother, I've been watchin' them melons every day an' thinkin' how much they'd bring an' how good some of 'em would taste if we could afford to eat 'em. An'—there's the chickens and pigeons. Folks can't help buttin' such things."

"I know, Nelly; I know. But there's other things to think about. Them Carr boys never had no bringin' up; their pa's in prison an' they've been allowed to run wild, with no schoolin' nor nothin'. Mrs. Carr's a nice woman, but she's an invalid an' can't get out an' foller 'em up like she should if she was strong. But they're awful good boys to her, Nelly. They look after her wants just like they were girls."

"Huh!" Nelly turned abruptly to the window and gazed out across the white, sandy fields to the Carr cabin, half a mile away. The melons were too fresh in her mind for her to be so easily placated.

"There's good in most folks if it can only be brought out," Mrs. Blair resumed persuasively. "The boys ain't all bad, an' I'm awful sorry for poor Mr. Carr." She hesitated a moment, then added: "I made this soup for her an' was designin' for you to carry it over, Nelly, but I reckon I can walk that far. You can sort o' look after the fire now an' ag'in."

"Oh, I'll take the soup," said Nelly bravely. "I ain't nothin' ag'in Mr. Carr."

But as she passed through the small track path and across the palmetto and wire grass dotted fields the frown still remained on her face. She had planned to do so much with the melons—to buy a new dress for her mother and curtains for the kitchen window and perhaps a pair of shoes for herself. She was only thirteen. But already the necessities of life had brought to her something of the experience of mature years. She and her mother planted an acre or two of the truck and raised a few chickens and gathered and sold huckleberries in their season. But the nearest market was three miles away, and, do the

REVISED NATIONAL BOTS SKETCHING A WAY.

Neither could their united earnings make a small part of the necessities. If it had not been for the Carr grove they would have been forced to sell the palmetto and wire grass. The grove would have been a regular grower would have been a regular grower by another grove. It consisted of only four or five acres, but it was always an object of admiration. Many people had planted the grove, but it was always with little thought of the future. They would ever prove the main source of income for the descendants. The grove was all seedlings, very tall and very thin, and very thirsty. Some years each of them bore as many as twelve or fifteen boxes of choice fruit. As Nelly approached the Carr cabin she noticed several boys shrinking behind a dilapidated shed. Her face flushed. Of course they were the Carr boys, but she herself indignantly. That proved it.

But a short talk with the placid, even tempered invalid cooled her down somewhat; only when she left the cabin she started on a run toward home. She was afraid that if she looked around she would see the boys and say something angry.

Mrs. Blair had been in the habit of occasionally employing the Carr boys to help in the truck patch, but Nelly was now so violently opposed to this that after a few ineffectual protests the mother yielded. Now and then Nelly carried soup or some other delicacy across the fields to the invalid, but she was careful to make these visits at times when she thought the boys were away. And on their part the boys seemed equally glad to avoid her.

As summer lengthened into fall and the clear, crisp days of October and November appeared the oranges grew larger and larger and finally began to turn yellow. Nelly watched them so anxiously and tried to count the number of oranges on one limb and from this small basis to estimate the number of boxes on each tree.

"Do you s'pose there'll be fifteen boxes apiece, mamma?" she asked one day after she had made a long calculation on a piece of brown paper. "I wouldn't be surprised, honey. They hang very full this year."

"That would be sixty boxes," said Nelly after a few seconds' work with her pencil. "Well, call it fifty. Fifty boxes at $3 a box makes $150. An' you know, mamma," triumphantly, "we reckoned up that $60 more would keep us through the year. Now, mamma," impressively, "if we make $40 extra can't you have the new dress and curtains an' me some new shoes?"

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Blair gayly, "an' you shall have a new wool dress, too, Nelly, an' select it all by yourself."

At length the oranges were ready to pick, but Mrs. Blair hesitated. There were rumors that the markets had been glutted by unwise shipments of fruit and that some forwarders would hardly make expenses. So she waited and listened eagerly to such meager market reports as came to her from the neighbors.

One afternoon Nelly went to the village with some eggs. When she returned there was a suppressed excitement in her face.

"I heard 'em talkin' in the store 'bout a cold wave comin'," she said excitedly. "Mr. Tibbs said he 'lowed there'd be a good many oranges freeze tonight. An' it's gittin' awful cold, mamma. My hands fairly ache."

Mrs. Blair was cooking and had not noticed. She now went outside. Yes, it was certainly growing cold. The wind actually stung her face as she stepped past the corner of the house.

An hour later it was still colder, and by the time the sun sank behind the pines she was as anxious as Nelly.

Neither of them thought of supper. They had occasionally saved tender vegetables from frost by a smudge fire so placed that the smoke would float across the endangered plants. Mrs. Blair was not very sanguine about its saving an orange grove in case the cold became excessive, but there seemed nothing else they could do. So piles of brushwood were made along the west side of the trees and covered with green boughs and anything that could prevent the fire from bursting into flames. For the most part they worked hurriedly and silently, Nelly bringing the material and her mother arranging it on the piles.

But when the fire was kindled the smoke refused to meet their desire. It rose thick and black, but drifted this way and that under the branches and over the branches and off to one side, but never covering the trees with the dense canopy they were longing for. And this failure only made them work the more desperately. It was getting colder and colder, and they realized with growing dread what the loss of the oranges would be to them.

Nelly was gathering up an armful of grass and weeds, reckless of the sand spurs which clung to her fingers, when she heard approaching footsteps. Looking up, she saw Bill Carr and his four brothers.

"Hello, Nelly," said Bill, rather sheepishly. "Hello."

"Seen you yus' fire an' thought we'd come over an' sort o' help. Mighty cold, ain't it?"

"Yes." Then, after an embarrassed silence: "Well, why don't you go to work? Plenty of it here."

"Shut! No use workin' that way," contemptuously. "Smoke don't scarcely tech the trees. 'Sides, smoke ain't goin' ter scare this freeze. No, sir-ee! It's too big. Say, Nelly, we usin' plumb sorry 'bout them melons an' things. You an' your maw have been right good ter we usin'. Maw and we usin' have horse sense ter know hit. We'll be mighty glad to help."

"Well, why don't you then?" desperately. "Every minute's needed now."

Just as Easy.
"How to Get a Position and How to Keep It" is the title of a small book issued by a large publishing house and sold to the unemployed and others for 50 cents.

That is cheap enough if the rules laid down will work like a patent chain without putting a dollar's worth of intelligence along with each suggestion. Any man out of employment and starving would gladly give the 50 cents he didn't have for the book if he could stand off the restaurant man until he had read it.

Doubtless, moving along the line of the simple rules will make a man president of a bank or manager of a moving picture show, provided he can understand all of the big words on the pages.

However, there is one unfeeling rule we will bet the author never mentioned, and that is to be kept a million miles. Then the reader won't care whether he keeps the position or not.

Relieve.
To make this famous French marmalade add an equal weight of pears and grapes. Cook the grapes in a little water until soft, then press through a colander to remove the seeds. Add the pears cored and sliced and simmer until thick, stirring almost constantly. When thick, sweeten to taste, scald, strain through a colander and can.

Moosh Frooling.
One and a half cups of confectionery sugar and one-fourth cup of butter creamed together. Add one heaping teaspoonful of cocoa, one teaspoonful of vanilla and two table-spoonfuls of cold coffee. Beat hard all together. If too soft add more sugar. This makes a nice white frosting also if it is baked in a mold.

To Clean Marble.
Marble can be cleaned by rubbing it with a cloth dipped in turpentine and then polishing it with a clean dry cloth.

Bacon Fritters.
Cut stale bread into moderately thin slices, remove the crusts and cut the slices into two or three pieces, drop them into fresh milk and let them soak a couple of minutes. Have ready slices of bacon with the rind removed and place each slice between two pieces of bread. Press the pieces of bread firmly together, dip these sandwiches into very hot fat and fry them to a delicate brown. Remove the fritters from the fat and dust them with a little pepper. Drain the fritters on brown paper in the mouth of a hot oven until all are ready; then pile them on a heated platter and serve at once.

Mandy Carpet Stretcher.
A simple and inexpensive device to effectively stretch a carpet and temporarily retain it in place while the edge is being tacked to the floor is herewith shown. It comprises a rectangular block of sufficient size to support the foot or feet of the operator. A set of comparatively short and dull teeth are attached to the under surface slightly in advance of the center of the block. The teeth, being short and dull, will grip the carpet without passing through to the floor. Another set of teeth to hold the carpet temporarily after it is stretched is placed at the two lower corners. Pivotaly connected with the forward end of the block is a hand lever provided with a stud to take hold on the surface of the floor in the operation of the stretcher. In using the stretcher the operator places one foot on the block to force the forward set of teeth into the carpet. He then applies the lever to draw the carpet to the tension and position desired, the operator throws his weight on lower end of the block, causing the teeth to enter the floor to hold the carpet temporarily until the edge is permanently tacked in place.

Wash For Carpets.
Cut in pieces a bar of soap, put in two quarts of water and let it stand on the back of a stove overnight. In the morning put in a pail of warm water in which 10 cents' worth of salts of tartar has been dissolved. If there is green in the carpet put in a cup of vinegar. Wash a yard at a time with soapy water with a scrub brush and rinse with a cloth wrung out of clear water. Open a window and it will soon dry.

Cough Syrup.
Put a large lemon in the oven and allow it to remain until thoroughly baked. When done it will be soft all the way through. Add enough honey to the pulp to make a thick syrup. Keep the syrup warm and take a teaspoonful every half hour. It will relieve hoarseness in a short while and is useful where there are small children.

WHEN LOST IN THE WOODS.

The Chief Dangers Lie in Panic and Overexertion.

Let the man who is lost in the woods be very careful not to overexert himself. His chief dangers lie in panic and overexertion, and, though he may be in a great hurry to find shelter, he must warn him to go slowly. Two miles an hour, on an average, through the snow in the woods is all that a man in his condition will be able to stand without overfatigue and its attendant dangers, overheating and perspiration. By exercising caution a man may live through a week of what he is undergoing.

To make this article brief, however, we shall suppose that he regains the road by the afternoon of the first day.
He doesn't yet know, of course, just where he is. He should examine the tracks of the person who last passed that way. If being afternoon, he must follow in the direction taken by the last passing vehicle or team, as shelter will be nearest in that direction.
Had it been morning he would have taken the opposite direction, as who ever made the tracks must have come from the place where the sun is shining in the morning.

Chancery Court, 7th District, Northeastern Dis-

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of Thos. A. Curry, Solicitor for complainant, that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that he resides in the city of Trenton, in the State of New Jersey, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the defendant, J. S. Williams, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the paper, a newspaper published in Chilton County, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said J. S. Williams, to answer, plead or demur to the bill of complaint in the above cause on or before the 20th day of November, 1908, and failing to do within thirty days after the service of said summons a decree pro confesso may be taken against him in said cause.

Witness my hand this 25th day of October, 1908.

port as follows:

attention, the able and willing manner in which he has advised ties who have readily responded to interest in the execution of all cases intrusted to their care and all the time in this county, fully comply with Act 714, H. R. and at the last session of the legislature in regard to giving cotton seed will be seen from the number cases investigated by the grand jury and the number of true bills cases were without any merit.

We would respectfully suggest the justices of the peace make careful investigation on into all the cases in each case brought to their knowledge, and ascertain as to whether or not there is any merit in the case, and if not, dispose of it and send it to the grand jury, by that means a great deal of time will be saved for the county, and thus, completed our duty to the best of our ability as we saw and beg your honor to be dismissed.

THE GREAT OUTSIDE
Select a half dozen apples. Wash and core. Slice across apple so that each piece will be encircled by the skin of the apple. Place in a stewing or frying pan, pouring over them about one-fourth of a cupful of water, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, though amount of sugar is best determined by acidity of apples; and a tablespoonful of butter. Cover and allow to simmer. When soft remove cover and fry. When sufficiently brown place in a rather deep dish alternate layers of the apples and grated cheese. Place in the oven for five or ten minutes and serve in the same dish in which they were scalloped.—Boston Post.

DEEP SEA DIVING.

A Descent of Thirty Fathoms Marks the Limit of Safety.

The depth to which a diver can descend is limited by his power for withstanding the pressure of the water. Apparently a descent of thirty fathoms (180 feet) of water marks the limit of safety for even a few divers who possess the necessary physical fitness in combination with a disregard for danger beyond the average.

Records in deep sea diving have to be accepted with the proverbial grain of salt. It has been claimed that a diver reached thirty-three fathoms and a half while engaged in salvage operations recently on the west coast of South America, and yet again another diver working on the same wreck is reported to have brought up three bars of copper from a depth of forty fathoms at the expense of his life.

An expert who has superintended in a large number of diving operations has found that very few men, whatever their build, are capable of combating the severe strain which is brought to bear upon their physical energies for a few minutes at a depth of twenty or thirty fathoms. Many of his divers dared not venture below ten fathoms. Of 352 divers employed at greater depths thirty were seriously injured, and the result was fatal in ten instances.—Harper's.

What She Inherited.
"Of course I can do manicuring just as well with my left hand," said the left handed manicurist—"better, if anything. You don't know the difference if you've been born that way. If you have inherited it."

"Didn't know it was a matter of inheritance? Why, certainly it is. No, left handedness, not manicuring. My father, grandfather and great-grandfather were all left handed, and so were ten cousins of mine."—Exchange.

Happy Hunting Ground.

A Star on Stars.
He was one of the leading actors of America—of international fame—and he was talking of guard.

"Women certainly have the best of it on the stage," he said, "although they may not always think so. What ever a man attains in the dramatic profession he must toil for, but a woman with a little bit of talent can make a hit, if she has a pretty face or figure, that will place her in a brief time and almost without labor in a position of financial independence, to say nothing of being a popular idol. No; I trust I'm not envious, but sometimes I feel a bit discouraged when I contrast my years of toil with the hour, skip and jump that lands a round faced girl at the front."—New York Press.

A Contrast.
In the Bank of England's museum may be seen the old oak chest which was the old lady of Threadneedle street's first strong room. It is a little larger than a common seaman's chest, and in this the bank stored its cash, notes and valuable papers. Today the strong room is a formidable looking object, built of armor plate, boasts of huge doors that weigh many tons and represents the latest skill and science of the engineer and locksmith.—London Queen.

Medicine That is Medicine.
"I have suffered a good deal with malaria and stomach complaints, but I have now found a remedy that keeps me well, and that remedy is Electric Bitters: a medicine that is a medicine for stomach and liver troubles and for run down conditions," says W. C. Kiestler of Haliday Aik. Electric Bitters purify and enrich the blood, tone up the nerves and impart vigor and energy to the weak. A rather pompous looking deacon in a certain city church was asked to take charge of a class of boys during the absence of the regular teacher. While endeavoring to impress upon their young minds the importance of living a Christian life the following question was propounded:

Beat 5.
Dear Editor Banner—Will you please give a short space. I want to say few words to the poor farmers of Beat 5, that wants stock law. Let me tell you my dear brother farmer, when you cast your vote for stock law it will be the worst vote you ever cast—I know what stock law is; it is hard on the poor man. But now, if you want to help the rich man vote for stock law you will help him and drive the poor that much tighter to the wall. There is nothing in stock law that helps the poor, what can the poor widow woman do with her cows that owns not a foot of land, and her cows is her only chance for her and her children to live on. Now brother, you all know this is the case all over the country, and I tell you it is too hard—God put the grass here for the stock to eat, and I tell you it is a sin to take your cow and put her in jail for life for nothing—we have got plenty of timber to fence the farmers. Beat 5 don't need stock law. Let me beg you, brother, to vote it down. It drives the poor man to the storekeeper for more and more; and it will cause a lot of little children to suffer for milk, bread and butter. Yes some of our door neighbors, and I think that the poor hard working farmers have got about all the hard times that they need already—you will put more and more dollars in the man's pocket that has got plenty of land and money; you will take milk, butter and bread from your poor children.
Well I will not write any more, but will ask again, not to vote for stock law. It is a bad thing for the poor man, and we have got a lot of poor men in Beat 5—don't vote bread out of your neighbor's children's mouth.

FROM DULUTH TO EDMONTON.
Duluth, Dec. 1
There is a side light on the growing importance of Duluth in the announcement that the Canadian Northern Railway has acquired control of the Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg Railway, for somewhere about six million dollars. The situation is interesting for every American business interest that is concerned in the traffic of the Great Lakes; and especially so, seeing that the improvement or otherwise of shipments up and down Lake Superior affects the future of the whole of the vast territory that drains into the Gulf of Mexico, through the mighty Mississippi.

The Lakes draw from the west. The Gulf of Mexico draws from the north. The North West is the real battleground for magnetic supremacy as between Duluth and New Orleans. The northern Mississippi basin, which includes the Missouri, extends from the mountains of Washington eastwards to within fifty miles of Duluth; which has tremendous advantage in pulling the export and important business of the states which stretch towards the Canadian border. Every step towards deepening the Mississippi is a step towards the development of healthy rivalry for northwestern trade, and nothing is more interesting than to learn how the Northwest is shaping itself in this regard.

Duluth is the only lake port of the United States which gets large business from the Hudson Bay slope of this continent. Parts of South Dakota drain into Hudson Bay, as well as sections of Minnesota and a considerable part of North Dakota. Some of the Minnesota Iron Mines are beyond the height of land, so that an unexpectedly heavy proportion of the wealth of the mineral trades of the United States comes from the region that is ordinarily supposed to be among the everlasting snows.

In its last fiscal year, the Duluth, Missabe and Northern Railroad, which brings the ores from the mines between Duluth and Virginia to the lakeside, carried thirteen million tons of ore which was shipped to eastern smelters, and it is this road which has the new connection with Canada, along with the Duluth, Rainy Lake and Winnipeg, and so stands to gain a share of the enormous and phenomenally increasing wheat traffic of the prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

This will be a new feature of the business of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern. The roads by which the great elevators at Duluth are filled, do not pass through the ore bodies which support the wonderful mining towns of north-eastern Minnesota, and, of course, also supports the hundreds of thousands of people engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

The Duluth, Missabe and Northern Ry. is a double-tracked road in the finest of condition, and though it has carried so much ore, will be able to take care of whatever new business will offer from the Canadian West. But it will gain more than this, for it places Duluth on a direct short line between Chicago and Winnipeg, and gives the business men of the Middle Western states not only an additional access to the great market of the Canadian Plains, which is cultivated by manufacturers of all kinds of goods, but it furnishes the millions of the Middle West with another avenue into a county, which, for summering purposes, is not equaled on the continent.

The resorts in the woods and by the waters of Wisconsin are admirable, but the growth of population and of wealth sends people more and more into territories which are peopled almost entirely by wild animals. Duluth connects with Canadian territory at Fort Frances by a bridge which crosses the outlet of Rainy Lake two miles from Fort Frances. Rainy Lake is within two hundred and fifty miles of St. Paul and Minneapolis. Although it is only forty miles long in its greatest length, its shore line is so tortuous, and its arms so many and widespread that the thousands of islands that dot its surface have never been counted. A railway both skirts and crosses the lake, whose coming popularity may be judged from the fact that in one month last summer over a hundred of its islands were sold to St. Paul and Minneapolis people for summering purposes. It abounds with fish, and the country draining into it is full of moose and other big game. In lily-pod time, when the moose come to the water to feed, it is no uncommon thing for a canoe-man ascending one of the streams to see from twelve to twenty moose in a day.

That this country will be more and more used by the people of Duluth for a great access of industrial population is imminent. The United States Steel Corporation at last decided to establish smelters at Duluth, so that the northwestern market can be supplied from its natural mineral base.

The intense heat of the summer time, prevailing in the central west does not afflict Duluth. The summer days are hot enough, but the nights by the lake are invariably cool, and a combination of city, wild woodland and numerous rivers flowing into the lake, together afford a great scope for recreation to the inhabitants and to visitors.

Duluth was first given a remarkable fame by the speech of Proctor Knott before the committee of Congress in 1871. The speech has been reprinted by the Duluth Commercial Club as a piece of advertising. It is one of the most brilliant pieces of persiflage in all literature. The Commercial Club has reprinted it because so many of its predictions, made in a spirit of extravagant ridicule, have actually materialized, as is shown most effectively in the articles by William E. Curtis in the Chicago Record-Herald, which are reprinted alongside Knott's speech. "The Zenith city of the unsalted seas" is more than a phrase. Duluth is that, and also the portal of a country, boundless in wealth, unsurpassed in beauty, and incomparable in quality.

The saloon business as a political question is one of the strongest and most objectionable intrenchments of the subject on which one of our great political parties is based. As the saloon stands as the largest representation of the liquor traffic, one writer says that "The saloon cannot be taken out of politics, but a good deal of very despicable politics may be taken out of the saloon."
As the evil connected with the business is clearly seen, that is, by rendering such an intoxicating beverage so prevalent, 'tis not necessary to say that alcohol destroys moral perception, thereby destroying the moral life of the individual.

IN MEMORIAM.
On Nov. 24, at Vida, Ala., the angel of death visited the home of Mrs. Campbell and bore away the spirit of his loving wife. She was 72 years old, and joined the Methodist church when quite a young woman and lived a true Christian life. She had been in bad health for several years but bore her sufferings without a murmur. She was a devoted wife, a tender, affectionate mother, a steadfast, faithful friend. To know her was to love her. She leaves a broken-hearted husband and three children and twelve grand children and a host of sorrowing friends. Weep not, dear ones, for she is getting the first sweet rest she has had in a long time, and some day when you have crossed the dark chilly waters of death your loved one will greet you on the golden shore. She is sleeping calmly, sleeping in a new made grave. To day we are weeping, sadly weeping for the loved one gone away.

Kissing the Hands.
The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Caesars the custom was kept up, but only for a time. These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank. Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

The Suicide Symphony.
The idea that music may be harmful—that it can create a fever in the blood dangerous to life and reason—will come as a revelation to many. Friedrich Nietzsche, the well known German philosopher, declares that there is something in some music, most notable in Wagner and Tschalkowsky, which acts unfavorably on the brain and nerves of many people. Tschalkowsky's baleful influence cannot be denied. He destroyed himself after composing his famous "Sixth Symphony," and, as several have died by their own hand after playing it, it has come to be known as the "suicide symphony."

On Nov. 24, at Vida, Ala., the angel of death visited the home of Mrs. Campbell and bore away the spirit of his loving wife. She was 72 years old, and joined the Methodist church when quite a young woman and lived a true Christian life. She had been in bad health for several years but bore her sufferings without a murmur. She was a devoted wife, a tender, affectionate mother, a steadfast, faithful friend. To know her was to love her. She leaves a broken-hearted husband and three children and twelve grand children and a host of sorrowing friends. Weep not, dear ones, for she is getting the first sweet rest she has had in a long time, and some day when you have crossed the dark chilly waters of death your loved one will greet you on the golden shore. She is sleeping calmly, sleeping in a new made grave. To day we are weeping, sadly weeping for the loved one gone away.

Kissing the Hands.
The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Caesars the custom was kept up, but only for a time. These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank. Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

The Suicide Symphony.
The idea that music may be harmful—that it can create a fever in the blood dangerous to life and reason—will come as a revelation to many. Friedrich Nietzsche, the well known German philosopher, declares that there is something in some music, most notable in Wagner and Tschalkowsky, which acts unfavorably on the brain and nerves of many people. Tschalkowsky's baleful influence cannot be denied. He destroyed himself after composing his famous "Sixth Symphony," and, as several have died by their own hand after playing it, it has come to be known as the "suicide symphony."

It Quiets the Cough

This is one reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so valuable in consumption. It stops the wear and tear of useless coughing. But it does more—it controls the inflammation, quiets the fever, soothes, heals. Ask your doctor about this.

The Division of Time.

The division of time into hours was practiced among the Babylonians from remote antiquity, but it was Hippar-chus, the philosopher, who introduced the Babylonian hour into Europe. The sexagesimal system of notation was chosen by that ancient people because there is no number having so many divisions as sixty. The Babylonians divided the daily journey of the sun, the ruler of the day, into twenty-four parasangs. Each parasang, or hour, was subdivided into sixty minutes, and that again into sixty seconds. They compared the progress made by the sun during one hour at the time of the equinox to the progress made by a good walker in the same period of time, both covering one parasang, and the course of the sun during the full equinoctial day was fixed at twenty-four parasangs.

Miss Martha

By EDGAR WELTON COOLEY

Copyright, 1901, by American Press Association.

AUNT BECKY placed her hand upon the little girl's head and smiled warmly.

"So you have come to live with your pa and ma in the big house on the hill?" she said. "I just love that place."

"You love it?" the girl asked. "Why, Aunt Becky?"

"Aunt Becky laughed. "Because Miss Martha lived there so long, I reckon," she replied.

"The girl sat down in the open door. "Won't you tell me about Miss Martha?" she asked.

"Aunt Becky took a pan of potatoes in her lap and prepared to peel them. Her dim eyes glistened in recollection.

"Well, dearie," she began, "I knew Miss Martha when she was just a little bit of a child like you, and I don't care where you go or where you don't go, you won't ever find any sweeter girl than any purer angel than was she."

"And I knew Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry when they were just little boys, about as high, playing together in the meadow or fishing in the old White river over there."

"Mr. Joe's father was Judge Singleton, who came to Indiana when there was hardly anybody here but Indians. And Mr. Henry was the son of General Beasley, who fought with Sherman in '63."

"It was curious how much Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry were attached to one another when they were little boys. It couldn't rain on one without raining on the other, and when the sun was shining the shadow of one was always kissing the other's little dimpled feet. So they grew into manhood, with the sunshine stored in both their souls and the blue of the sky in Mr. Joe's eyes and in Mr. Henry's the shadows of the grapevines across the path."

"But there came a time when Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry came down the path together; they were not arm in arm, for Miss Martha was walking between them, but I couldn't see her."

"One day Mr. Henry came alone, and there was a shadow on his face that I didn't like. With never a word he sat down in the door and took off his hat."

"By and by I put my hand on his head and said, 'What's the matter, Mr. Henry?'"

"Nothing much, Aunt Becky," says he. "Only just a pain in here." Then I knew it was Miss Martha.

"Where's Mr. Joe today, Mr. Henry?" I says.

"He's over to Miss Martha's," says he.

"After awhile Mr. Joe came down the path, whistling."

"Look, Henry!" says he. "I've been looking for you," says he, walking over to where Mr. Henry was sitting on an old log. But Mr. Henry did not answer. He just got up and walked away with his arms folded and his face white and left Mr. Joe standing with dumb lips and scarlet face.

MISS MARTHA PRETENDED NOT TO BE INTERESTED.

A few days after that I saw Miss Martha and Mr. Henry drifting down the river in a boat. Miss Martha was sitting in the stern looking down at her hands trailing in the water, and Mr. Henry, with his oars crossed in his lap, was leaning forward gazing into the Martha's face.

Pretty soon Mr. Joe came along. I knew he had seen Miss Martha and Mr. Henry, but he never let on, only he was whistling, as usual.

Well, about this time the war came and broke out. Old Judge Singleton was a powerful speaker in his day, and General Beasley got on his white horse, all fixed out in the uniform he wore when he fought with Sherman, and went galloping up and down, calling on all the men folks to join the very first one who stopped

upon the platform and signed his name to the enlistment was Mr. Joe.

"The tears came to my eyes when I saw that, for Mr. Joe was all that the old judge had left, and the judge's head was like that hillside when the wild cherries are in bloom—that white."

"The judge grew pale and leaned on the table for a moment. Then he took Mr. Joe's hand and says, 'God bless you, my boy.' And that was all he said."

"When Mr. Henry saw what Mr. Joe had done he climbed upon the platform as quickly as he could and says, 'I'm going along with Joe.'"

"The old general was used to war, and the fire of battle was burning in his veins. 'If you didn't put your name down there, sir,' says he, 'you wouldn't be no son of mine,' says he. But I was standing where I could see a tear fall from old Mr. Beasley's eye."

"I tell you my heart was sad after that, and more than ever I loved to see Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry come down the path under the wild grapevines, only I knew Miss Martha was walking between them."

"Thus came the next to the last day they were going to be at home, and Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry were lying in the grass right there looking at the old White river that was drifting, drifting—always drifting southward and never coming back."

"By and by Mr. Joe says, 'Henry,' says he, 'tomorrow we're going to the war. Maybe we will never fish in the White river or gather grapes or wild cherries off these hills together any more,' says he, 'and there shouldn't be any shadows between us, Henry,' says he. 'Let's go to Martha, you and me, and ask her which she thinks the most of. Like as not,' says he, 'she ain't caring very much for either of us.'"

"Mr. Henry smiled at that and took Mr. Joe's hand. Then, arm in arm, they went up the path, and there wasn't any shadows between them after that—there never was any more."

"Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry found Miss Martha in the meadow back of her father's house, and Mr. Joe explained what they had come to find out."

"Now, of course Miss Martha knew very well what her answer should be, but she pretended not to be interested. So she glanced regularly first at one, then at the other, the sunset creeping into her cheeks and the light of all the stars creeping into her eyes. Then she plucked a daisy out of the clover and said she would let the daisy decide. And with that she pulled off the petals, saying, 'Joe, Henry, Joe, Henry,' like that. And the last petal was Henry."

"Mr. Joe didn't say a word. He just took Mr. Henry's hand in both of his a minute, then he crossed the meadow and went down the road leaving Mr. Henry staring after him."

"Miss Martha's eyes were staring after him, and she was up and running after him, but she didn't catch him."

"Nothing much, Aunt Becky," says he. "Only just a pain in here." Then I knew it was Miss Martha.

"Where's Mr. Joe today, Mr. Henry?" I says.

"He's over to Miss Martha's," says he.

Then she plucked a daisy out of the clover and said she would let the daisy decide. And with that she pulled off the petals, saying, 'Joe, Henry, Joe, Henry,' like that. And the last petal was Henry."

"Mr. Joe didn't say a word. He just took Mr. Henry's hand in both of his a minute, then he crossed the meadow and went down the road leaving Mr. Henry staring after him."

"Miss Martha's eyes were staring after him, and she was up and running after him, but she didn't catch him."

"Nothing much, Aunt Becky," says he. "Only just a pain in here." Then I knew it was Miss Martha.

"Where's Mr. Joe today, Mr. Henry?" I says.

"He's over to Miss Martha's," says he.

"After awhile Mr. Joe came down the path, whistling."

"Look, Henry!" says he. "I've been looking for you," says he, walking over to where Mr. Henry was sitting on an old log. But Mr. Henry did not answer. He just got up and walked away with his arms folded and his face white and left Mr. Joe standing with dumb lips and scarlet face.

A few days after that I saw Miss Martha and Mr. Henry drifting down the river in a boat. Miss Martha was sitting in the stern looking down at her hands trailing in the water, and Mr. Henry, with his oars crossed in his lap, was leaning forward gazing into the Martha's face.

Pretty soon Mr. Joe came along. I knew he had seen Miss Martha and Mr. Henry, but he never let on, only he was whistling, as usual.

Well, about this time the war came and broke out. Old Judge Singleton was a powerful speaker in his day, and General Beasley got on his white horse, all fixed out in the uniform he wore when he fought with Sherman, and went galloping up and down, calling on all the men folks to

upon the platform and signed his name to the enlistment was Mr. Joe.

"The tears came to my eyes when I saw that, for Mr. Joe was all that the old judge had left, and the judge's head was like that hillside when the wild cherries are in bloom—that white."

"The judge grew pale and leaned on the table for a moment. Then he took Mr. Joe's hand and says, 'God bless you, my boy.' And that was all he said."

"When Mr. Henry saw what Mr. Joe had done he climbed upon the platform as quickly as he could and says, 'I'm going along with Joe.'"

"The old general was used to war, and the fire of battle was burning in his veins. 'If you didn't put your name down there, sir,' says he, 'you wouldn't be no son of mine,' says he. But I was standing where I could see a tear fall from old Mr. Beasley's eye."

"I tell you my heart was sad after that, and more than ever I loved to see Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry come down the path under the wild grapevines, only I knew Miss Martha was walking between them."

"Thus came the next to the last day they were going to be at home, and Mr. Joe and Mr. Henry were lying in the grass right there looking at the old White river that was drifting, drifting—always drifting southward and never coming back."

"By and by Mr. Joe says, 'Henry,' says he, 'tomorrow we're going to the war. Maybe we will never fish in the White river or gather grapes or wild cherries off these hills together any more,' says he, 'and there shouldn't be any shadows between us, Henry,' says he. 'Let's go to Martha, you and me, and ask her which she thinks the most of. Like as not,' says he, 'she ain't caring very much for either of us.'"

"Mr. Henry smiled at that and took Mr. Joe's hand. Then, arm in arm, they went up the path, and there wasn't any shadows between them after that—there never was any more."

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

TO MAKE SHEDDING BALLS.

Not every housekeeper knows how to prepare scouring balls. The following is a good method. Mix fuller's earth and strong soda of white castile soap to a stiff paste, then work this into balls about the size of hen's eggs and allow them to dry.

To use, first remove all surface dirt with a brush after shaking and sponge the soiled places lightly with tepid water.

Then rub gently, but very thoroughly, with one of these balls. The garment should be hung in a dry place for a day or so, then the dry earth brushed off. After this it is ready for pressing.

Another way of making these balls is to use five ounces of pipeclay, three ounces of powdered French chalk and three ounces of alcohol. This paste should be molded into small balls and set aside to dry.

Sweet Sandwiches are new and may be made from thin slices of stale or rather tough cake, having a layer of ground or pounded nuts or nuts pounded fine in a mortar and held to the cake by the thinnest possible layer of jam, marmalade or jelly.

A bit of preserved ginger placed at intervals on the slices before they are laid together is delicious. Marshmallows cut in quarters may also be used.

When sandwiches of different kinds are served on the same plate they should be so arranged and marked that the guest may choose according to his or her taste.

A sweet sandwich having cherries inside should have a half a cherry on one corner, and that with preserved ginger should be similarly marked with ginger.

Handy Sewing Chair. For the benefit of her sisters an Indiana woman has invented a sewing chair that will save much jumping up and down to look for misplaced articles and searching for lost trimmings. The space beneath the seat of the chair is built in, and one side of the boxlike structure is on hinges and opens like a door. Fastened to this door are arms, which support two baskets, in which may be kept needles, thread, scissors, etc., and materials that may be needed for the work in hand. Only women who do much sewing can appreciate how much time and trouble will be saved by this simple device, which keeps everything in one place and within easy reach. The chair can be fitted up inside with any little improvements which may suggest themselves to the owner's mind, such as strips or loops on the side to hold pins, needles or scissors.

A Good Salad Vinegar. To add variety to salad dressings the following vinegar is an addition to the store of accessories. Mash two cloves of garlic, grate one medium sized onion, add quarter of a teaspoonful of celery seed, a bruised whole clove and four bay leaves broken in bits. Cover with a quart of good vinegar and tie a piece of paraffin paper over the top. Shake every day for three weeks, then strain off and bottle for convenient table use.

Dented Furniture. To take the bruises out of furniture, wet the part with warm water. Fold a piece of brown paper five or six times, soak it and then lay the pad thus formed on the bruised wood. Apply a hot iron to the wet paper and let it remain till the moisture has evaporated. After two or three applications the dent or bruise will disappear, the wood once more having a smooth surface.

Housekeeper's Hands. To keep the hands white and smooth while doing your own housework always wash them well with a good mild soap. After drying apply a few drops of glycerin and lemon juice mixed. Get about two ounces of glycerin and put into that the juice of half a lemon, then shake it well. Be sure to rub it well into the skin.

Mickery Nut Macaroons. To one whole egg beaten light add a cup sugar and beat well. Add two tablespoonfuls flour and one cup nut meats chopped fine. Grease reversed tin, dust with flour, drop the macaroons on by spoonfuls and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Making New Pillows. In making new pillows have the feather stuff packed in a bag of cheesecloth or thin muslin. Then at any time the filling may be removed for washing, and even the feathers may be washed in the inner bag without flying all over the house.

Mrs. McRaney's Experience. Mrs. M. McRaney, Prentiss, Miss., writes: "I was confined to my bed for three months with kidney and bladder trouble, and was treated by two physicians and failed to get relief. No human tongue can tell how I suffered, and I had given up hope of ever getting well until I began taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. After taking two bottles I felt like a new person, and feel it my duty to tell suffering women what Foley's Kidney Remedy did for me." Upchurch Drug Co.

Presence of Mind in an Unpleasant Situation. Greatness is thrust upon some individuals, patriotism on others. When the patriot does not belong to one's own country the situation may prove embarrassing. Such it was in the case of Agostino Polidori, the great-grandfather of Dante Gabriel Rossetti. The incident is given in a life of the poet by his brother, Polidori, an Italian, was in Paris at the taking of the Bastille in 1789. He tells the story of his unexpected prominence and his extrication from the uncomfortable position.

I was passing by the Palais Royal while the populace was running to assault the fortress, and, having encountered a highly powdered wigman with a rusty sword raised aloft, I, not expecting any such thing and hardly conscious of the act, had the sword handed to me as he cried aloud: "Take it, citizen! Fight for your country!"

I had no fancy for such an enterprise, so, finding myself sword in hand, I at once cast about for some way to get rid of it and, bettering my instruction from the man of powder, I stuck it into the hand of the first unarmed person I met.

"Take it, citizen!" I repeated. "Fight for your country!" Then I passed on and returned home.

NEED HER GLANCE WANDER TO WHERE MR. JOE STOOD.

both of his she bowed her head and her glance wander to where Mr. Joe was talking with his father.

"I saw clearly how things were, and I saw my duty as the Lord day to understand it."

One day when Mr. Joe came down the path under the wild grapevines and sat down in the door to talk with his father, Miss Martha had been regarding him, and I saw his face brighten suddenly, as the old White river brightens when the clouds part and let the sunshine tumble down.

"That gave me courage, so I said, 'Mr. Joe,' says I, 'why don't you go courting Miss Martha?'"

"Mr. Joe rose up, and there was a look of deep pain on his face, but his lips were pressed tightly together."

"Aunt Becky," he says, "Miss Martha has decided between us." And with that he turned and walked away.

"I told Miss Martha what Mr. Joe said. She didn't make any reply, but wandered slowly away down by the river, and I lost sight of her behind the brush over there."

"I followed her and found her lying amid the clover, with her face buried in her arms, the new sunshine falling asleep in her hair and her slim, little body shaking with her sobs."

"I took her in my arms and dried her tears and helped her back to my cabin."

"Then I heard some one whistling and saw Mr. Joe coming down the path. So I told Miss Martha to sit down, and I shut the door and went to meet Mr. Joe and told him there was an old friend in my cabin who wanted to see him."

"Who is it?" he asked, but I says, 'Go in and see, Mr. Joe, and God bless you both,' says I. Then I opened the door, and Mr. Joe went in alone."

"I walked down by the river and sat on the bank, watching the tree limbs bending to kiss the ripples."

"When I returned it was nearly sunset, and when I glanced in at the open door I saw Mr. Joe holding Miss Martha's hands and looking down into her face, and Miss Martha was smiling up into Mr. Joe's face, and in the eyes of each I saw a great tenderness. There was a deep stillness in the room, but down somewhere by the river there was a snapper's stinging."

Aunt Becky arose and, going to the door, drained the water off the potatoes.

The child smiled. "I am so glad," she said. Then she arose hurriedly. "But I hear mamma calling. Good-by, Aunt Becky."

"A headache is a dreadful thing," says he. "I have known it to afflict a whole household."

"What, at once?"

"Must have been epidemic or something of that kind."

"Oh, no, not at all. It was dad's head that ached."

Paint corrugated cardboard is used for packing and is nailed on both sides with a nail and fit it when dried and the such the tacks to the wall so that the smooth surface will run from the room and toward the room and the floor from ceiling to floor level at the wall. At the floor level the wall should be left uncovered and should then be covered with paper hessian or other packing material on which a plain surface is hung and lastly the wall is painted. The skirting boards should be removed while tacking on the paper hessian which should have been cut at such its length made into corrugations at intervals of twelve inches but it is at twelve inches in the wall. How to Cure Liver Trouble

Some people imagine when they feel a bowels or a bilious that they have to do is to take physic. But this is a mistake. The bowels and keeping your bowels regular are two very different matters. The bowels are not the seat of a violent attack, and do not require the use of cathartics, the seat of regular movements. A cathartic is an emergency remedy, but never a permanent one. If the bowels do not move regularly there is a reason for it. It may be due to a cold, or to a change of climate, or to a dose of medicine, tired feeling, with a headache, the dull head and heavy eyelids, or to a change of diet. Stimulated bowels and touches of cathartics will not do. The bowels gently move on their own. It is time to take a medicine when the bowels are not moving, and the strengthening of the liver and the stomach is necessary to digest the food.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does this. It takes a few doses and soon the bowels begin moving. The appetite and perfect digestion, and you feel like your old self. It is good for pain, it acts smoothly, it is pleasant to take, Wm. H. Caldwell, New York, N. Y., U. S. A.

With indignation and liver trouble, I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin with fine results. It is a perfect remedy. Now feel as strong as I did formerly. Wm. H. Caldwell, N. Y., U. S. A.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the best remedy I ever used for my complaint or constipation. I have used it in Washington, Ind. Ter., and I have used it in New York, N. Y., U. S. A. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin gave me back my health. I am a doctor and I can say it is a perfect remedy. Wm. H. Caldwell, N. Y., U. S. A.

Lesson 11—Fourth Quarter, Fall
Dec. 6, 1902.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings iii, 4-15.
Memory Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, Prov. ix, 16—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearna.

In some Bible studies there are some words which we'll wait to carry with us through those studies, and in this lesson and the next we should remember these words: "Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David, his father, and his kingdom was established greatly." "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David, his father, and prophesied, and all Israel obeyed him" (1 Kings ii, 12; 1 Chron. xiii, 23). Another name was given to Solomon at his birth with which some do not seem to be familiar. It is written, "The Lord loved him, and He sent by the hand of Nathan, the prophet, and he called his name Jedidiah (beloved of the Lord) because of the Lord" (1st Sam. xii, 24, 25). The name Solomon, which means "peaceable," was given to him before he was born (1 Chron. xxii, 9, margin). How beautifully suggestive the two names—beloved of the Lord, a man of rest, the Lord giving peace and quietness in his days. How sadly he failed to let God work out his plan! How perfectly it will be wrought out in the true Son of David, of whom God said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased" (Matt. iii, 17; xvi, 5).

How strangely do the first three verses of our lesson chapter read in the light of God's commands to have no fellowship with the heathen nations or their idols, affinity with Pharaoh, king of Egypt; marrying his daughter; loving the Lord and walking in His statutes, yet sacrificing and burning incense in high places! It sounds a good deal like the worldly combinations of today, which must so grieve the Spirit, for we are plainly told that whosoever will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God (Jas. iv, 4). In these days the tabernacle and the brazen altar were at Gibeon, but the ark of the covenant was in the tent at Jerusalem which David had pitched for it. And to Gibeon Solomon and his people went to offer burnt offerings unto the Lord (verse 4; I Chron. xii, 29; II Chron. i, 1-6). All the offerings appointed by God were typical of the one great offering of His Son, who by the sacrifice of Himself put away the sins of all who receive Him. Only by Him have we access to God, and only by Him can we truly worship God or serve Him, and for, His sake God does all things for His people, notwithstanding their unworthiness.

So we read that in that night Jehovah appeared to Solomon, and God said unto him, "Ask what I shall give thee" (verse 5; If Chron. i. 7). God is the Creator, to whom nothing is too hard or wonderful (Jer. xxxii, 17), and Jehovah is God coming to man in grace and a righteousness which He Himself gives by virtue of His great sacrifice. He is the same one who when here in humiliation said to a poor blind man, "What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee" (Luke xviii, 41).

 He said to the apostles and through them to us: "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you." " whatsoever ye shall ask in My name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask anything in My name, I will do it" (John xvi, 7; xiv, 13, 14). There is a word also in this connection in Isa.
 xiv, 11, "Concerning the work of my hands, command ye me," in reference to which the late John Wilkinson once wrote me, "It is strong language, and though it is the Jews' by interpretation, we can take it by application, and I take it in the modern sense of 'your wishes are commands to me; press your desires and hold me to my word.'" Here is something we seem to know little about, for we are so lacking in oneness with Him in His purpose

In reply to God's great offer Solomon rehearsed the facts concerning the present situation, the great mercy and kindness that had been shown to his father David, his own position as king over so great a people by the grace of God and the great need of wisdom and understanding to rule so great a people, and he said, "Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may go out and come in before this people" (verses 6-8; II Chron. 1, 8-10). Judah and Israel were said to be many as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, dwelling safely, every man under his vine and under his fig tree, and so God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the seashore, making him to excel all the wisdom of the east and of Egypt, so that people came from all kings to hear

Because of Solomon's request God not only gave him¹ what he asked, but also riches and honor, which he had not asked (verses 10-14: II Chron. 1, 11, 12), making us think of Eph. 3, 20, 21, and of Him who, speaking of the queen of Sheba's visit to Solomon, said: "A greater than Solomon is here" (Matt. 12, 42). He is the wisdom of God and has said to us by His Spirit, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him" (I Cor. 1, 34, 35; Jas. 1, 5). He is ready to be our wisdom for every day, every hour, every moment, every season. Every person we have to deal with.

The word came of fright and about the best case I ever came across," said the detective. "was a chap who was traveling through the middle west for a firm one spring. met him on the train and found he played a good game of whist, so with two other men we made up a little game. He was my partner and was a very silent fellow. He didn't ever remember what the game was, which was unusual. With him he had a suitcase of very superior make, and the way he kept his eye on that all the time, smacking little nervous peeks at it every two minutes, led me to suspect that he was a jewelry man and had a big lot of valuable stones in the grip, though I couldn't imagine why a man should take such chances carrying such things in a suitcase.

"Well, the railroad smash came—was my latest one, by the way—just as my partner was on his way back to the game from having gone to get some water. In all the excitement I distinctly noted the yell he let out. It was the finest piece of vocal work of that kind I had ever heard. As the car sort of crumpled up he made a dive toward us, and I figured that he was thinking of his catch.

"My luck was with me, and I found a way out with nothing worse than a scalp wound and a collection of bumps. Pretty soon he came crawling out after me. He wasn't hurt, so far as I could see, but he was whiter than a sheet. I gave him a swig of whiskey from my flask and told him to brace up. He took an awful hooker and then began to twist his fingers and kind of moan:

"My match! My match! My match! My match!"

"Well, what's the matter with your match?" I said.

"It's in there," he said, and I thought by his tone he was going to cry. "It's in there where I can't get at it."

"Say, you make me tired," I said.

"You ought to be mighty thankful to be out yourself without worrying about any match."

"I'll have to go in after it," said he, looking around kind of wild and prancing like a hegg with sore feet.

"Not on your life," said I. "Everything's loose in there, and the whole thing may collapse at any minute, and then where'd you be? Besides, the cards are dealt, and the other end—"

"'My God!' he said. 'As for? That settles it. I've got to get that match. Then, if I die for it.' And he actually tore his hair. I'd never seen it done before, except on the stage, but he did it.

"'Oh, take a brace,' I said, getting disgusted with the man. 'I guess the fire won't do much damage. If it's diamonds'—

"'Diamonds!' he said. 'Man, it's dynamite, enough of it to blow us all into the sky!'

"'Dynamite!' I yelled. 'What are you a scientist?'

"No. I'm a dynamite agent," he said. "Don't keep me here talking. I've got to go in. I've got to do it. There's no other way. There may be people in the wreckage, and if that stuff goes off—"

"Never mind explaining it," I said. "Go in, and the Lord help you!"

"That's the sort of thing that takes nerve. I don't believe I could have done it. He stopped down and crawled in there, and I watched and waited for a week or so, as it seemed, and pretty soon he came out looking like a dead man and bringing that satchel between his teeth like a dog, because he needed both hands to crawl with. Well, we escorted that satchel across two lots and buried it in a furrow and put a stone over it before we went

"It happened that the fire was put out before it reached the place where the satchel had been. Why on earth the stuff didn't explode and blow us all to flinders when the crash came is more than I know or the agent either. He said dynamite was always doing things and failing to do things in the most inexplicable way and that was what made the life of a dynamite agent one long round of excitement. He never dared tell what it was he had in the satchel, he said, because the railroads wouldn't carry him if they knew.

"He went back and dug up his traveling infernal machine and walked with it to the nearest town, and that's the last I saw of him or want to see, though he certainly did have good nerve. Ever since then when I've seen a man with a satchel that he seemed to think a heap of I've quietly moved into the next car."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Library Advertising.
Once upon a time a certain painter (not a latter day Raphael or Rembrandt, but just a humble artist in clapboard and wainscot decoration) entered a public library not a thousand miles from Springfield, Mass., and, being "out of a job," spent some time browsing among the books. To his joy and surprise, he discovered works bearing on his trade. Although he had been a card holder for years, he had never before had a suspicion that such books were there on the shelves waiting to be drawn. The painter's glad astonishment gave a hint to the librarian. Mimeographed lists of available works on different trades and industries were circulated, the local newspapers were provided upon a free publicity in theme and other accessories of the library, and as a result the circulation of the library increased 30 per cent in one year. All of which goes to show that a library may be a very profitable advertising medium for the advertiser who knows how to use it.—Chas. D. D.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
(From the Toronto, Ont. Star.)

The broad stream of Americans pouring into Canada viewed with alarm" by observers, who feared that Canadian West would be overrun, and would lose with Imperial and even Canadian sentiment. Now of quite a different kind raised by the New York Times says that fewer than 7,379 of Uncle Sons changed their alleg-last year, "and it is now that the total of citizens we represented to Canada has 40,000 in the last half years. Before that time could hardly have been possible, it has seemed natural for other nationalities American-born, but so con-to the course of nature for Americans to forswear their country."

The Times is Americans do not for-their country in becoming Canadian citizens.)
The explanation is simple.
Many of the newcomers brought up in the be-Canada was a down-trod-wherein liberty with-under the shadow of mon-and aristocratic institu-free as their own country, that their change of home little more than a remov-Ohio to Minnesota. On their early life, the condi-West, and that the new-would be imbued with national ideas, that fear be speedily dispelled by acquaintance. The Amer-farmer is usually a hard-practical fellow, with a tendency of conservatism in character. He wants to farm the most modern way, to make by farming, to take plenty payment out of life, to give women folk all the comforts conveniences that are avail-and to have the best possieducation for his children.
He is not quarrel with institu-that afford him these advantages.

His patriotism, American or Canadian, suffers by the inter-ing of population, and the knowledge thereby gained?
No patriotic citizen of Can-of the United States will that the people of the two nations are learning to understand each other. The development of each country, the nation-alization of each country, will be furthered by the clearing up of those misunderstandings which elsewhere create danger.

An English writer once proposed an arrangement by which the British Empire and in the United States at the same time.
The idea seems fanciful to-day, but may be realized in the future. Why should international relations be regarded as absolutely fixed and rigid, and incapable of development and progress?
Twenty years ago the relations now existing between the United States and the self-governing colonies would have been inconceivable. A new conception of international relations is being developed on this continent, and the United States and the colonies are side by side for thousands of miles with unguarded frontiers. The ease with which the British Empire is renounced and taken up may give a hint to some old fashioned people, but it may be only one of the features of a new order of international relations.

Newton, Dec. 4, 1908.
Editor Banner—It has been my desire for some time to communicate to my friends in Chilton county through the columns of your paper, but continued ill health and much difficult work has prevented my writing.

The Baptist Collegiate Institute is filled almost to overflow this year.
Besides many of Alabama's brave sons and noble daughters we have representatives from Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Oklahoma and some other states. The B. C. I. stands firmly on principles that far surpass the ideal of any other school in the state. The pupils receive assistance, training and development here that cannot be had in every school. The aim of our worthy principal is to unfold that noble talent hidden beneath the rays and dirt of a country child; to develop such characters as will stand the wild storms of life, and to utilize every talent and every nature that comes into our presence. The great aim of the school is to lead the mind of Sunday school work is a decade ahead of the present ideal of most of our Sunday school workers. This question, I hope to deal with more fully in the future, so I ask all who are interested in Sunday school to keep an eye on the column of our excellent Banner.

Yours most sincerely,
JEROME O. WILLIAMS.

Mt. Moriah.

The health of this community is very good at present.

The Sunday school is progressing nicely under the management of Mr. Bart Shaw.

Mr. J. E. Bledsoe is at home with his family at present, but will return to his work in Birmingham Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cobb spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents, Mr. J. E. Bledsoe.

We are sorry to say that Mrs.
Callie Lowery is on the sick list,
but hope she will soon be up.

Miss Pearl Bledsoe spent Sunday with Miss Minnie Skipper.

Miss Nellie Cobb spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Callie Lowery.

Misses Pearl Bledsoe and Minnie and Annie Skipper, Nellie Cobb and Messrs. Cliff Lowery and Ver-nor Shaw were the guests of Mrs.
Callie Lowery Saturday night.

Miss Pearl Bledsoe left for Birmingham Tuesday.

Miss Annie Skipper spent Saturday with her cousin, Miss Minnie Skipper.

Mr. J. E. Bledsoe's family will move away after Christmas and they will be greatly missed.

Remember boys, and don't drink whiskey on the Lord's birthday.

I will close by saying a happy Christmas to all and success to the Banner and its many readers.

THE CLANTON BANK
CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready
to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

Unlucky For His Side.

"So you cling to that childish superstition about thirteen being unlucky," said the traveler.

"Yes," answered the other. "Can't get away from it."

"But how completely it is disproved. This glorious country started with thirteen colonies."

"Very true. But I am an Englishman," Washington Star.

Providence Sunday School

Furthermore it weakens the will power and destroys the keen sense of right and wrong by impairing the mind. While in conclusion on the moral side of the theme we rejoice to say that in no moral movement of the country are the religious forces so well united. The saloon business may promote the financial interests, that is occasionally, while at that, on the basis of breaking hearts, rendering children fatherless, and sending souls to everlasting woe. Then, "what doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Yet, we admit that the saloon business brings revenue to the state, but at what price? Nothing less than that of souls. While it has raised the revenue, on the other hand it has broken mothers hearts, separated wives and husbands and sent thousands to eternal punishment. Then which is the better condition? As the brain is the seat of consciousness, memory, will, affections and emotion, or in other words, the mind, we can readily see the specific effect on the morale. Alcohol deprives the delicate tissues of the brain of its nourishment, thereby throwing the mind into a frenzied state, perverting the judgement and, as heretofore stated, destroying the keen sense of right and wrong. It also overcomes the reason faculties, says Dr. Burrows, trained by years of experience in the science of law, robs of his valor, and the man of God of his sanctity. Drunkenness pollutes and throws society into an unsettled state, and as a whole, is entirely detrimental to its unity.

As to God's attitude toward this, he never approves of such, but is always merciful and willing to forgive and forget. As all these evils generally dependent on the first drink, then how necessary abstinence. Then like vice, "tis a monster of so frightful a mien" that to be hated needs but to be seen, but seen too often, familiar with its face, first we pity, then endure and then embrace.

Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. Most often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have another effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and I have used them for years. They are the only pills we have had to use them for six weeks ago I heard an old friend was down with La Grippe. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills and she was up and about in a short time. They helped her without any harm. Last winter my husband was taken with pleurisy, both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and went to bed and was all right in a few days."

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and we authorize him to return the price of first package (and if it fails to benefit you).

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson XI.—Fourth Quarter, For Dec. 13, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings viii, 1-11. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Ps. cxlii, 1—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

If we take the Christmas lesson next week instead of the story of Solomon's downfall, this will be our last Old Testament study for two years to come, as 1909 will be given to the Acts and the Epistles and 1910 to the Gospel by Matthew. May the Lord therefore give us a special blessing in this meditation. The lesson verses assigned tell of the bringing of the ark of the covenant from the tent which David had pitched for it to the holy of holies in the temple which Solomon had just finished, and they brought the tabernacle and all its furniture from Gibeon, not for use, but to care for it somewhere in the temple (verse 4). All the temple furniture was new and grand and on a larger scale except the ark of the covenant, mentioned seven times in our lesson verses, and which contained at this time only the two tables of stone which Moses had made and on which God had written the Ten Commandments (verse 9), although at one time it seems to have contained the golden pot of manna and Aaron's rod that budded (Heb. ix, 4). They made no mistake this time in having it carried in any other way than that of God's appointment (verses 3, 4).

When the priests had come out from setting the ark in its place, then the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord, and no man could stand in His presence (verse 11). "The fire came down from heaven and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices, and the glory of the Lord filled the house" (II Chron. vii, 1). At first God walked with man in Eden, then in a tent with Israel, at the time of our lesson in the temple, later in the body prepared for Him, even in Christ; now in the bodies of all believers, for we are His temple (I Cor. vi, 19, 20; II Cor. vi, 16). And the time is coming when the whole earth shall be filled with His glory and there shall be neither adversary nor evil occurrent (Num. xiv, 21; Isa. xi, 9; Hab. ii, 14; I Kings, v, 4). Then shall the holy city, the new Jerusalem, have descended from God out of heaven, of which the seer said, "I saw no temple therein, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." "The glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof" (Rev. xxi, 22, 23). Then shall the temple of God be opened in heaven and there shall be seen in His temple the ark of His testament (Rev. xi, 19).

Very many are the interesting facts concerning the temple of Solomon and the lessons to be learned from it. It was built on Mount Moriah, on the place which David purchased from Araunah, the Jebusite, the former reminding us of the death and resurrection of Isaac and the latter of satisfaction by blood and the Lord's word, "It is enough" (Gen. xlii, 1; II Sam. xxiv, 1; II Chron. iii, 1). The house was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was in building (I Kings vi, 7). The foundation, like that of the tabernacle, suggests atonement, for every board of the tabernacle stood on sockets of silver obtained from the ransom money of the people (Ex. xxx). As we saw recently in Isa. xxviii, 16; I Cor. iii, 11, there is no possible standing ground for any sinner but the foundation which God has provided, even the precious blood of Christ. When we are redeemed by that precious blood, then we are stones for the building, but here in the quarry where we were found we are being made ready for our places in the building, and the great Master Workman (Prov. viii, 30; R. V.) is too wise to spend too much or too little labor on any stone. Let us therefore trust Him for grace to say under all circumstances, "This is fitting me for my place in His building."

Within the building all was covered with gold and cedar. "There was no stone seen" (I Kings vi, 15). The Lord alone must be exalted. No flesh shall glory in His presence. Note for study the cherubim and palm trees carved on walls and doors, the pillars Jachin and Boaz in the porch of the temple, the two large olive wood cherubim covered with gold which in the holy of holies overshadowed the ark with its cherubim of pure gold, the 480 years from the exodus until Solomon began to build the temple, the seven years in which he was building it, the thirty-four years until it was first plundered, the 153,000 strangers who helped.

Study the prayer of dedication, each section of it, and notice I Kings viii, 43, 60, "That all the people of the earth may know thy name, may know that the Lord is God, to fear Thee as do Thy people Israel." Note especially verse 56, "There hath not failed one word of all His good promise which He promised by the hand of Moses, His servant." Compare Josh. xxiii, 14. Notice the word of the Lord to Solomon concerning his prayer, "I have hallowed this house which thou hast built to put My name there forever, and Mine eyes and Mine heart shall be there perpetually" (I Kings ix, 3). That being true of a mass of wood and stone, we who are living temples may surely appropriate the words and rejoice greatly in I Pet. v, 7.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Who is Not-A-Guessing Game.

A good guessing game is called "Who is Not-A-Guessing Game?" It is played by any number of persons and is suited to both old and young. Let the leader give a brief sketch of some famous man or woman and at the close ask, "Who is he?" or "Who is she?" The first player to guess correctly scores one point, and then he gives a similar sketch. The game goes on thus as long as desired, and the player having the largest score at the end wins. It would add to the interest if a prize be offered, say a book of some kind, preferably a biography of some celebrated person.

The game may be varied by telling an anecdote of some famous person, living or dead, but it must be agreed at the beginning of the game whether the sketches and anecdotes are to be of the past or the present. For illustration, if it is the past the leader might say, "He was born on an island, played there when a boy, left his home for another land, won his victories and had himself crowned and finally died on an island." Of course the answer to this is quite easy—Napoleon.

If the game is of anecdotes there will be no trouble in finding many about celebrated people, beginning with the "little hatchet" of our colonial days.

The Toad and the Grasshopper.

"If you please, sir," said the toad to the grasshopper, "you're so unceremonious that you are almost impertinent."

"I impertinent?" said the grasshopper. "How do you make that out?"

"I'm forty years older than you, and you hurt yourself at me as though you were my equal."

"Forty years, and pray what have you been up to all this time?"

"I was shut up, sir, in yonder stone."

"Yes, and what did you accomplish?"

"Nothing," replied the toad.

"Then, sir, you might be my superior in years, but in nothing else. If you had used your life to some advantage there'd be a reason, but now—"

And the grasshopper sniffed the air.

"I'm only one week old, but I have chirped and hopped and hopped and chirped—and well, what's the use of wasting time on a lazy thing like you? I have work to do, so goodbye."

And with another sniff the grasshopper left the poor little toad on the roadside and went his way.

The Eyes of Your Goldfish.

Have you an aquarium or a globe containing goldfish? If you have, take a hint for their comfort, perhaps for their lives. Fish, you know, have no eyelids, and they cannot therefore shield their eyes from the light. This causes suffering, from which they vainly try to escape by dashing round and round until fairly worn out. Many of them die from sheer want of rest. All this may be avoided by placing in the aquarium or globe a little grove of rocks or a few water plants. If you use the plants put in enough to secure a moderately dense growth, so that the little captives may enjoy the shade they afford.—Chicago News.

"Merrie England."

Children will all be surprised to hear, no doubt, that the word "merrie" as here used did not originally mean cheerful or gay. According to Dr. Edwards, a good authority in such things, it was first "mere," probably from an Anglo-Saxon adjective meaning excellent, illustrious, renowned. When a chief addressed his followers, calling them "merrie men," he did not mean men of mirth, but men of renown. When we speak of "merrie England" now, however, we give the adjective the sense of our "merry."

A Cow.

A cow is a useful animal. It has a leg in each corner. It chews gum all day. The cow eats grass and gives butter. It has two horns which it blows every now and then. It sounds like moo. Cows' bones are used for soap. Its hoofs are used to glue with. I guess that is all I know about cows.—Dottie in Philadelphia Ledger.

A Revised Version.

Teddy was saying his prayers at bedtime one night not long ago. Kneeling down at his mother's knee, the sleepy little fellow began: "Now I lay me down to sleep. I pray the Lord my soul to keep." He paused. "If"—his mother prompted—"if he hollers, let him go; enle, menle, minle, mo."

My Geography.

I wish a great white ship would come And carry me, oh, so far, Where palm trees grow and simooms blow.

And Arab caravans wind and go And the green, shady oases are. Suppose that this magic boat should sail, Oh, sail with us leagues away!

We could see ice floes and Eskimos And the northern lights all gold and rose Where the sun shines by night and by day.

I think if I really saw the world Geography would seem true. But do they mean that Mexico's green And England yellow? And I have seen

In my atlas that Holland is blue. Oh, dear, how I wish that ship would sail And teach my lesson to me!

For, though I study so hard in my book, And even when at the map I look, I can't learn my geography!

Kodol

For Dyspepsia and Indigestion

If you Suffer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gas on the Stomach, Belching, Sour Stomach, Heart-burn, etc., a little Kodol will Relieve you almost Instantly

Kodol supplies the same digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach. Being a liquid, it starts digestion at once.

Kodol not only digests your food, but helps you enjoy every mouthful you eat.

You need a sufficient amount of good, wholesome food to maintain strength and health.

But, this food must be digested thoroughly, otherwise the pains of indigestion and dyspepsia are the result.

When your stomach cannot do its work properly, take something to help your stomach. Kodol is the only thing that will give the stomach complete rest.

Why? Because Kodol does the same work as a strong stomach, and does it in a natural way.

So, don't neglect your stomach. Don't become a chronic dyspeptic. Keep your stomach healthy and strong by taking a little Kodol. You don't have to take Kodol all the time. You only take it when you need it.

Kodol is perfectly harmless.

DEADLY POISONS.

One Whiff of Pure Prussic Acid is Sufficient to Kill.

The discoverer of prussic acid was instantly killed by inhaling one whiff of his own handiwork.

*Pure prussic acid is never sold or handled. The smell of it is always fatal. It kills not in three minutes or half an hour, but the instant it enters the lungs as a gas. The mixture ordinarily sold as prussic acid is 98 parts water to two parts of the drug. Even in this form it is very deadly. A 20 per cent mixture of the acid would kill nearly as quickly as if pure.

Atropine, though it has no harmful odor, is so deadly that as much of it as would adhere to the end of a moistened forefinger would instantly cause death. Cyanide of potassium has a pleasant smell, which is not injurious, but a small quantity swallowed kills at once. Pure ammonia if inhaled would cause death almost as quickly as prussic acid.

When a carboy of nitric acid is broken some one has to suffer. It will burn wood, eat through iron plates and destroy whatever it touches. Such an accident once happened in an acid factory. Every one ran away, leaving the acid to amuse itself by setting fire to things. Soon it was seen that the building would be destroyed and hundreds of people thrown out of work, and four men volunteered to put out the fire in the acid room. They succeeded and came out all right. Five hours later all were dead.

Foley's Orino Laxative cures chronic constipation and stimulates the liver. Orino regulates the bowels so they will act naturally and you do not have to take purgatives continuously. Upchurch Drug Co.

A LIVE COAL TRICK.

Teaches Natural Law, Yet Has All the Appearance of Magic.

No one would suppose that it is possible to hold a glowing coal on a piece of linen or cotton without burning the cloth, but that such can be done is easy for any one to prove, and at the same time the experiment teaches an important natural law. Every child knows that the telephone and telegraph wires are made of copper because that metal is a good conductor of heat and electricity, which is only another form of heat. If a poker is heated in the fire you pick up a cloth to hold the outer end, although it has not been in the fire, because experience has taught you that the heat is conducted through the metal from the fire to the outer end.

This experiment with the flaming coal is based upon this principle and the additional one that linen and cotton are poor conductors of heat. Take a globe of copper and draw a piece of cloth tightly over it so that there is not a wrinkle at the top. If the linen or cotton is closely woven the trick is all the more certain. Then, holding the cloth tightly in place, you can safely put a glowing coal on top of the cloth, and, while it burns fiercely, the cloth will not even be scorched.

The reason is that the great conductivity of the copper draws the heat of the coal before it can burn the cloth. Do not make this experiment with a good handkerchief first, for if the cloth is not tightly drawn it may burn, but take some worthless piece of linen or muslin, and after you are certain of your experience you can astonish your friends who do not know the secret.—Washington Post.

MAN ON THE CORNER
of the Right to Law, and Some of the Best.

And next week brings Christ—the glad time of the year. All is peace and goodwill. At the moment, stock law and other questions are put aside. We have a good time with friends and family. I wish you and all, most heartily, a merry Christmas.

All the storehouses are filled with merchandise for the Christmas trade, and he must be hard pressed who cannot find, among the good things displayed, a present or keepsake for his loved ones. Among those who make specialty of Christmas goods are J. E. Evans, The Florence Store, Upchurch Drug Co., Higgins, the Jeweler, and Clanton Furniture Co.; while J. C. Jones, W. H. Sarsfield & Co., all have extra stocks for the Christmas trade.

Reverend & Jones also have a fine stock for the holiday trade.

Another handsome, large new building is being erected for Dr. N. Johnson, to be occupied by the Upchurch Drug Store when completed. It is a concrete building, the contractor being E. Hopkins. It promises to be a fine addition to Clanton's list of storehouses.

We regret to lose Rev. J. F. Wood who has been removed to the Methodist Conference. The removed gentleman has become greatly beloved during his residence in Clanton, and he will leave him all possible good in his home.

A singular coincidence the church has appointed the F. M. Wood pastor of the Methodist church at Clanton, and our old friend, Rev. F. M. Wood, is pastor of the Baptist church. We have two of almost the same name.

FIDDLERS' CONVENTION
The date of the Fiddlers' Convention, which was to have been held in Montgomery, Dec. 17th, has been changed to the evening of Dec. 21, 1908. As this is for the benefit of the Soldiers Home Mountain Creek a large attendance is expected.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE
The Clanton county Teachers' Institute met at Fairview, with J. Moore in the chair. After devotional exercises by Bro. Moore, the regular order of the institute was taken up. A few but generous words, the address was delivered by John Edwards, who welcomed the teachers to their hearts and homes. The response was made by Bro. Moore.

Following resolutions were adopted: Resolved that we, the teachers of Clanton county, extend our thanks to the people of Clanton for their generous hospitality and especially for the excellent dinner spread and reception to all present. We further resolved that we extend thanks to Bro. W. G. Edwards for his valuable service as secretary.

We further resolved that we manifest the interest manifested by the people in the cause of education. We further resolved that we comply with the resolutions of the county papers for publication. Editor Banner—Will you please to character?

Character is an important subject when we come to think about it, for it is just what we make it.
To form a good character, first, we must always tell the truth; second,
we should use good language;
third, we should never use any strong drink, for it will ruin our character, tear down our bodies and send our souls to eternal punishment. We should always be good, and countless other things that I have not got space to mention this time.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, as capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

A PERSONAL APPEAL

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Upchurch Drug Co.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination.
Both papers $1.00.

Clanton, Route 1.

Please announce in your paper to those whom it may concern that the people are asked to meet at the McKee and Mahan graveyard on Friday, December 18, to clean up the same and to arrange to fence in the graveyard. W. S. Cox.

You should always remember that most cough and cold cures are con-stipating. Yet the most important thing to do when you have a cold is to move the bowels. You cannot promptly cure a cold until you do
this. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup stops the cough by allaying inflammation of the throat and lungs, and it drives the cold from
the system by gently moving the bowels. Children like it for it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold

The State Executive Committee of the Alabama Sunday School Association held a very important business session at the State headquarters, Montgomery, December 10th. There was much business of a routine nature transacted, and several matters of importance to the Sunday School workers of the State decided.

The invitation extended by the Ministers' Union of Montgomery to hold the State Convention in Montgomery, April 27-28-29, 1909 was unanimously accepted. The Convention is to be on the pay-plan, just as it was in Birmingham last year. The committee was of the opinion that the attendance would be even larger than it was in 1907. The General Secretary, D. W. Sims, reported that the services of International General Secretary Ma-rioff Lawrence, could be secured for this date, and other plans were at once set on foot to make this, if possible, the strongest State Convention ever held in Alabama.

Isle of Wight.

The Isle of Wight Inhabitants are not alone in speaking of "going to England" when they leave their own fragment of the kingdom. A patriotic Cornishman also "goes to England" when he crosses the Tamar. Similarly Inhabitants of the Balkan peninsula talk of "going to Europe" when they leave their own corner of the continent—in curious contrast with the people of our own island. We regard ourselves as both of and in "Europe," and accordingly it is only "the continent" that we visit. The record in the splendid isolation line is probably held by that minister of the Cumbres, in the Clyde, who prayed for a blessing upon "the Inhabitants of Great and Little Cumbria and the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland."—

The Tower of Famine.

The Torre della Fame, or Tower of Famine, was noted for its gruesome history. It once stood in Pisa, Italy, but there are now no traces of it.
Count Ugolino della Gherardesca, whom Dante immortalized, was the head of the Guelphs, and because of his tyranny and accredited attempts to place his country in bondage he was antagonized and finally conquered by the chief of the Ghibellines, who imprisoned him, with his two sons and two grandsons, in this tower, the slow method of starvation being employed as the manner of their death. The door of the tower was locked and the keys thrown into the Arno.

The Holy City.

Medina, the holy city, triumphed long ago over all the rivals in various parts of the world which bore the same name, which means simply "city."
Notable among them were the old capital of Malta and Medina Sionia in Spain. The Arabian city was originally known as Yathrib, but owes its later name, El-Medina (the city) or Medinat Bani Allah (the city of the apostle of God), to the Koran. To a good Mohammedan there is only one city "with a big C."

SUBJECT: STOCK LAW

Verona, Dec. 14, 1908.
Editor Banner—On January 6, 1908, Beat five, Chilton county, is to say whether or not we shall have stock law. I for one favor it as I have ever done, granting to all others the right to differ with me. It is, I thank goodness, not a political issue but simply a question of right in which all qualified voters are allowed to be heard at the polls.

I say that nearly or quite all progressive communities have already and are now adopting it by their votes. Whether Beat five will or not, remains to be seen. Since June 15th last I have traveled more than eleven thousand miles, all north and west of this section, and all or nearly so, are living and are happy under its effects. The cry is the "poor widow," "poor man," the "scarcity of water," "oppression of the poor by the rich," all without any foundation at all. Take the Panhandle of Texas as an example, 3,700 feet above sea level, scarcely a drop of water to be found except by wind mill pumps and the few large streams; all stock are confined on the lands of their owner, and yet all doing well—owner, tenants and all are happy. On Oct. 6th, I drove on buggy from one county site to another, thirty miles, not crossing a drop of running water—millions and millions of acres of upon which both owner and tenants are doing well in both person and property without a creek or branch and where they have less than one-third the rain fall of Alabama. Twenty years ago all was range, now all is inclosed. Each man or woman poor or rich and all control all their stock and no fiction.

In Oklahoma (old Indian Territory) as I understand it, no person is allowed to let his stock run at large by law. They do it in some cases, but it is a violation of law never the less as I understand it. Then in all my travels outside this part of Alabama, I find improved stock the rule—while here it is the exception.

Then there is a cry that the poor cows will starve and give no milk, etc. Four years ago you will remember I advertised a four and a-half gallon cow for sale. I had her in as good range as is common hereabout. Her best on range with good feed was four gallons. Kept in my lot without range and on same grade and amount of feed she gave four and a-half gallons. We tried this week in and week out with same result.

Then the opponents of stock law say "The poor tenant will not be allowed pasture." I have never known one to be refused it. I have had pastures for my tenants for years, and they used it too, but not one rail have they or either of them ever made or even laid upon fence except he or they get pay for, and not a penny have I ever had for its use by a tenant.

The time has arrived when the land owner can get a rail split—I speak from experience. Have been trying for past three months to get some one to make me 3 or 4 thousand—all to no effect. Go where you may and you see wire fences; people too lazy to split rails. Yet the hundreds of idlers both white and black. Then you see many who are opposed to stock law, allowing their fences to rot down, and if my $200 bull or $500 cow, both feeling vigorous and good, goes around and looks over or through his old rotten fence, you hear him cry out, "Tall Gullidge to come and get his bull or cow," and yet he will accept his service and be proud of it if he can get it without pay.

Then I want to say our new neighbors in Coosa county are at least to 1 in favor of stock law. Have a letter authorizing me to sign the names of several Coosa county men to the effect that it is almost unanimously indicated by the Coosa county people, at least in Travelers Rest, where they had such a hard struggle to get it. W. C. Harris, Esq. who opposed it so vigorously, has just told me over 'phone he favored it now.

In conclusion will say, I am informed that it is being told, not as a truth but for effect, that I am spending a good deal of time at the Soldiers' home trying to make the old soldiers vote for stock law. To this I want to say, I regret that it has not been my pleasure to go to the home in nearly or quite a year, but I am going and am going to support their intelligence and distribution on behalf of our people, the poor and the old, the stock law. In doing this I feel I will be acting the benefactor of man kind. The old soldiers have fought to be free or die, and I feel that his patriotism to law and right is why he is the just recipient of the stock law, and I feel that they vote with or against my advice I

OBITUARY.

Our hearts were saddened on Dec. 11, when the angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCullough and bore to the realms of immortal glory, the sweet spirit of their son, Thomas, after an illness of two weeks with pneumonia. He was but eighteen years of age, just in the bloom of youth, when the sting of death nipped the beautiful flower of his life, and his spirit took its flight to bloom in that beautiful land where the sun is always bright. He joined the Baptist church at Alpine at the age of 12 years, living up to a Christian's duty, ever willing to work for his Master's cause. He was kind and affectionate to those around him, having a smile and a kind word to cheer the life of others. Dearest loved one, we have laid thee in thy peaceful grave, but thy memory will be cherished until we see thy heavenly face.

JELLYFISH.

In Tropical Waters This Queer Creature is at its Best.

Few marine animals seem at first glance to betray less intelligence than the jellyfish. Up with the tide and down with the tide, carried along by this or that current, moving with the eddy of a backwater blither and blither, the jellyfish has become almost a synonym for helplessness. Scientifically, of course, the popular idea of the jellyfish is wholly mistaken, but it is perhaps only in tropical waters that it is found in the perfection of intelligence.

In the south Pacific round the islands of Polynesia and as far south as the upper portion of the North Island of New Zealand there is a jellyfish that not only knows where it wants to go, but is even provided with a sail which it can and does hoist or lower at will. The sail, like the rest of this curious animal, is almost transparent, but, unlike the body of the fish, which is of the usual gelatinous construction, the sail is a membrane almost as hard as shell. Round about the middle group the navigating fish is often found with a sail measuring five inches across, and it navigates the shallow island waters with the skill of a pilot, steering in and out of snags above and below the surface with unerring skill. Like its cousins in home waters, this navigating jellyfish has the power of stinging its natural enemies, and its sting is fatal to other fish and dangerous to man—London Standard.

Notches.
Editors: Editors—Please allow us a small space in your dear old paper to say a few words.
The health of this town is very good at the present time.
We hear that the Vermont school district has had some bad luck with their school house; the school house was burned down and the children's books were in it and they also "notched."

A certain woman of this community is trying to take the place of the overseers of the public roads, or dering the hands to work the road good. She told them that her husband liked to walk over good roads. She might have thought that she was doing something nice, but I don't think it very nice. She ought to have been in her house doing her house work, that is if she has any to do.

The school at Pilgrims Rest is progressing nicely under the management of Mr. Howard Roper. Mr. Roper is an excellent teacher and we all have learned to love him. Hope he will remain our teacher for many years. The children are all learning fast.

The grave yard at Sardis is to be cleaned off on the 20th day of Dec. Everybody is invited to be there.

Everybody is invited to be at Sardis on Dec. 26th at the Sunday school convention. Come and bring baskets filled with something good to eat.

With best wishes we will ring off hoping this will not reach the waste basket. Love to the Banner and its readers. TWO FRIENDS.

NATURE

Needs an Assistant.

The corn in the farmer's bin does not plant itself. No more can Nature, alone and unaided, always perform the enormous tasks that are so often forced upon her.

Perfect health is the result of study and research. It has taken centuries to understand the human body and to find the best conditions and remedies to develop a healthful equilibrium.

Any one with a sick stomach, sluggish liver, bilious, constipated and nervous is not at all likely to regain their health unaided.

Nature Needs an Assistant.

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator

IS NATURE'S BEST ASSISTANT.

This remedy has proven itself the true and tried friend of the human family by giving prompt relief when taken for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea or other troubles incident to a torpid or inactive liver and a clogged up system.

It is a pleasant remedy of great power, and Nature's assistant in the highest degree. It is made in both liquid and powder form, is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, prompt in action, and leaves no sickening, weakening after effects.

It is a Natural Liver Medicine.

We have received a number of letters from satisfied persons who have been benefited and cured by it.

Editor Banner—Please allow me a few words from this place.

Our school is progressing nicely under the skillful management of Prof. W. E. Kennedy and his assistant teacher, Prof. H. R. Oden.

Mr. H. Burt Malone of Demopolis spent Sunday with home folks. The subject of stock law seems to be the topic of conversation among the energetic farmers of this community.

Mr. Walker is very popular among the girls, as he was out driving with three Sunday afternoon.

Mr. E. Jerome Spee is at home from the Jacksonville Normal to spend the holidays.

A pretty home wedding was that of Mr. Joe L. Malone and Miss Jeanie Lea Broadhead, at the bride's home on Sunday last. The beautiful bride was becomingly attired in a lovely dress of white silk and never looked prettier than on this momentous occasion. Mr. Malone is one of Clanton's most promising young men and to be congratulated on winning such a lovely young lady to share his joys and sorrows. Their many friends wish for them a long and pleasant life together and hope that they may always be as happy as on their wedding day. ANONYMOUS

People are all through gathering and hustling and getting ready for Christmas.

Mr. Cal Lawrence has been very busy hauling lumber from the Sheppard mill; suppose he is going to build.

Mr. J. O. Mize and Mrs. Jennie Hall spent Sunday with Mrs. James Bearden.

Mr. Henry Head had business at Maplesville Wednesday.

We are sorry Mr. James Lawrence is going to move his family out of our midst.

Mr. Ress Chason was all smiles Sunday eve; guess where he went? Grandma Littleton has returned home after a pleasant stay with relatives and friends.

Mr. Eugene McGee's family spent Sunday with their children. Wishing everyone a merry Christmas, we will ring off.

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, as ready to respond to his wants, as capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contentment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

Of the 600,000 miles of railway in the world only about 10 per cent is found in strictly tropical territory and no more than 15 per cent within what would be termed tropical and subtropical areas. Tracks abound in the temperate zone.

You should always remember that most cough and cold cures are constipating. Yet the most important thing to do when you have a cold is to move the bowels. You cannot promptly cure a cold until you do this. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup stops the cough by allaying inflammation of the throat and lungs, and it drives the cold from the system by gently moving the bowels. Children like it for it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

FOR THE CHILDREN

I Suspect—A Card Game.
This game is played by two ber with one to three packs of cards, according to the number playing.
The cards are dealt out, so as to be as evenly distributed as possible. The first player deals a card, face downward, saying out at the same time the number or name of a card, which may or may not be the one he laid down. The next player on the left now plays in like manner, and must call the name of the card next higher than the one named by the first player. The others in turn do the same. Thus if A deals a card, say
"seven," "eight," "nine," "ten,"
"knave," etc. When the king is dealt,
the next player begins at "ace," again. This goes on till some one suspects that the card played is not true to the name called, when he must say,
"I suspect." The suspected person then shows the card he played. If the suspicion is correct the offender must take into his hand all the cards on the table. If it was unfounded the accuser must take the cards. He who first gets rid of all his cards is the winner.

The last card should always be suspected, since there is only one chance in thirteen of its being right. If a player has all four cards of the same number in his hand he is sure to suspect rightly any one whose turn it is to play one of those cards. A skillful player rarely plays the right card unless he thinks some one is watching him and saves as many kinds of cards as he can, getting rid of duplicates.
These are the rules of the game:

1. No player can be "suspected" after the next in order has played.
2. A player may conceal his hand as he pleases to hide the fact that it is small, but must always show it on demand of any in the company.
3. The game may be continued after one player's cards are gone till all the cards are in one hand. In this case any one out of the game may suspect and if he suspects wrongly must take the cards on the table and enter the game again.

Think of a Number.
Tell some one to think of any number he pleases, but not to tell you what it is. Tell him then to double it.
When he has done that let him add to the result an even number which you yourself must give him. After doing this he must have the whole, then from what is left take away the number he first thought of. When he shall arrive this far, if his calculations have all been made correctly, you can give him the exact remainder, which will simply be the half of the even number you told him to add to his own. For instance:

Number thought of..... 25
Doubled..... 50
Even number added..... 6
Halved..... 28
Subtract original number..... 3
Leaves half of even number..... 3

Caterpillar Lace.
It is said that a man in Munich has devised an ingenious plan by which caterpillars are made to spin lace vells from the leaves of plants. He makes a paste of the plant that is the usual food of the caterpillar and spreads it thinly over a stone or other flat surface. Then with a camel's hair pen dipped in olive oil he draws on the coating of paste the pattern that he wishes the caterpillar to leave.
open. The stone being placed in an inclined position, the caterpillars are put at the bottom, and they eat and spin their way to the top, carefully avoiding every part touched by the oil, but devouring the rest of the plant. The result is a lace pattern of rare beauty.

The Vision of City Children.
A well known English surgeon called attention some time ago to the inability of city children to see well at a great distance, caused, he said, by their restricted line of vision. The other side of the street is about as far as they have an opportunity of using their sight. It is different with country children, who have an expanse of landscape to look at and can practice their sight on a great variety of objects at a distance. He suggests that city children should be given every possible chance to do the same and thus train the sight and strengthen the eyes at the same time.—Chicago

Others—Oh, no, no!

Fred—Well, I'm afraid you were all asleep. But I saw him. He was a big fellow.
Harry and Dorothy—I heard him.
Gladys—And then your horn, Fred, over by the door. He blew at that.
Ruth—See what's in our path! (Holding it up).
Gladys—And in my bowl!
Harry—And see the stockings!
All—Oh, oh, oh! (All run to get the stockings).
Dorothy—Oh, why couldn't we have kept awake?
Fred—Well, we've missed him this time sure. But next year we'll try it again, and we'll all keep awake.
All—Yes, indeed, we will.

MOHAMMED.
His Vision of Heaven and the Story of the Mountain.

Halabi, the founder of Islam, was born at Mecca in the year A. D. 570.
He died June 8, 632, at the age of seventy-two. He assumed the titular name of Mohammed, which means, according to some authorities, the "predicted Messiah."
One of the most extravagant relations which can be found in any language is credited to Mohammed.
Speaking of the sights he beheld when "transported to heaven," he says: "I saw there an angel, the most gigantic of all created things. It had 70,000 heads, each head had 70,000 faces, each face had 70,000 mouths, each mouth had 70,000 tongues and each tongue spoke 70,000 languages. All were employed in singing God's praises."
When Mohammed first announced his divinely inspired and appointed system the Arabs demanded supernatural proofs of his commission.
"Moses and Jesus," said the Arabs,
"wrought miracles in the testimony of their divine authority. And if thou art indeed a prophet of God do so likewise."
"It would be tempting God to do so," replied Mohammed, "and bring down his anger, as in the case of Pharaoh."
As the story is told in Brewer's "Phrases and Fables," the Arabs were not satisfied with this answer, and Mohammed then commanded one of the numerous eminences near Mecca to come to him. The mountain not stirring at Mohammed's bidding, the prophet exclaimed: "God is merciful!
Had the mountain obeyed my words it would have fallen on us to our destruction."
"I will therefore go to the mountain."

An Unpleasant Visitor.
A frightful shape loomed up before the startled eyes of the frightened professor. It was of heroic size, it stooped a little, its arms were unusually long, its forehead was retreating and its feet were bare and very broad.

"You have taken great liberties with me," said the shape. "You refer to me on every possible occasion, ascribing to me characteristics of which I know nothing. You have a reprehensible way of shifting to my shoulders a great many problems that are too much for your limited mind to grasp.
Come, now, what do you mean by it?"
"I've never seen you before," stammered the professor. "Who are you?"
The shape laughingly drew itself up.
"I am the primitive man!" it cried in a terrible voice.
And the professor is understood to be running yet.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Influence of the Local Paper.

Interesting figures compiled by M. W. Lawrence, manager of two farm journals circulating in Ohio and Michigan, show that 77 1/2 per cent of the farmers of those states do not take any of the popular national magazines. In other states Mr. Lawrence believes this percentage will be found to be even greater. In many communities the local paper must be only reading matter that enters the home. In some cases it is everything from cook book to Bible. Such a paper must exercise a tremendous influence on public opinion and upon the "buying public." The local merchant often fails to see that he has right at hand the means of combating mail order local paper will carry more weight than all the catalogues and national advertising that a mail order house puts out. Think it over, Mr. Merchant! It will pay you.

THE POOR WHIFFLETIT.

And the Low Down Trick by Which It Is Subdued.

Seating himself at a restaurant table, a Chicago man said:

"Walter, what kind of fish have you?"

"Oh," said the waiter, "all kinds—whitfish, bluefish, graylings, sea bass, weakfish, perch."

"Pshaw!" yawned the customer. "Cut that out. I'm tired of those common fishes. Ain't you got some new kind of fish—some kind I never ate before?"

"Well," said the waiter, "the whiffletit is very fine this morning."

"What is whiffletit?"

"Why, doesn't a fish sharp like you know what a whiffletit is? Common enough here. You see, the whiffletit lives only in circular lakes. You go out and find a circular lake and hire a boat. Then you row out all alone to the middle of the lake, about a mile or so, and anchor. Then you take an augur and bore a hole in the water and bait it by putting a piece of cheese on the edge of the hole. The whiffletit comes up to get the cheese, eats it, and it makes him swell up so that he can't back down the hole."

"Well," said the customer, breathless, "what then?"

"Why," replied the waiter as he filled a glass of water, "you lean over the side of the boat and laugh the whiffletit to death. Want a few?"—Cleveland Leader.

A LUCKY ESCAPE.

Thrilling Experience of a Cyclist on a Swiss Mountain.

A Dr. Bach was cycling down the pass near Goshen, in Switzerland, when his brake snapped and the machine darted forward at terrific speed.

At the foot of the mountain a bridge spanning a deep river gorge. The physician tried to guide his flying machine on the bridge, but the front wheel struck a side wall, and he was flung over the parapet. While falling through the air he caught a chain hanging from a girder. The momentum of his body suddenly arrested, nearly wrenched his grip loose, but he was a strong man and kept his hold. While swinging in midair suspended over the raging river and unable to improve his perilous position an automobile came chugging down the pass. The hapless man shouted for help, but he could not be seen from the bridge, and his cries were drowned by the noise of the motor and the sound of the river. A few minutes after the automobile had passed a carriage drove across the bridge. Again he cried out for help, but in vain. The awful strain on arms and fingers was becoming intolerable, and the doctor was about to drop into the torrent to an inevitable death when two peasants came by and saw him. They swung a noose over him and pulled him up. He fainted and was ill for a long time.—Strand Magazine.

Couldn't Remember His Star.

As illustrative of the fits of abstraction to which some men are subject in an extraordinary degree, Sir Henry Irving was fond of relating a story of his former manager, Charles Dillon. Some years after "The Bells" had made Irving famous he chanced to meet Dillon and was outspoken in his delight.

Dillon looked him over, finally remarking that he had no recollection of him. Irving reminded him of the tour they had made together and mentioning his name. Dillon thought for awhile, and, recognition appearing to dawn upon him, he extended his hand. "Irving? Oh, yes. I remember the name," he declared reminiscently. "And what are you doing now, Irving?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

It would be just as sensible for them to prescribe Quinine in its crude form as to prescribe Cod Liver Oil in its natural state. In the oil is emulsified and made easy to take—easy to digest and easy to be absorbed in to the body—and is the most natural and useful fatty food to feed and nourish the wasted body that is known in medicine today.

Nothing can be found to take its place. If you are run-down you should take it.

Odd Christmas Cakes

A GERMAN NOVELTY.

GERMANY for many years has been the land of Christmas novelties, and each year the Kaiser's ingenious toy, candy and cake makers devise some oddity which proves irresistible in luring small or great sums from the pockets of Yuletide shoppers. One of the latest novelties is for quaint and humorous Christmas cakes, which are literally cartoons in sugar and dough. The cakes are decorated with all sorts of funny figures made of colored sugar and in many instances are not the crude art products one would expect under the circumstances. The Bavarian peasant, for example, is a fair type of the living original as he is pictured in the German comic weeklies. A Munich waitress carrying a well grouped bunch of foam capped steins of the beverage for which Munich is celebrated at home and abroad, even if she does suggest Salome a trifle, is decidedly lifelike, while the saluting soldier by his very attitude suggests that foam capped steins and sentry duty do not assimilate very well.

The German authorities have done much to encourage the toymaking industry, particularly by collecting toys from all the world that the toymakers might acquaint themselves with the wants and peculiarities of foreign markets. The wooden animals of the past have been eclipsed by the mechanical toys. A submarine boat which sinks into the water and rises again, all with one charge of soda powder; a diver which goes to the bottom and pops up serenely when air is blown into him through a little tube, a Santos-Dumont airship which really flies, a real Gatling gun with stairs for the soldiers to go up, a railroad with full working equipment—

these are among the mechanical toys of Sonenberg. In short, Santa Claus in these times can find the means of gratifying the wishes of his most fastidious petitioners. HENRY SNYDER.

by the road on the outskirts of old seaport town of Bucksport, on Penobscot river, is a small family dwelling. Within its inclosure sleep black, the time blooded folk who settled the town and bequeathed their name and a legend.

the largest and most conspicuous monument in the cemetery is a tall stone shaft, which is in plain sight of the highway. On one side is the inscription: "Old John Buck, the Founder Bucksport, A. D. 1702. Born in Hingham, Mass. 1718. Died March 18, 1790."

the other side is the single word
"Witch," and also something not read by the marble worker. On smooth surface of the pedestal is a curious outline, which can be easily seen to be a foot of normal size.

people who say that it is a foot in the legend which has oft been told in Bucksport.

the story is that Colonel Jonathan Buck was a very harsh man and the evil spirit in his day and generation. He was the highest in civil rank, and his word was law in the community in which he resided. He was an out and out Puritan, and to the witchcraft was the incarnation of evil. Thus, so the story goes, there was a certain woman who was accused of witchcraft, at the first clamorings of the people Colonel Buck ordered that she be imprisoned, and later she was executed. On the execution day came, and the man went to the gallows, cursing the people who shuddered, but the strange deed was done. All was over, and the hangman was about to leave his duty, when the woman looked toward heaven, and raising her hand toward heaven, she said:
"Jonathan Buck, listen to these words, the last my tongue shall utter be the spirit of the only living God who bids me speak to you. You will die, and over your grave they will put a stone, that all may know the where your bones lie and crumble to dust."

that stone the imprint of my hand shall appear, and for all time after your accursed race has vanished from the face of the earth, will the stone from far and near know that murdered a woman."

then turned to her executioners, another set transpired to make a man of American colonial history. The "witch" curse had been almost forgotten, the monument was erected to honor of the Puritan.

THE CLANTON BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

The true secret of success is thrift in all its phases, and, principally, thrift as applied to saving. A young man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready
to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little leather-covered book, with the name of a bank on its cover. Saving is the first great principle of all success. It creates independence, it gives a young man standing, it fills him
with vigor, it stimulates him with the proper energy; in fact, it brings to him the best part of any success—happiness and contemptment. If it were possible to inject the quality of saving into every boy, we would have a great many more real men.

You should always remember that most coughs and colds are conspicuous. Yet the most important thing to do when you have a cold is
to move the bowels. You cannot promptly cure a cold until you do
this. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup stops the cough by allaying
inflammation of the throat and lungs, and it drives the cold from
the system by gently moving the bowels. Children like it for it tastes
nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold

Poor old 1908—leaves us to day.

Happy New Year to all.

Write it to morrow 1909.

From the Birmingham Ledger of Tuesday we take the following, from which it appears that Judge Reynolds will be a candidate for re-election.

Judge Lewis Reynolds, Probate judge of Chilton county, came up from Clanton Monday night and is spending Tuesday in Birmingham. Judge Reynolds is one of the leading republicans in the state. He is a candidate for re-election, and his friends all say that it is impossible to beat him in Chilton. He has represented his county both in the house and in the state senate.

Bimini and the Fountain of Youth.
Bimini was a fabulous island firmly believed in by the Indians of the Antilles, though they could give no further clue to its location than that it lay some hundreds of leagues north of Hispaniola. On this island was the famous fountain of youth, giving perpetual health and vigor. It was the search for this fountain that led Ponce de Leon and Hernando de Soto to Florida, on the outskirts of which the island was generally supposed to be situated.

Concerning His Kissing of Her.
Only one person with a mean disposition would have figured out this little prose poem. It runs as follows: Which do you think is the greatest sin?

DID he kiss her?
DID HE kiss her?
DID he KISS her?
Or,
DID he kiss HER?—Cleveland News.

The Great Need.
"Miss Dolly, you know the old adage—"

"I don't want to hear anything about add-ages," she interrupted. "What we girls want is some subtra-ages."—Woman's Home Companion.

How poor are they that have no patience! What would did ever heal but by degrees?—Shakespeare.

Editor Smith of Indianapolis.

Delavan Smith, the Indiana editor who recently figured at the receiving end of President Roosevelt's big stick, is the publisher of the Indianapolis News. Mr. Smith's offending was the publication of an editorial in his paper on the Panama canal charges. These charges, which figured somewhat in the campaign, connected Douglas Robinson, brother-in-law of President Roosevelt, and Charles P. Taft with an alleged deal in the purchase of the canal from the French company.

In 1904 Mr. Smith championed the cause of Mr. Roosevelt for president and went to Sagamore Hill to assure him that he would carry Indiana. As early as 1906 the Indianapolis News began to boom Vice President Fairbanks for the presidential nomination and incidentally attacked the other aspirants. Delavan Smith is widely known in the business world throughout the country. Besides his newspaper, he is interested in typewriter manufacturing, street railways, advertising and newspaper machinery. He is a member of the American Historical association and the Chicago Historical society. He is a bachelor, living in Indianapolis.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Home Minority Leader.

Champ Clark of Missouri, successor to John Sharp Williams as best known of the house minority, is one of the most picturesque figures in congress. He is an all around big man—he is also big in heart, big of brain—and he has an abiding faith in the Democratic party. Next to his party Mr. Clark loves Missouri best. A few years ago he was on the lecture platform in Kansas when he became ill, and was told he had only an even chance to live. "What more does a man want?" he demanded. "Just put me in a car and start me back to Missouri. Going back home is enough to make any man well."

Before the train reached Kansas City he was on the road to recovery.

Mr. Clark is a native of Kentucky and will be fifty-eight years old next March. He has worked as a hired farm hand, clerked in country stores, edited a country newspaper and practiced law. Before he moved to Missouri in 1875 he was president of Marshall college, West Virginia, and for many years held the record for being the youngest college president.

The new minority leader is serving his seventh term in congress and was re-elected last November. He was permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention of 1904 and chairman of the committee to notify Judge Parker of his nomination.

Kipling Made Taft Smile.

William H. Taft wasn't born to his famous smile. He didn't have it while in college. A close friend of his declares it was formed from reading Kipling, says the New York World.

Mr. Taft was very ill in January, 1902, when he left Manila on the transport Grant for San Francisco. While confined to his stateroom he read Kipling. "The Naulakha—A Tale of the West and the East," pleased him most, especially this verse:

Now, it is not good for the Christian health to hustle the Aryan brown, For the Christian rules and the Aryan smiles and wear the Christian crown.

And the end of the fight is a tombstone white and the name of the late deceased And the epitaph dear, "A fool lies here who tried to hustle the east."

Besides Kipling, Mr. Taft has other hobbies. One is music, particularly ragtime—favorite tunes, "Rufus Rastus Johnson Brown" and "The Road to Mandalay."

Inside and Outside.

The following report was sent by a subordinate inspector to his chief in the telephone service. It concerned a faulty house connection:

"Found wire with no outside outside. Put inside wire outside and outside inside. Need more outside for inside."

Learning.

Wear your learning like a watch, in a private pocket, and do not pull it out and display it merely to show that you have one. If you are asked what o'clock it is, tell it, but do not proclaim it hourly or unasked, like the watchman.

The wrongdoer is never without a pretext.—Italian Proverb.

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's Emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

STOCK LAW

Verben, Dec. 29, 1908

Editor Banner—I was amused at the letter of my friend and neighbor, W. W. Rutland, in your issue of a few weeks ago, especially that part of it in which he became so historical as well as political. My, my, what strange creatures we mortals are. If anyone on earth ever contributed to making me a confirmed believer in stock law—that one was my friend Rutland, and yet — Well, as the old fellow said when his wife found his store account and was looking over it finding, among other things charged, 7 drinks, 5 dits, 8 do &c, she said: John, you are welcome to buy liquor but that dits and do you did not need, nor did not bring home and you must explain it to my satisfaction "or else." So John tore out to his storekeeper friend and said: The old lady is after me; don't tell her anything, but take the darned account, go to your book. The drinks are all right but that dits and do you have charged I don't remember getting, but that's all right, but say Pat, just rub out that dits and do and just put it down nails.

So while my friend "Billie" is fighting stock law he really favors it and has ever done so, and I have just told a crowd in his hearing that he opposed it to secure favor for it. You see I have known "Billie" for 50 years. He is a good fellow, but quite a funny proposition. He said in his letter something about owls, bats and reptiles occupying the old stately mansions of the once beloved Coosa county. By jove, I did not know this. I have always heard that on certain occasions and under certain influences a fellow could see snakes and even "blue devils." Guess "Billie" has been over in his beloved Coosa where he saw snakes, and "heard the owl whoop."

I have just proposed to him that we go to Coosa and canvass it together in the same buggy. I to give him 20¢ or a dollar for each one we find who opposed stock law, and he to pay me just half the amount for each one who favored it or I would bet him 5 to 1 that a majority of any given district or beat in Coosa county favored stock law.

R. I. Perkins of Dollar spent last night with me. He was once very much opposed to stock law. His Lewis beat got it after a hard struggle about eight years ago by only one vote. Mr. Perkins says there is only one opponent to it now and that man always opposes any progressive move by his people.

I have talked to a number of "Billie's" old neighbors since the publication of his letter and without exception they favor stock law. So come on "Billie," get back on the Band Wagon and on January 6th we will land you safe and sound where you can peacefully listen to the plowman as he sings, amazing grace how sweet the sound &c. Where the blue birds will tell you it is time to be up and doing; where you may rest from your labors where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, where thieves will not break through and steal, nor where neither owls, bats nor reptiles will disturb your peaceful slumbers. Amen.

I learn that it is charged in beat ten that it is a political fight in beat five. I guess it is for certain democrats here are charging that certain other democrats who favor stock law are dickering with negroes and Republicans for the sake of securing stock law in beat five.

Now all this is rot. Let each voter do as Mr. Honeycutt and Mr. Wood said last week. Lay aside this bosh, go to the polls as men and as good liberal minded citizens and do as I am going to do—vote as you think best.

F. A. GULLEDGE.

Dollar, Coosa Co., Dec. 29, 1908
Editor Banner—Having been asked my opinion on stock law, so frequently, I have decided to express myself through your columns.

My beat was the last in the county to get stock law and I opposed it until just a few months before the election. It was carried in my beat by only one vote and now all express themselves as liking it. Some of my neighbors have talked of moving to Chilton county but one of them said he could not afford to buy land where there was no stock law. We have fewer stock and better ones. Only a few days since, Louis Barrett sold a yearling weighing 1065 pounds and I sold one 24 years old that weighed 1000 pounds. Mr. Varner has about 15 or 16 acres in a pasture and since last February he has sold $125 worth of cattle. Since getting stock law he has had meat to sell every year; a thing he did not have before. Our hogs at 12 to 15 months old weigh from 3 to 4 hundred pounds. I keep my milk cows in a small pasture and water them from a well a good portion of the year. It would be hard to induce me, under any circumstances, to move to a non stock law county. I have often wondered why Chilton county did not get stock law, knowing the people would be pleased with it when they tried it. I have a practical knowledge of Chilton county and know many of its citizens and I would not mislead them. One of my neighbors has just told me that he paid $25 to try to keep out stock law and now he would not be without it under any circumstances.

You are going to have it sooner or later and the sooner the better. Try it boys, you will like it.

R. I. PERKINS.

The Correct Time

to stop a cough or cold is just as soon as it starts—then there will be no danger of pneumonia or consumption. Just a few doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup taken at the start will stop the cough. If it has been running on for some time the treatment will be longer, but the cure is sure. Sold by Church Drug Co.

GUILTY OF COUNTERFEITING

Passing counterfeit money is no worse than substituting some unknown worthless remedy for Foley's Honey and Tar, the great cough and cold remedy that cures the most obstinate coughs and heals the lungs. Upchurch Drug Co.

Encouraging the Boy.

An' den lemme hyah no mo' 'bout not incuragin' yoh youthful ambitions."—Washington Star.

The Way to His Vote.

Lord Beaconsfield's skill in picking up stray votes was well known. An illustration of it is given in a book by Henry W. Lucy.

At the time that the Imperial titles bill was pending there was a certain pompous little Irishman, Dr. O'Leary, who seemed manageable and was desirable. One evening in the lobby Disraeli laid a hand familiarly on his shoulder.

"Dear Dr. O'Leary, the resemblance is most striking," he said. "I really thought I saw again my old friend Tom Moore."

The vain little gentleman was captured.

He Hits Back.

There had been a domestic spat at breakfast.

"You monster!" snapped the matron, who was always scolding. "You are not like my two former husbands. They were tender men."

"I never doubted that they were tender, Maria," ventured the meek man, "when you kept them in hot water all the time." And he just cleared the front porch two yards ahead of the rolling pin. — Chicago News.

Pat's Service.

Cherryman—Pat, there's a hole in the roof of the church, and I am trying to collect money sufficient to repair it. Come, now, what will you contribute? Pat—Me services, sir. Cherryman—What do you mean, Pat? You are no carpenter. Pat—No, but I'll make next Sunday G'n' at over the hole—Pennyworth.

DEVELOPING A STAR.

How Mansfield Coached Margaret Anglin as Roxane.

Richard Mansfield in his preparation for "Cyrano" was unsparing of himself, and he was unsparing of others. Everything he had and everything he hoped for was at stake. Struggle and desperation were in the air. Nearly every one in the cast resigned or was discharged over and over again. Mr. Palmer's days and nights were devoted to diplomacy, and, thanks to his staid, the heady heat of the day before was forgotten in the cool of the next morning.

An actress of international reputation and experience was engaged for Roxane. Rehearsals were under way when she resigned by cable. The orange girl's single line in the first act was being rehearsed by a young Canadian, Margaret Anglin. Mansfield had not seen her act, but he remarked the wondrous loveliness of her voice, and his intuition told him she had temperament. "Can you make yourself look beautiful enough for Roxane?" he asked. "I think I might if you can make yourself ugly enough for Cyrano," she answered. The part was hers on the instant. He coached her relentlessly. Again and again she cried that she could not do it. He reassured her, but not with soft persuasions. "You can, my dear, and you must. Now, again!" After rehearsals she went regularly in tears to Mr. Palmer to resign. He appealed to Mansfield to be more lenient. "I am only kind," was his reply.

"Roxane is a great part. Only one who has suffered can play such a role. This girl has the temperament and the emotions, but she is young and inexperienced. I cannot persuade her spirit. I must rouse it." And every day she reached new depths and new heights.—Paul Wiltach in Scribner's.

Ardree had been learning to sing "America" at school and was trying to teach it to Brother Wayne. One morning his father heard him shouting "Land where my papa died, land where my papa died."
Ardree interrupted. "Oh, no, Wayne, not that way. It is 'Land where our fathers died.'"
Wayne's expression could not be described as he tipped his head sideways and in a very surprised tone gravely asked, "Two of 'em?"—Delineator.
